PINCHOT ASKS SMITH TO CO-OPERATE IN USE OF WATER POWERS

CITES HIS STATE'S PROBLEM

Wants Niagara's Power Resources Made Available for Western Pennsylvania.

RECALLS ROOSEVELT FIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 9.—Governor Pinchot tonight sent a letter to Governor Smith of New York urging that Executive to withdraw the suit, now before the United States Supreme Court, which seeks to annul the Federal Water Power law and give to each State the right to control the water power generated within its own boundaries.

Pennsylvania and New York should co-operate, Governor Pinchot wrote in telling Governor Smith that he would regard with deep concern any movement to separate their mutual interests. Governor Pinchot held that in exchange for power generated at Niagara Falls and along the St. Lawrence River, part of which could be diverted into Northern and Western Pennsylvania, this State could give to New York a percentage of the fuel power derived from its mines.

The letter to Governor Smith read:

"I have read with great interest your water power message of March 5 and I wish you every success in your effort to furnish to the people generally, at cost, electric energy from the undeveloped water power resources within and on the borders of your State.

"For your information, I enclose copy of my letter of March 5 to W. Clyde Harer, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, recommending an appropriation of $35,000 for a survey to outline a giant power system intended finally to supply all industries, farms and homes in this State with cheap and dependable electric energy.

Sees Nation-Wide Enterprise.

"In pursuing such a plan we must make certain that the abuses and blunders which grew out of the unrestrained selfish struggle in the field of transportation are not repeated. At the same time, as one means to our end, we must insure a fair chance for reasonable profit on private investments prudently made in good faith.

"After eighteen years of study and work upon this problem, I have come confidently to expect the growth of a nation-wide interlocking power system, no small part of this future power development, especially water power development, will, I believe, be made by State municipal enterprise—some, perhaps, by national or even international undertakings. The nation is now constructing works for the installation of 480,000 water horse power at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, and vast projects are urgently pressed for development by the National Government on the Colorado, the Columbia and the St. Lawrence. You are now proposing State development for New York.

"I look to see the scope of State enterprise in this field increase rather than diminish. Yet I do not expect that private enterprise, at least for many years to come, will be wholly excluded from the field, and especially not from the field of electric power generated from fuel.

"Pennsylvania's power resources lie chiefly in her coal deposits. These have passed into private ownership, yet they remain, like all other private property, under the political control of the State. Having this legal status, they have always been and are now being fully shared through commerce with all sister States within practicable transportation distance.

"The freedom of commerce among the several States, the unrestricted exchange across State lines of services, goods and resources guaranteed by the Federal Constitution, is the strongest man-made basis of the prosperity of each State. This consideration applies not only to energy riding in a coal car, but equally to energy floating over a wire, whether the burning of fuel or the falling of water was the source. Furthermore, really cheap power cannot be supplied to consumers unless the burning coal and the flowing water contribute their energy to a common reservoir for the common supply of industries, farms, homes and railroads.

"Such a system must transcend State lines and is likely to become nation-wide. The new art of electric transmission is already so developed that the giant power system with which we are immediately concerned should now include all power producers and consumers in the northeastern section of the United States and should perhaps draw also upon resources of water power in Canada.

"If this is so, then Pennsylvania should share its fuel power with Southern New York, and New York should share its water power with Western Pennsylvania. Therefore I urge you most earnestly to provide, in planning the State-owned system you have proposed, for delivering at the Pennsylvania line a due proportion of Niagara power to supply the needs of Western Pennsylvania. On the other hand, by the location of giant power stations near the coal mines, by saving the valuable by-products of the fuel consumed, by the development of water power and by the electrification of railroads, I hope and expect that power resources of Pennsyl-

Thieves Get $30,000 in Gold Smashing a Rochester Safe

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 9.—Yeggmen operating early today cracked the safe in the office of the Kialorek Optical Company and escaped with gold bars valued at $30,000, in addition to a large quantity of optical goods.

The robbery was discovered this morning when one of the employes reported for work. The burglars gained entrance to the workrooms by breaking the glass in a rear door. They reached the door by way of a fire-escape in an alley. The workrooms and stockrooms were ransacked of everything of value.

The Kialorek company yesterday suffered a $100,000 fire loss when the building housing the army and navy stores in Albany burned to the ground.

ARMOUR AND MORRIS COMPLETE MERGER

FIGHT IN COURTS POSSIBLE

Packers Doubt That Wallace Appeal Will Prevail, but Are Prepared to Contest It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 9.—After prolonged discussion among the persons directly interested and the lawmakers at Washington, the merger of Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. into a $500,000,000 packing house combination is now an accomplished fact. Final details of the purchase of the assets of Morris & Co. by the Armour interests were worked out today at a conference of Armour and Morris representatives at Jacksonville, Fla.

The last obstacle to the deal was removed when the value of Armour & Co. common stock to be given as one-third of the $30,000,000 purchase price was fixed by arbitration. The original agreement between J. Ogden Armour and the Morris family called for $10,000,000 in cash, $10,000,000 in Armour preferred and $10,000,000 in Armour common stock.

The value of the common stock was to be adjudicated by James B. Forgan, Chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago and an executor of the estate of the late Nelson Morris, and Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank of New York and one of the banking trustees who will guide the affairs of Armour & Co. for several years.

The Florida conference was made necessary by the fact that Mr. Forgan is at his Winter home at Winter Park, near Jacksonville, and will not return for a number of weeks. Several days ago it became known that Mr. Armour and the Morris family could not agree on the value of the Armour common stock to be turned over to the Morris interests. Their respective valuations were so far apart that Nelson Morris and C. McFarlane, respectively Chairman and President of Morris & Co., hurried to Florida with a staff of accountants for a conference with Mr. Forgan. Then Mr. Wiggins and Frank O. Wetmore, President of the First National Bank of Chicago and representative of Mr. Armour, also went to Florida for a series of conferences. The result was an adjudication of the value of Armour common stock today and the closing of the deal. The price agreed on for the stock will not be made public, at least until formal announcement of the merger, which probably will be made next Tuesday.

Secretary Wallace only a few days ago filed a complaint against the Armour-Morris merger as an illegal combination. Hearings on the complaint were set for early next month. The merger has now been accomplished, however, and both the Armour and Morris interests believe the hearings will result favorably for them and sustain their contention that the deal is legal in every respect. They are preparing, however, to take the case to the highest court if a legal battle becomes necessary.

The merger of Armour & Co. and Morris & Co. represents a combination of upward of $500,000,000. The financial statement of Armour & Co. and subsidiaries, as of Dec. 31, 1922, placed total assets at $441,589,620. The last published statement of Morris & Co. was on Oct. 29, 1921, and placed total assets at $91,405,239. The two companies have about 65,000 employes.

TAKE INDICTED MAN.

St. Louis Police Arrest Former Banker Accused in Cleveland.

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—George J. McKay, 42 years old, former Vice President of the Middle States Discount Company of Cleveland, and under indictment there on charges of embezzling $95,000 from two firms, was arrested here tonight.

He is held for Cleveland authorities, the police announced. McKay denied the charges and said he would waive extradition, according to the police.

GOVERNOR GIVES HELP TO TRACE KIDNAPPER OF AN ALBANY BOY

WIDESPREAD SEARCH BEGUN

FOLLOW CLUES TO VERMONT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 9.—Tracing of Leopold Minkin Jr., three-year-old child of City Judge Leopold Minkin, who disappeared yesterday from his home with a new nurse-maid, led police, State troopers and detectives today to Troy and Bennington, Vt., where the police believe the young woman, Mary Conkling, went after leaving Albany. The police declare they believe it is a kidnapping case.

The nurse-maid had been in the Minkin home only one day and showed a fondness for the child. In the afternoon, when Mrs. Minkin had gone to visit her mother, the girl took some of the child's clothes, about $25 from his bank and a traveling bag. She was seen on the trolley car coming from Pine Hills by neighbors, who spoke to the boy. Later trolleymen identified by a picture the boy as one who was with a woman going to Troy yesterday afternoon.

Governor Smith personally urged the New York City authorities to do their utmost to find the missing boy when it was thought the nurse had taken him to New York.

Mayor Hackett, in behalf of the city, offered a reward of $1,000 for information that would lead to the recovery of the boy and the arrest of the woman. State police joined in the search. Descriptions of the boy and the nurse-maid were broadcast last night, and the police of every city in the State are on the lookout for them.

Judge Minkin Collapses.

While investigating a clue this afternoon in Troy Judge Minkin, overcome by the strain under which he had been since yesterday, collapsed and was forced to return to Albany. Mrs. Minkin is prostrated, and the other two Minkin children are crying for their baby brother.

The Troy clue was that a negro porter saw a woman take the 5 o'clock Boston & Maine train with a little baby boy who, the porter said, closely resembled the Minkin child. The porter said she bought tickets for Bennington. Another woman and two men were said to have been with her. The Bennington police were urged to try and locate the woman.

Judge Daniel H. Prior of the City Court, who sits with Judge Minkin, asked the Elks of the State to join in the search. The appeal was sent out tonight to the seventy-five lodges in the State. The Fox films offered assistance to the family to display pictures of the boy.

Another clue followed up was that the missing girl and the child were in Nassau. Two State troopers went with Nathan Posefsky, a brother-in-law of Herbert Minkin, brother of Judge Minkin, to Nassau to investigate.

More than 100 Albany business men, friends of Judge Minkin, gave their entire day to aid in the search.

Nurse Known as Anna Vigaro.

Albany police "checked up" on the nurse-maid today. They found she lived for a time at the Y. W. C. A. and was known as Anna Vigaro. Among her effects was a poorly written story of a young woman who left her home to go into the silk mills at Paterson, N. J. There was also a letter which indicated the girl had worked in Newburgh, this State.

The girl was also known at the Newman Club, 741 Madison Avenue, which is conducted by the State College for Teachers. She was there for three days, as Mrs. Minkin did not wish her to begin her work at the Minkin home until yesterday. The Albany police have yet to find out her home. She said she lived at 72 Hudson Avenue, but investigation showed she was unknown there.

The nurse girl gave a New York City reference, and Judge Minkin wrote to the address, but the letter was returned undelivered.

Friends of Judge Minkin are at loss to understand the motive for the kidnapping. The Judge is not a wealthy man, but is in comfortable circumstances. Before he was appointed to the City Court bench he was First Assistant Corporation Counsel of Albany. He has hosts of friends here and all are

Chicago Bank President a Suicide in Park; F. W. Popp's Institution Is Ordered Closed

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Fred W. Popp, President of the Logan Square Trust and Savings Bank at 2,569 Milwaukee Avenue, shot and killed himself today in Franklin Park.

After a meeting of bankers tonight with H. F. Savage, Chief State Bank Examiner, the bank was ordered closed until a complete examination could be made. According to John J. Sonsteby, one of the Directors, the Logan Square institution has deposits of nearly $2,700,000 and Popp was thought worth a quarter of a million dollars.

Popp was found with a bullet through his temple, his body half fallen out of the door of his closed automobile. On the floor of the car was an automatic pistol.

In one of Mr. Popp's pockets was a check book, containing $61,000 in canceled checks. Whether these checks have any bearing on the suicide is yet to be determined.

Those who participated in the bankers' meeting said they could not express a competent opinion as to the causes that led Mr. Popp to suicide.

Samuel Gompers Ill in Hospital Here; Pneumonia Gone but Still Has Influenza

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, has been a patient at the Lenox Hill Hospital since Wednesday, suffering from influenza and bronchial pneumonia. His illness was not announced until last night, when it was said he had thrown off the pneumonia and was convalescing slowly from the influenza. Were it not for his age, which is 73, his condition would not be regarded as serious.

W. C. Roberts, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the A. F. of L., and also Mr. Gompers's private secretary, said last night that Mr. Gompers probably would be able to return to his office in Washington "by the middle of next week." He quoted Mr. Gompers as saying yesterday: "If I had my way, I'd get out of bed, take the next train to Washington and go right down to the office and get to work. I feel strong enough for it now."

Mrs. Gompers, whom the labor leader married in 1921, came here from Washington last Wednesday and has been stopping at the Hotel Continental. She has been spending most of her time at the hospital, and was there last night.

Mr. Gompers came here from Washington to attend the Newspaper Women's Ball at the Ritz a week ago last night, and the annual dinner of the City Hall Reporters' Association at the Astor on the following night. He appeared in his usual vigorous health on both those occasions, but felt the symptoms of a cold on Monday. On Wednesday he called on Dr. Gustav Fisch of 1,298 Madison Avenue. The physician found that he had a congestion in his chest, and packed him off to the hospital. Dr. Fisch had several other physicians in consultation, including Dr. Evan M. Evans, specialist.

Mr. Gompers is in no immediate danger," Dr. Fisch announced after the consultation. "but he is a very sick man. Overwork has combined with age to lower his vitality and to retard convalescence."

The physician said that Mr. Gompers had passed the crisis about 6 o'clock last night, when kidney trouble which had developed was corrected.

YOUTH LEAPS FROM WASHINGTON SHAFT

WIND TEARS OFF HIS SHOES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Albert Birney Seip, a young man of this city, said to be a grandson of General William Birney, who commanded a division of the Union Army in the Civil War, and a great grandson of James G. Birney, anti-slavery leader, who was the Free Soil candidate for President in 1840, hurled himself from one of the windows near the top of the Washington Monument this afternoon and plunged 504 feet to his death on the flagging below. Every bone in his body was broken and his shoes were torn from his feet by the force of the wind as he fell downward through the air at an estimated speed of 120 miles an hour.

After viewing the body this evening the Coroner gave a certificate of death by suicide.

Seip, who lived with his mother at 1,094 Lanier Place, was between 25 and 30 years old. Following a mental breakdown, resulting from overwork while a student at Cornell University, he had been confined in various sanitariums since 1916. He left the Chevy Chase Sanitarium two nights ago and went to his mother's home. This morning he left the house without warning.

No one saw Seip leap from the window almost at the top of the monument this afternoon. He was alone in the observation room from which the windows look out, when he evidently clambered up the four feet from the floor to the window ledge and threw himself into space. He must have walked up the long flight of stairs inside the monument, for C. H. Reintzell, the guard on duty at the top, said he had not made the ascent in the elevator. Reintzell did not know of the suicide until he received a telephone message from the base of the monument telling him the shattered and broken form was lying on the flagging. There seems no doubt that Seip did not fall accidentally from the great height. The ledge of the window is at the height of an ordinary man's chest, and the dead man was short in stature.

The limp body was found by guards at 1 o'clock this afternoon about three feet from the south side of the great obelisk's base. As far as is known, only one person, a man named Thomas S. Searles, witnessed the terrible scene, as Seip's body plunged down from the monument.

"I was standing on the curb when suddenly I heard a noise like an airplane motor," Searles said. "I looked up. As soon as I saw a thing like a big bundle sliding down the monument, I knew what had happened, and jumped away. I had no sooner moved than there was a loud thud and two sharp reports.

"The body had fallen not far from where I had been standing. The two reports came when the man's shoes hit the pavement. They had been torn by the slide down the face of the monument and the air resistance had pulled them from the feet.

"The man's coat was billowed out by the wind and as it fluttered it must have made that noise.

Friction Wore Out Clothing.

"He was quite a way up when I saw him and seemed to be just sliding down at a terrific speed on his side, adhering to the wall. His clothing was worn out by friction with the stone.

"I had thought any falling object would have turned over and over, but either the coat held it steady or the gravity attraction of the monument itself was so great it held him tight."

The dead man was certified as insane in 1916 and sent to St. Elizabeth's, the Government Hospital, but his mother obtained his release and he was placed in another institution, at Rockville, Md., about fifteen miles from Washington. Two years later he was again placed in a sanitarium in the District of Columbia, but his mother had him transferred to a private hospital. Up to last Christmas he was in a sanitarium in Philadelphia, but when he come home for the holidays he expressed some dissatisfaction with this place, and so he was taken to a sanitarium in Chevy Chase.

It was from this institution that he came home two nights ago. His mother evidently feared for her son, and she asked a friend, Fred L. Francis of the United States Weather Bureau, to remain at her home until young Seip

RUM PIRATES LOOT STEAMER AT PIER

GET 20 CASES OF WHISKY

Escape With Booty While Three Watchmen Near By Empty Revolvers at Them.

River pirates, in the boldest liquor raid yet reported to the customs authorities, early yesterday morning boarded the Royal Mail Steam Packet ship Orbita, docked at the foot of Morton Street, North River, and held virtually the entire crew at the point of revolvers and then took about twenty cases of Scotch whisky from the ship's storeroom.

The attack on the Orbita was made from the riverside of the vessel when a launch, bearing eleven men, drew up alongside. Five of the men remained on guard. The other six made their way to where the liquor was stored. They broke the seal which had been placed on the room by the customs officials, forced the door and got away with twenty or more cases of Scotch whisky, which was handed over the side of the vessel to the launch below.

A watchman on the pier discovered the presence of the raiders just as the last case was being lowered to the smaller boat. Two other watchmen then ran up and the three emptied their revolvers at the launch, which was soon lost to view.

Thomas W. Whittle, Surveyor of the Port, said that ships of foreign countries, under the ruling last Fall of Federal Judge Learned Hand, have the right to bring liquors into American ports provided they are kept under seal until the vessels again get beyond the three-mile limit on the outward journey. Such liquors are permitted only as ship's stores, he said.

Seize Opium and Liquor on Ship.

Customs Agents George Barron, Walter Semsey and John McAdams yesterday afternoon raided the Alberta, an Italian liner, berthed at Pier 7, Bush Terminal, and reported they found approximately $5,000 worth of silk, liquor and opium not on the ship's manifest. The vessel arrived here from Trieste, Italy, two days ago. About three pounds of opium, the silk, 100 bottles of cognac and 100 small bottles of essence used, presumably in the manufacture of perfume, were found secreted under coal piles, in lockers and in various other parts of the ship.

Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, who have been transferred to the staff of Zone Chief R. Q. Merrick from the State force, wore no disguise yesterday afternoon, but were readily taken for prosperous brokers, as they tarried for a moment in the lobby of the Pulitzer Building on Park Row. The mistake was made by a truck driver, Michael Sceiza, 109 Sullivan Street. He halted his truck in front of the building and inquired of Izzy and Moe:

"Say, are you the two guys I was to give the whisky to?"

Returning to his truck, Sceiza carried in two packages, both wrapped in burlap, and handed them over to the agents. Then Sceiza was arrested and taken before United States Commissioner Hitchcock on a charge of illegal possession and transporting of liquor. Sceiza was held in $500 bail for a hearing. He said that the truck was owned by Dominic Manfretta, who lives somewhere in Bleecker Street.

Fifteen barrels of beer which were being transported on a truck by William J. Thomas of 313 Newark Street, Hoboken, N. J., and his helper, Louis Sidney of 303 Willow Avenue, Hoboken, were seized yesterday afternoon by Agents Kurzman and Lego. The men were arrested. All they would say was that the beer came from Elisabeth, N. J.

Regan Wins Suit for Liquor.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court gave a decision yesterday in favor of James B. Regan, for many years proprietor of the Hotel Knickerbocker in this city, for $16,542.64 against the Washington Marine Insurance Company for the alleged mysterious "evaporation" of 467 bottles of Scotch whisky and 152 bottles and 76½ gallons of brandy, aboard the Wakuia, en route from New York to Havre, in January, 1920. The decision was unanimous.

The Brewers' Journal, for many years the organ of the brewery interests of this country, was noted among the failures yesterday. Federal Judge A. N. Hand appointed Charles Shongood custodian for the Brewers' Journal, Inc., 1 Hudson Street, with bond of $500. The assets are estimated at $500.

Detective Robert McAllister of Headquarters, known as "The Flying Cop," indulged in a little exercise early yesterday morning in preparation for his forthcoming race against Charlie Paddock of the University of California. He caught one of two men who had been occupants of an automobile that contained one bottle of hootch, while the other man got away. The men stopped the automobile at Twenty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue to go into a café. While PARIS, March 9.—Speaking before the Chamber Committee on Foreign Affairs late today, Premier Poincaré made the statement that there was a growing movement, both in political and industrial circles in Germany, favoring beginning conversations in the near future between the German Government and the French Government. While popularly there exists in France the belief that the Germans will climb down before May 15 those who heard the Premier brought away the impression he expected approaches by the Germans considerably before that time.

M. Poincaré gave the committee a list of figures tending to prove his contention that the situation was getting better in the Ruhr from day to day and especially emphasized the growing number of Germans seeking work under the direction of the French authorities.

M. Poincaré goes to Brussels on Monday to discuss the situation with the Belgian Premier.

PARIS, March 9 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré addressed the Foreign Relations Committee today on the subject of the situation in the Ruhr. The Premier went into details with regard to the Ruhr railroads, the organization of the customers, the putting into force of import and export licenses, the expulsion of German officials, the liaison established between the bridgeheads, the relations between the occupation troops and the population and the arrangements that have been made to insure progressively the delivery of coal and coke in France.

M. Poincaré renewed his declarations made before the Chamber of Deputies, that France would not accept any mediation in the situation nor enter into indirect conversations. He added, however, that the day when Germany understood the situation France would be ready to listen to and examine all official propositions made by her.

In any case, the Premier declared, France would not abandon the security and guarantees she had been forced to take in return for a simple promise by Germany.

The appearance of the Premier before the committee was to continue his statement begun Feb. 19, after which he was reported to have been greatly annoyed by the publicity given his words, which he asserted had been incorrectly reported. He canceled a promise he had made to come before the committee the week following his February appearance. The committee investigated the "leak" on the Feb. 19 statement of the Premier and after ascertaining by what means his statement had gained publicity apologized to M. Poincaré.

Final Settlement at Brussels.

The outstanding fact in connection with Premier Poincaré's visit next week to Brussels for the purpose of conferring with Premier Theunis is that the French are determined to have a complete cleaning up of the reparation question whenever Germany makes overtures for a settlement.

This move on the part of the Germans is expected to come in the form of a communication to the French and Belgian Governments, who will refer it to the Reparation Commission if it is found to contain ground for discussion. When the Berlin Government will act, however, is thus far a matter of conjecture.

While the immediate object of M. Poincaré's visit is to return M. Theunis's visit here, with unquestionably a good deal of ground to be covered as to the present arrangements in the Ruhr and Rhineland, disinterested observers believe that the whole reparation question will be gone into so thoroughly that there may be a final and total settlement of the whole matter.

If the French have any defined plan, M. Poincaré has given no intimation of it. The French position, it is stated, turns on whether France is willing to accept reparations or is seeking national security. It is on these two points that French public opinion itself apparently is divided.

If security is sought one suggestion is the creation of a Ruhr-Rhineland

Canadian Crosses Niagara on 10-Inch Girder; Cannot Pay $8 Head Tax, and Is Deported

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 9.—Treading a narrow girder under the railroad tracks of the cantilever bridge, 150 feet above the Niagara Rapids, Leo Castle, 18 years old, of Alberta, walked today from the Canadian to the American shore, where he was arrested.

Castle's performance was not intended as a stunt of the Blondin sort, but it provided many of the thrills that accompanied the act of the tight-rope acrobat of another generation. Earlier in the day Castle had been barred from the American side because he lacked the $8 with which to pay the head tax. Twice he was turned back by immigration officials and then he decided to try the hazardous trip on the girders of the cantilever.

The path selected by the lad is about ten inches wide. The struts that branch out from the main framework offer no support or guide to a person standing upon it. Far below are the churning waters of Swift Drift, where the waters of the river break to the Whirlpool Rapids. One false step would have sent Castle to death.

The boy walked nonchalantly—at times almost ran—while the few persons who watched gasped for fear that he would fall, and there were deep-drawn breaths of relief as he completed the journey and stepped from the girder to the abutment on the American shore.

The trip and the risk were all in vain. Immigration officials had been among the spectators, and Castle was soon in custody, marching back to Canada on the upper steel arch bridge.

'Home, Sweet Home' Centenary To Be Observed in England

LONDON, March 9.—One hundred years ago next May 8 "Home, Sweet Home" was sung in public for the first time. The melody came in the second act of an opera called "Clari, or the Maid of Milan," produced at Covent Garden. The libretto was written by a wandering American actor, John Howard Payne, and the music was composed by Sir Henry Bishop.

The opera died and was soon forgotten, but the centenary of the song it bequeathed to the English-speaking world is to be observed here. As yet the nature of the commemorative ceremonies has not been decided upon, but leading musicians have expressed hope that the anniversary will be observed by the singing of the song at concerts throughout the world.

Payne eventually found his way back to the home of which he sang so sweetly, but he resumed his wanderings and died on foreign soil, at Tunis, where he had gone as American Consul.

LONDON, March 9.—Lady Astor induced the House of Commons this afternoon, by 338 votes to 56, to give second reading to her bill prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in saloons to any one apparently under the age of eighteen for consumption on the premises. This was the first bill ever introduced into the Commons by a woman, and Lady Astor received many compliments on her management of it.

As the hour of adjournment approached, and there was danger of the bill being called out, she moved closure, which was carried by 335 votes to 70 and cleared the way for the deciding division. The Government left the measure to the unfettered judgment of the House by not putting its whips on, but Home Secretary Bridgeman declared that he could not undertake to furnish facilities for its further progress. He considered that it would be a difficult measure to administer. This seems to indicate that the bill will have little chance of getting through its committee and third reading stages, but will be smothered by the press of Government business.

"It is not Lady Astor's bill," said that lady in opening her speech. "I am only its godmother." She claimed that it had the support of the medical profession and the Church. It did not touch clubs and did not prevent children from fetching "father's supper beer." She wanted, she said, to give the spirit and not the spirits a chance, and declared that the only organized opposition came from the drink trade. "I don't blame them in the least," said Lady Astor, "and I do not want to get their backs up, because I do want to be an angel of peace today. [Laughter.] In this country in 1910 the number of girls and boys between the ages of 16 and 21 arrested for drunkenness was 2,610; in 1920 the number of 4,063, and in 1921 the figures were 2,117.

"You men are children," added Lady Astor amid laughter, "and we women love you because you are children. I appeal to the House to pass this legislation to help the children."

The rejection of the bill was moved by Walter Greaves Lord, who declared that it was merely the beginning of a continuous fight until prohibition had been accomplished, which elicited long Labor cheers. The measure would lead to drinking of a far worse character than took place in the public houses, he said, adding, "if you want to bring in prohibition, don't bring it in by annoyance, but bring it in in a fair and square way."

Lady Astor Tilts With Opponent.

Sir George Hamilton criticised the bill as being not godmotherly but grandmotherly legislation, and went on to quote Lady Astor as stating that young people already had sufficient of the devil in them.

Lady Astor—"I never said that."

Sir George Hamilton—The noble lady said that she had sufficient of the devil in her and that if she was prohibited she had a natural tendency to want to know what it was that was prohibited.

Lady Astor, casting aside her papers hurriedly and rising with some indignation, said that the drink trade took out one sentence and had misquoted it against her ever since.

Sir George Hamilton—Judging by this interruption, I may say that it is quite

BOTH GOVERNMENTS TIRE OF ARGUMENT OVER BRITISH DEBT

WANT INCIDENT CLOSED

Our Position Stated by Mellon Last Year When He Denied Any Guarantees by British.

THIS BACKS UP HARVEY

Balfour's Speech in the Lords Is Condemned in the English Press as Harmful.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Officials of the Harding Administration are unable to understand why Ambassador Harvey's recent speech in London in regard to the alleged British guarantees for loans to other Allies by the United States should have called for the attention which Lord Balfour gave it by his speech in the House of Lords yesterday.

Officials here are not at all disposed to continue the argument. As officials view the matter the controversy between Ambassador Harvey and Lord Balfour is entirely personal.

On Aug. 24, 1922, about the time Lord Balfour made his original statement on the allied debts Secretary Mellon published a statement which is in accord with the assertion made by Mr. Harvey that the United States did not attempt to hold Great Britain responsible for the loans to other allied countries. Secretary Mellon's statement read:

"A number of inquiries have been received as a result of statements recently published, with respect to the exact status of the obligations of foreign Governments held by the United States. Especial attention has been directed to the origin of the indebtedness of the British Government amounting to about $4,135,000,000. It has been said that this liability was not incurred by the British Government, but by the other Allies, and that the United States in making the original arrangements insisted in substance that although the other Allies were to use the money borrowed, it was only on British security that the United States was prepared to lend it. It is apparent from the inquiries which have reached the Treasury Department that it is supposed that this, in substance, is the explanation of the existing indebtedness of Great Britain.

Loans Made to Cover Purchases.

"In answer to these inquiries, it should be said that the obligations of foreign Governments in question had their origin almost entirely in purchases made in the United States and the advances by the United States Government were for the purpose of covering payments for these purchases by the Allies.

"The statement that the United States Government virtually insisted upon a guarantee by the British Government of amounts advanced to the other Allies is evidently based upon a misapprehension. Instead of insisting upon a guarantee or any transaction of that nature, the United States Government took the position that it would make advances to each Government and would not require any Government to give obligations for advances made to cover the purchases of any other Government. Thus, the advances to the British Government evidenced by its obligations were made to cover its own purchases, and advances were made to the other Allies to cover their purchases.

"'So far as the purchases of the allied Governments for war purposes within the United States and its Territories and insular possessions are concerned, it is the expectation of the Secretary of the Treasury to continue as heretofore the advances necessary to enable the financing of such approved purchases. The Secretary of the Treasury quite agrees with what he understands to be the views of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, that advances shall be made to each allied Government for the commodities purchased in the United States by or for it, and that no allied Government should be required to give its obligations for such purposes when merely serving as a conduit for the supply of the materials so purchased to another allied Government. Any other course would indeed be incompatible with what the Secretary of the Treasury deems a cardinal principle which should be followed in respect to such advances, namely, that the allied Government for the use of which the commodity is purchased must give its own obligation therefor, and the obligation of any other allied Government cannot be accepted by the United States as an equivalent.'

Gives View in June, 1918.

"It is well to further quote from a memorandum handed to the British Ambassador in June, 1920, by the Secretary of the Treasury in regard to these loans as follows:

"'It has been at all times the view of the United States Treasury that questions regarding the indebtedness of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland to the United States Government and the funding of such indebtedness had no relation either to questions arising concerning the war loans of the United States and of the United Kingdom to other Governments or to questions regarding the reparation payments of the Central Empires of Europe. These views were expressed to the representatives of the British Treasury constantly during the period when the United States Government was making loans to the Government of the United Kingdom and since that time in Washington, in Paris and in London.

"From these two statements it appears to be quite clear that the question tive borrowing nations each gave their own obligations for the money advanced by the United States, and that no guarantee of the obligations of one borrowing nation was asked from any other nation. This is the understanding of the Treasury as to the status of the foreign obligations growing out of the war now held by the United States."

BRITISH FOR DROPPING WRANGLE OVER DEBT

Balfour, It Is Emphasized, Spoke Only for Himself—He Is Criticised in the Press.

LONDON, March 9 (Associated Press).—The Earl of Balfour's defense in the House of Lords yesterday of his note concerning the interallied war debts may be taken as the final curtain in the wrangling over these debts, if the hopes of the British Government are realized, according to statements in official circles today.

It is emphasized that Lord Balfour spoke entirely in his own behalf, without Government authority or responsibility, but at the same time it is pointed out that Foreign Secretary Curzon was on hand with a portfolio of data regarding the debts, ready to follow Lord Balfour and contradict any of his statements which might be unacceptable to the Government.

The fact that Lord Curzon left the House and that the session was adjourned as soon as Balfour's speech was finished is taken as an indication that the Government was satisfied with his outline of the British viewpoint.

For this reason, it is declared, those who expect the British Government to renounce formally and explicitly any part of the debts, as suggested by Ambassador Harvey, are practically certain to be disappointed.

Mr. Harvey's view of Lord Balfour's speech is unavailable here, as the American Ambassador left this morning for a vacation of two weeks at the seashore.

The Weekly Economist's editorial on Lord Balfour's utterances in the House of Lords goes into considerable detail as to how the money from the United States was spent. It points out that the greater part of the British purchases in America, for which the debt was incurred, was for Britain's own use, and what America objected to was financing the other Allies over and above their purchases in America, or giving them credits with which to buy goods in other countries.

In these circumstances we sympathize with Mr. Harvey's strictures," says The Economist. "The sentence Mr. Harvey criticized certainly suggests that the American Government refused to accept the credit of our European Allies and that in some way we were made to underwrite the loans they made from America, for all purposes—an implication which is entirely incorrect."

While believing this clause of Lord Balfour's was undoubtedly obscure and misleading, The Economist at the same time considers Lord Balfour justified in reiterating the reasons which impelled Great Britain to invite America to bear a larger share of the war burdens. It strongly urges the Government, in the interest of the preservation of American friendship, to issue a very full account of all of these war transactions and the negotiations accompanying them, being convinced that this question will continue to be a source of misunderstanding until a full analysis of the British debt to America is produced.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 9.—Commenting on Lord Balfour's statement in the House of Lords yesterday The Evening Standard says:

"With all appropriate diffidence and deference we cannot but express regret that the American Ambassador should have issued a sort of 'challenge' to certain public feeling in this country regarding our debt to the United States, but we regret very much more that Lord Balfour should have taken opportunity of that challenge to use his gift of polished irony in a manner, which to say the least, is not helpful.

"The British people as a whole has a very definite view as to all these inter-allied war obligations. It thinks of the allies' effort as one effort and would have preferred the pooling of costs similar to the pooling of military strength. It has bowed to the different opinion held by its creditor, but its own conviction remains and it seems hardly good diplomacy to challenge that conviction. Indeed Lord Balfour's speech last night undoubtedly expresses in the main the opinions of many Englishmen, but that is far from saying that it was a wish speech to make.

"On the contrary, his utterance seems to us one of those bad mistakes to which very clever men are prone. We have agreed to pay and are paying, and controversies as to the moral obligation have become irrelevant. They are worse, they are mischievous. It is generally agreed that there is an advantage in the good understanding between the British and American Governments and peoples. How is that understanding to be advanced by such passages of arms between two clever men?

"We think the Ambassador, if we may say so, made a false step in raising the question, but still more emphatically do we think that Lord Balfour might have found a much safer occasion for a display of those powers of ironical disquisition which are already sufficiently recognized."

MANCHESTER, England, March 9 (Associated Press).—The Manchester Guardian, commenting editorially on the Earl of Balfour's address in the House of Lords yesterday, says:

"It seems to us a little unfortunate that the new American Ambassador should have challenged and virtually asked the British Government to withdraw a certain passage in the Balfour note of last August.

"Our debt to America has now been definitely arranged on terms which probably do not dissatisfy one party more than they do the other. The negotiations were conducted in a spirit of mutual good will and it was hoped that the troublesome question had been got out of the way without leaving behind any rankling, misconceptions or grievances.

"It is not likely, at least for many years to come, that Englishmen and Americans will perfectly agree about the circumstances which made this debt. In our view, it is different from the ordinary debts of commerce.

"But since we have agreed as to the terms of repayment, it would probably be wise not to argue further about their abstract justice. It should be sufficient that we recognize their legality. But Ambassador Harvey asks for more * * *

"It would probably be a good thing if the discussion was allowed to drop."

ONLY ONE ALLIED LOAN CHARGED TO BRITAIN

Oscar T. Crosby Suggests Balfour May Be Thinking of $170,000,000 We Lent Russia.

Oscar T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during the war, characterized to The Associater Press yesterday as a "misapprehension" the assertion of Lord Balfour, made in the House of Lords on Thursday that the United States had demanded a British guarantee before financing other Allies.

Entering the controversy between Lord Balfour and Ambassador Harvey, Mr. Crosby, who discussed war loans with Lord Balfour when the latter came here in 1917 as head of the British High Commission, and who later served in Europe as President of the Interallied Council on War Purchases and Finance, declared he could recall but one incident on which the "misapprehension" might be based.

This incident, he said, was the granting to Russia of "a relatively small loan" of $170,000,000 on British endorsement, at a time when Russia was represented here only by a Chargé d'Affaires holding over from the Czarist regime, with no authority to sign obligations for the Provisional Government of Russia. Mr. Crosby admitted, however, that this loan had been left to the charge of Great Britain.

Referring to the Russian loan, Mr. Crosby said that the situation seemed "to have been so dominated by British influence that Secretary McAdoo felt it was wise to leave the account as we found it. We knew nothing of the quid pro quo which might have existed between the endorsing Government, Great Britain, and Russia. No opportunity had been given the United States to consider the propriety of these Russian commitments for the better prosecution of the war. Secretary McAdoo never insisted upon any vexatious inquiry into the requisitions of the allied Governments, but it was his duty to learn what he could without actually hindering the measures necessary in war.

Questions Lord Balfour's Memory.

"Lord Balfour thought we should have taken over this relatively small amount, and I fancy his memory has retained the impressions resulting from the incident, while he has not kept pace with the other vastly larger transactions, in which his Government was not asked to assume any responsibility whatever for allied purchases other than British in our market."

Mr. Crosby's formal statement follows:

"I can recall but one incident which, remaining in Lord Balfour's mind, may have given rise to the misapprehensions appearing in his last statement. It occurred while Lord Balfour was in Washington, and discussion concerning it was had, in part, with him.

"Shortly after our entrance in the war it became my duty to obtain a statement of the commitments of the various allied Governments for materials under contract in the United States. This statement was had from J. P. Morgan & Co., who were acting as fiscal agents for Great Britain and other Allies.

"Secretary McAdoo had not waited for this report before making loans under the act of Congress approved April 24, 1917. With his usual promptitude he had the President's approval for a loan of $200,000,000 to Great Britain, made on April 25. This was followed by large advances directly made to France and Italy as soon as the money could be found, and before the First Liberty Loan was floated.

"Meanwhile it was clear that we should know how much we were expected to raise for our associates to cover their needs in the United States. When the Morgan statement above mentioned was received, I reported to the Secretary that it showed about $170,000,000 of contracts for deliveries to Russia, but with British endorsement. Russia was at that time represented only by a chargé d'affaires holding over from the Czarist régime. He had no authority then to sign obligations for the Provisional Government of Russia. Secretary McAdoo could not lend money without having corresponding obligations of the borrowers.

"As soon as the necessary authority was given, loans were made directly to the new Russian Government without endorsement of any other Government. The program of purchases for Russia, both in the United States and Great Britain, had been made out by a Commission sent to St. Petersburg under the leadership of Lord Milner. While the commitments of the big belligerents were at once taken over by them from loans made directly to them, this one, just mentioned, for Russia, was left to the charge of Great Britain.

"There was no discussion as to British responsibility for the purchases here of the other Allies. But as to this Russian affair, it seemed to have been so dominated by British influence (necessary, doubtless, in the confusion of the time) that Secretary McAdoo felt it was wise to leave the account as we found it.

"I remember the discussion very well, and assume my small share of responsibility, as the one in charge of the fiscal bureau for the Secretary, in that I advised him to follow this course. We knew nothing of the quid pro quo which might have existed between the endorsing Government, Great Britain, and Russia. No opportunity had been given the United States to consider the propriety of these Russian commitments for the better prosecution of the war. Secretary McAdoo never insisted upon any vexatious inquiry into the requisitions of the allied Governments, but it was his duty to learn what he could without actually hindering the measures necessary in war.

Questions Lord Balfour's Memory.

"Lord Balfour thought we should have taken over this relatively small amount, and I fancy his memory has retained the impressions resulting from the incident, while he has not kept pace with the other vastly larger transactions, in which his Government was not asked to assume any responsibility whatever for allied purchases (other than British) in our markets.

"Lord Balfour says: 'We explained to the American Government that we should be able to find all the dollars necessary to purchase our own war materials without borrowing from the United States or anybody else.' Certainly no such statement came to my knowledge. On the contrary, the need of borrowing dollars for British requirements here (and even in neutral countries) was always to the fore in my contact with the subject.

"Purchases with American funds for allied accounts in neutral countries were accomplished indirectly by taking up drafts in London offered in Wall Street by neutral holders from many countries. British financial agents bought these drafts with moneys lent by us in order to protect sterling exchange rates. Private as well as public drafts were thus taken up.

"It is probable that some of these drafts covered credits established by Great Britain in favor of other allied Governments. It was not possible to distinguish the sources of the drafts when originally purchased. In so far as Great Britain may have thus financed France or Italy in neutral countries, giving British obligations for the necessary funds to the United States Treasury, the act was voluntary on their part.

"As the war progressed, loans were negotiated in some neutral countries by Great Britain and France separately, and also separate advances were made by us to Allies for protecting their exchanges in New York.

"Lord Balfour seems to have confused the supply of British goods on sterling loans to the Allies with the supply of American and neutral goods which gold, or its equivalent, was necessary. I can see nothing that we could have done that was not done, except to finance France, Italy, &c., for their purchase of British goods in British markets. That would have supplied Great Britain with dollar exchange which otherwise was so sadly lacking for British purchases abroad. Perhaps Lord Balfour has in mind this sort of transaction.

"I do not remember that it was seriously urged by British Treasury officials until some time in March, 1918, when a large part of the existing debt had already been incurred. That arrangement would have violated the spirit of the act under which the President and Secretary McAdoo so boldly discharged the heavy responsibility placed upon them by the American people. Nor was it necessary, as the event proved, since the British Government continued to find sterling credits, in paper money, substantially, to cover French, Italian, Belgian, Greek and other purchases in Great Britain.

"Now that the two Treasuries have settled the matter harmoniously, it would be better, in school-boy language to 'let the cat die.' So it seems to me."

DEBT CONTRACT READY.

Commission Will Discuss Today Delivery of Bonds by Great Britain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The United States World War Debt Funding Commission met today and practically completed the draft of the contract with the British Government by which that Government is to pay its war indebtedness to this country in accordance with the terms of the agreement ratified by Congress. The commission will meet again tomorrow to discuss matters connected with the printing and delivery of the bonds to be furnished by Great Britain.

It is likely that at tomorrow's meeting there will be further consideration of the matter of adjusting the war debt of Finland. No exact statement as to the terms offered by Finland has been made, but it is reported that the Finnish Government will be willing to engage to complete its payments within thirty years. The entire amount, principal and interest, will be within $10,000,000.

Fascisti Control San Marino.

SAN MARINO, March 9.—For the first time in the history of this tiny republic the two Regents, the highest officials of the republic, belong to the same party, namely the Fascisti. In the recent elections thirty-five Fascisti were elected to the Council, for which sixty members were chosen.

DORTMUND SUFFERS THE FATE OF ESSEN

French Arrest and Expel Police and Leaders of German Resistance There.

MANY PRISON SENTENCES

Belgian and French Courts-Martial Busy—Sabotage on Railroad and Telegraph Lines Continues.

DUESSELDORF, March 9.—Dortmund, one of the largest industrial centres of the Eastern Ruhr, is being cleaned out by the French in the same way as Essen and Bochum. The town, despite its proximity to unoccupied Germany, has been permitted to carry on longer than Essen, but its day has come.

The reason given for the French action is Dortmund's refusal to execute certain requisitional orders. That excuse is as good as any other, but it could have been used any day for some weeks. The real reason is it is the organization centre of resistance and hostility to the occupation.

French troops, which surrounded Dortmund in force some days ago, this morning marched into the town, arrested 270 Green Police and certain marked prominent individuals and took over certain public buildings. There was no resistance to the French troops, and tonight the town is quiet. Tomorrow there may be acts of hostility, but after that the town will probably settle down and as at Essen and other towns industrial activity will decrease and unemployment will follow.

At Recklinghausen the French arrested today Acting Chief of Police Eisenreith. He appears to have enjoyed a triple personality. He occupied three houses and day or night emerged from various houses in different disguises. During the day he was a clean-shaven police official. At night he was a bearded propagandist.

10,000 Police Being Expelled.

ESSEN, March 9 (Associated Press).—The French troops have again been withdrawn from Dortmund, which was occupied for the purpose of rounding up all the members of the disbanded security police still at large.

This move was part of the Franco-Belgian program to rid the Ruhr of some 10,000 security police who have been a constant source of annoyance to the occupying forces, doing espionage work, spreading propaganda and otherwise hindering the French and Belgian military.

Fourteen persons accused of various offenses against the occupying forces at Crefeld, have been sentenced by a Belgian court-martial to jail terms of from three to six months each. Six of the prisoners were newspaper editors accused of spreading agitation. The others were customs officials and trade union leaders who had disobeyed the orders of the occupying authorities.

Dr. Schweibeil, a member of the International Sarre Boundary Commission, residing in the district of Meisenheim, has been court-martialed by the French and sentenced to five years' imprisonment and a fine of 15,000,000 marks. He will probably be sent to Metz or some other point outside the occupied area to serve his term and his family will be expelled from the territory.

Sabotage on railroads and the telegraph and telephone lines is continuing. A telegraph pole was cut down at Kettwig and laid across the track last night in an effort to wreck a train. Rocks were placed on the tracks near Niedrich for the same purpose. Both attempts were discovered in time to prevent accidents.

Several cars were derailed near Coblenz during the night as the result of tearing out of rails, but there were no casualties.

Official's Wife Deported.

BERLIN, March 9 (Associated Press).—A German semi-official agency dispatch from Mayence says the wife of Dr. Schweibeil, who was administrator of the rural district of Meisenheim, was deported from the Ruhr without the privilege of saying farewell to her husband or her three children, aged 2, 4 and 6 respectively. The deportation followed Dr. Schweibeil's condemnation to five years' imprisonment and a heavy fine for failure to obey orders of the Rhineland Commission and participation in a proclamation of protest.

As Frau Schweibeil was about to enter the courtroom where her husband had been condemned she was ordered deported, says the agency message, and was taken over the border immediately in an automobile despite the request for permission to see her husband and children.

Dr. Schweibeil, because of his membership on the International Commission for the Establishment of the Sarre boundaries, lodged a claim to extraterritorial rights but this was ignored by the court.

State-owned forests extending over 86,485 acres have been seized by the occupying forces in the newly occupied territory of the Rhineland and Ruhr, according to a statement before the Budget Committee of the Prussian Diet by the Socialist Deputy Peter Hochdenn.

This total, he said, includes 34,594 acres of Prussian forest, but does not take into account numerous seizures of community forests.

Dr. Wendorff, Prussian Minister of Agriculture, announced that thus far forty-one forestry officials have been deported. He added that not one official or laborer had yet agreed to obey orders given by the French occupational authorities.

It was announced that the net surplus revenue from the Prussian State forests will be considerably in excess of the budget estimate of 6,350,000,000 marks, due primarily to greater returns from the sale of wood than expected.

GELSENKIRCHEN, March 9.—Belgian patrols at Buederich, across the Rhine from Wesel, on Wednesday night seized shipments of milk from Holland consigned to Dortmund, Essen, Rotthausen, Muehlheim-am-Ruhr and this city, according to reports received through German sources.

COBLENZ, March 9 (Associated Press).—During the last two days the Interallied Rhineland High Commission has deported from the old occupied area of the Rhineland 250 persons, raising the total of deportees from this territory to 935, according to semi-official German advices.

The recent deportees have been mostly postal or customs officials.

FRENCH USE MONEY SEIZED.

14,000,000,000 Marks Applied to the Cost of Ruhr Armies.

DUESSELDORF, March 9 (Associated Press).—The French and Belgian armies of occupation are paying their expenses by means of requisitioned marks, it was announced today at French headquarters.

More than 14,000,000,000 marks have been collected by the occupation forces, all of which will be applied toward expenses incurred since the Ruhr troop movement began just two months ago.

The largest sum seized by the French near Hagen was 13,000,000,000 marks in Reichsbank funds being shipped by train from Berlin to Cologne. Included in the amount confiscated is a billion marks taken at Duisburg, which was also a Reichsbank shipment, and hundreds of millions of German Government strike funds. There are also fines against individuals amounting to 15,000,000 marks, and a fine of 100,000,000 marks against the town of Recklinghausen.

The headquarters of the German Association for the Defense of Economic Interests was raided today by the French authorities. Several tons of propaganda matter were confiscated by the French, who claim this was the central pamphlet-distributing point for the Ruhr associations. The bureau was in a bank building in Duesseldorf directly across the street from General Degoutte's offices.

The value of the 14,000,000,000 marks seized by the French at the present rate of exchange is about $100,000. The appropriations of the French Chamber thus far for Ruhr operations amount to 115,000,000 francs, equal to about $7,000,000.

Taken From Occupied Zone to Private Homes in Bremen.

BOCHUM, March 9 (Associated Press).—The task undertaken by the Germans of sending several hundred thousand children from the troubled zone has actually been begun. Five hundred youngsters, from 3 to 7 years of age, were sent from here by special train yesterday. The Germans announce they were sent to Bremen, where they will be distributed among private families, to be cared for until the troubles blow over.

BERLIN, March 9.—Premier Poincaré is declared by the Social Democratic News Agency to have notified the Danish Government that France can hardly regard the admission of German children to Denmark for recuperation as a sign of neutrality.

This statement is made public in connection with a report that the Danish Socialists had decided to care for 10,000 children from the Ruhr in Denmark for three months instead of 1,000, as originally planned.

The Tageblatt says that the Ruhr relief fund now exceeds 10,000,000,000 marks. It is semi-officially stated that 3,500,000,000 paper marks have been received from Austria, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Mexico and Japan, as well as from the cities of Barcelona, Belgrade and Athens.

GERMAN COAL HOLDING OUT.

Commission Reports Supplies on Hand Are Satisfactory.

BERLIN, March 9.—The German Coal Commission informed a Reichstag committee today that the country's coal supply was on the whole satisfactory.

Thanks to large supplies of reparations fuel which were diverted to unoccupied Germany instead of to France and Belgium during the first few weeks of the occupation, and to large importations of British coal last year, the commission said, the railways, public utilities and private consumers were well taken care of.

There has also been an increase in the production of the mines outside the Ruhr, for the miners have been working overtime, it was stated, that high-grade coke was not so plentiful as coal, but that, nevertheless, the situation was fairly satisfactory.

EIGHTEEN COMMUNISTS HELD.

Belgian Police Say They Got Funds From Moscow Via Berlin.

BRUSSELS, March 9 (Associated Press).—Eighteen of the forty Belgian Communists rounded up by the police yesterday have been held. Their leader is said to be Le Soil, Councilor of the Commune of Chatelineau.

The men deny having received money from the Germans, but police investigation, disclosed that the money for the Communist campaign in Belgium came from Berlin, where, the supposition is, it was received from Moscow.

BRITISH PROTEST TO PARIS.

French Predict an Easy Settlement of Cologne Differences.

PARIS, March 9 (Associated Press).—The British Government has delivered to the French Government an amicably worded note on the situation in the newly occupied territory between the Rhine bridgeheads.

The question to be settled is whether this territory is to be under the administration of the Rhineland interallied commission or the Franco-Belgian military authorities.

The expectation in official circles is that this question will be easily determined after an understanding is reached on the spot by representatives of Great Britain and France.

RUSSIANS AGAIN OFFER GRAIN.

Trade Unions Would Send 9,000 Tons to Ruhr Workers.

MOSCOW, March 9.—The Russian trade unions have sent another message to Germany, reiterating their offer of 9,000 tons of grain for the workers in the Ruhr.

Up to today, according to the Executive Council of the unions, no reply has been received to the original offer, made almost a week ago.

French Occupy Kronenberg.

BERLIN, March 9.—Kronenberg, three and a half miles southwest of Elberfeld, was taken over by the forces of occupation this morning, according to a message from Muenster.

AMERICANS COMPLAIN OF RUHR BLOCKADE

Operation of Industries Owned Here Said to Be Greatly Hindered by Occupation.

BERLIN, March 9 (Associated Press).—American commercial toes are being trampled on rather freely in the Ruhr occupation, and the Berlin and Paris embassies, it is learned, are busy forwarding to Washington complaints from American concerns whose goods are tied up by the export tax the French have imposed and by the upset in the transportation situation.

Dyestuffs, silks, chemicals, machinery, gloves and other manufactured cotton and woolen articles make up most of the delayed shipments. Even goods which were contracted for and paid for before the French occupied the Ruhr are being held, it is stated, although in each case the announcement is made that the case will be investigated on its merits and the interests of the American buyers protected. The German manufacturers say they dare not speed the shipments by paying the taxes demanded by the French, as in that case the German Government would punish them for treason.

Concerns at Crefeld, the German silk centre, have many contracts with Americans for silks, velvets and other specialties, which are tied up. At least 40 per cent. of Germany's dyestuffs factories are within the area the French now are holding. The German plants of the International Harvester Company and the National Radiator Company at Neuss are both within the French lines, and their operation is greatly hindered by the Ruhr occupation.

Up to date the Washington Government has not announced any policy so far as is known here, and the American exporters are at sea in the confusion and disorder which have swept over the Ruhr and much of the adjoining industrial territory engulfed in the transportation disorganization. The British, Dutch and Swiss exporters are in the same plight as the Americans, and promises by the French that their claims will be investigated offer slight comfort to buyers of seasonable goods, which they fear may be indefinitely delayed.

Potash shipments for America have not been affected.

ITALIANS DEMAND RUHR SETTLEMENT

ITALIAN LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Prospect of Being Summoned by America and Britain to Pay War Debts Adds to Discontent.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 9.—The fact that official Italy views with dismay the prospect of a long, drawn-out struggle between France and Germany in the Ruhr has long been no secret. This same feeling of dismay is rapidly spreading among large sections of the population and is finding vocal expression through the medium of the daily press.

That France under the Treaty of Versailles has a legal right to seize the Ruhr after the Reparation Commission had proclaimed Germany in default, nobody disputes. What is disputed is whether France is likely to gain any material advantages out of her occupation of the Ruhr. General opinion here is that she will not.

"France's action is fatally destined to exhaust both her own and Germany's financial resources." "Resumption of war hinders the resumption of productive activity which was only beginning again in both countries." "France is depriving Germany of her last chance to fulfill her pledges and France is depriving herself of corresponding advantages." "The prizes which France seizes by violence are hardly sufficient to pay the costs of her army of occupation."

Italy Counts the Cost to Herself.

But Italy has an even more specific interest in what France is doing in the Ruhr because French action is seriously affecting her pocket. It is noticed here that Italy is harmed in three ways: First, Italy is now receiving no German reparations while before, though she did not get much, she got something; Second, impoverishment of Germany closes to Italy one of her most fruitful markets. Last year Italy exported over 1,000,000,000 lire worth of goods to Germany, but it is expected that this amount will be considerably reduced this year thus injuring Italy's far from satisfactory trade balance; Third, the unsettled state of Europe discourages tourists many of whom came to Italy and represented a considerable source of revenue.

The newspaper Epocha calls attention to yet another way in which the Ruhr occupation hurts Italy. America, according to that newspaper, is beginning to ask herself why Europe has not enough money to pay her debts when she has plenty of money to wage wars. This argument is extended from France to cover also Italy which American public opinion lumps in with the rest of Europe.

"We are therefore threatened on the one side with the danger of being called on to pay our debts and on the other hand all hope of obtaining reparations is steadily vanishing, says the Epocha."

The public here is seriously beginning to ask whether France cannot be made legally responsible for German reparations which used to come to Italy, and which have ceased to do so now.

Debt Terms Likely to Be Harder.

It is also generally granted here that England since consolidation of her debt to America cannot afford to be liberal with her allies in the matter of their debts to her. If England were now to offer to come to definite agreement on inter-allied debts her conditions would probably be harder than those she offered in January.

It will be remembered that England on that occasion offered to cancel Italy's debts if Italy gave up her claim to the gold deposited in the Bank of England and to 1,500,000,000 gold marks of German reparations. These conditions were in reality very liberal because the Italian gold deposited in the Bank of England is not even one year's interest on the total of her debt while the billion and a half gold marks is a small fraction of the total reparations owed to Italy by Germany. It is doubtful, however, whether England could offer similar conditions now because the French occupation of Ruhr has hit England in much the same way as it has hit Italy.

Italy therefore finds herself worse off as regards her debts to her allies and at the same time her revenue and her exports are diminished. The feeling is growing that the Government ought to take a firm stand and insist on Germany and France coming together and finding a way out of the present impossible situation.

POINCARE EXPECTS EARLY PEACE OFFER

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

State bearing a relation to the Central German Government somewhat similar to the present relation of Bavaria to Berlin. Another suggestion is an internationally controlled State under the League of Nations, or one policed by the Allies. Still another plan is to neutralize the entire zone. All these suggestions lead to one object—to prevent German territory from touching French soil.

That group of French opinion demanding only reparations is itself divided into sub-groups. One of these demands payment at any price, with the French staying in the Ruhr until Germany yields, advancing even to Berlin in order to dictate terms.

Another argues that the French cannot get both reparations and security, and that if the latter is to be assured it must come through the welding of the Ruhr, Sarre and Lorraine industrial and economic interests in such a manner that another war would mean ruin to all the owners of these interests. One detail of this plan would be to give French interests a 25 per cent. share in the Ruhr industries.

Gradual Withdrawal Suggested.

PARIS, March 9.—The importance of the Brussels conference is indicated by the fact that M. Poincaré is taking along M. Maginot, Minister of War; M. Le Trocquer, Minister of Public Works; General Degoutte, commander of the French forces in the Ruhr, and M. Tirard, High Commission, of the Rhineland. M. Peretti della Rocca, the political director at the Foreign Office, probably will be included.

It is asserted on good authority that the French conditions will provide that the troops in the Ruhr and Rhineland will be withdrawn proportionately as Germany pays reparations.

The most interesting angle of the situation is the report that Great Britain is working desperately to break Belgium away from France, thus isolating France in the Ruhr. It is admitted that the Belgian Parliament is deeply concerned over the situation in the Ruhr.

The French Foreign Office denies strongly that Belgian dissatisfaction with the advance into the Ruhr is responsible for the meeting of the Premiers.

SOVIETS MAY CONTROL CHINESE EASTERN ROAD

Agreemet With Peking and Private Shareholders Seems Likely to Be Signed.

MOSCOW, March 9.—If any one in America still doubts whether the Soviet Government is really the established Government in Russia he may be enlightened by details of the reorganization scheme of the Chinese Eastern Railroad which will soon go into effect as the result of an agreement entered into by the Soviet Government, the Chinese Government and the Baron Putiloff, representing private shareholders in the company as it existed before the revolution.

In this company the majority of the shares were held by the Russian Government and private financial interests, especially the Russo-Asiatic Bank, of which Putiloff was President. The Chinese Government had a minority holding, but when the Bolsheviki seized power they declared that they would give up "all imperialist concessions" granted to former Russian capitalists in other countries, so that for a time China may have imagined that she owned the railroad outright.

But that period of altruism, when the Bolsheviki expected the whole world to follow their example and establish a workers' Utopia, did not last long. The Russians found that the Chinese Eastern Railroad had actually become a weapon in the hands of their enemies—Kolchak, Ungarn-Sternberg and Semenoff. So Soviet Russia reasserted her claim. The negotiations dragged on until a few weeks ago, when Putiloff, after conversations with the Soviet cooperatives' representative in Paris, Skobeleff, announced that he was ready to throw in his lot with the Soviet Government of Russia.

Today I learn from an official source that the agreement referred to awaits only Joffe's return to Peking, and perhaps slight modifications of its details, for signature. The line is to be managed by a mixed company with majority control in the hands of the Russian State Bank and the semi-official Moscow Industrial Bank. Minority participation is to be granted to the Chinese Government on the one hand and to Putiloff, who has agreed to act as adviser to the company, on the other. It is likely that he will visit Moscow in the near future.

Another hardly less notable accession to the ranks of Soviet supporters is Professor Grimm, former rector of Petrograd University, who recently accepted the editorship of a Bolshevist newspaper in Belgrade.

PARIS, March 9.—Mrs. Rudolph Laurenz, who, according to the lawyer for Mrs. Donald Malcolm, former wife of Stephen C. Millett of New York, is the mother of the present Mrs. Millett, alleged to be a former artist's model and actress here, tried today to get in touch with Mrs. Millett. Telephoning to the hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Millett are staying, she was answered by a woman who said she was Mrs. Millett. "This is Mrs. Laurenz," said the aged woman, "I would like to see you."

"I don't know any Mrs. Laurenz," came the reply as the receiver was hung up.

Mrs. Laurenz, who said she had not seen her daughter for fifteen years, believed the voice she heard was hers.

From photographs the detectives have shown her she said she was confident that Mrs. Millett was her daughter. Her son also, she said, had recognized the picture of Mrs. Millett as that of his sister.

"Just to think my Irene, whom I haven't seen for so long, is right up the street and I cannot see her," said the old woman in tears.

"When she had her fine apartment in Avenue Victor Hugo years ago she made me promise never to say I was her mother, and I always used to eat in the kitchen. But she's my daughter and I don't want her to get in any trouble. What if she did call herself Miss MacNeal? That was her stage name, and if it suits her and her husband I don't see that it is any one's business. MacNeal was the name of the first wife of her father."

LADY ASTOR PILOTS BILL AGAINST LIQUOR

clear that the noble lady has sufficient of the devil in her to make it certain that if she was prohibited tasting anything she wanted to taste, that little bit of devil would make the desire to taste it much greater. Is that not also so of the young men and young girls?"

He suggested for a saloonkeeper's prayer: "From all grandmotherly legislation, good Lord, deliver us."

Lady Astor—Amen.

The Labor Party gave its support to the bill, but Rear Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt drew on his experiences of manual labor in San Francisco to press the need of a schooner of beer to keep the worker going. He also told how, recently in America, he had gone with one of her best citizens into a grocer's shop. He was a perfectly upright grocer, but he came up to his friend and asked: "How are you off for gin? I have excellent gin for 62." Sir Guy's friend questioned its quality, as he had had to pay 70 recently. The grocer was indignant and exclaimed, "Sir, my honor is involved."

A good deal of amusement was caused by the unavailing efforts of Mr. Scrymgeour, the only professed prohibitionist in the House, to catch the Speaker's eye, and also by an appeal to himself by Sir Frederick Banbury as proof that the consumption of beer before the age of 13 did not injure a man's looks. "When I was at Winchester College," he said, "we always had beer for dinner and beer for supper. I understand a member of the Labor Party, who is about to oppose the bill, also drank beer when at the same school." "But what beer it was," exclaimed E. G. Himmerde, the member in question; "it was a concoction of soda water."

"It was probably more alcoholic than the beer brewed today," retorted Sir Frederick Banbury; "that is of very little use to anybody."

Sir Frederick spoke of the difficulty saloonkeepers would have in deciding whether a boy or girl was under 18. "I don't know what women have done to themselves in the last thirty years," he said, "but I defy anybody to say that a woman of 40 does not often look only 25, while a girl of 13 does very often look 25. It depends very much on the way they do their hair. [Laughter.] I have known boys with whiskers at the age of 17, while others of 21 or 22 have looked much younger."

Colonel Archer-Shee agreed, and added: "Many members of the house would be refused a drink if the publicans had to go by appearances and the honorable lady who introduced the bill would most likely be turned out." [Laughter.]

LONDON, March 9.—Opposing Lady Astor's bill today in the House of Commons against the sale of liquor in saloons to minors under 18, Sir Frederick Banbury, a member of the City of London Council, said that drinking was going out of fashion and that one seldom saw a member of the upper classes drunk.

DICTATOR CHOSEN IN BAVARIAN PLOT

FRENCH CAPTAIN ACCUSED

Mayer Was Said to Be a Go-Between for Minister Dard and M. Alize.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 9.—The Munich Government continues silence regarding the recently discovered monarchist conspiracy there, but the Berlin newspapers print various versions which agree on one point, namely, that the scheme had the support of M. Alize, former French Minister to the Bavarian capital, and M. Dard, the present Minister, who were represented at meetings of the conspirators, it is declared, by an ex-captain of the French army named Mayer.

The Lokal-Anzeiger says it has information that Captain Mayer was present on the night the fifteen conspirators were arrested, but that somehow he contrived to escape. The same paper reports that the Bavarian Government managed to seize "a whole transport of field guns, evidently of French origin," consigned to Dr. Kuehlen, the plotter who committed suicide.

In Professor Fuch's house a mass of documents was discovered providing for every phase of the proposed revolution from the first proclamation of a new form of the State to appointments in the Cabinet and to other high offices. By notes on the latter subject many prominent men of Munich and Nuremburg seem compromised, but it is quite likely that the names of some were used without their knowledge.

The proclamation discovered leaves open the question whether the new State was to become a monarchy. From other documents it appears that the conspirators' principal aim was to separate as much Bavarian territory as possible from the German federation under the dictatorship of a strong man whose name has not yet been made known. This dictatorship was not to be established under French protection and was to be gradually extended over the whole of Germany.

The Tageblatt states that one of the conspirators arrested is a wholesale coal dealer of Munich, Herr Munck, who is of Czech origin. Munck and Kuehles were closely associated and they tried to make arrangements with Czechoslovakia to provide the necessary coal for Bavaria in case the revolution should isolate Bavaria from the rest of Germany. The Tageblatt says that one German coal syndicate got wind of these arrangements and communicated with the Bavarian Government, which was then compelled to take energetic measures.

'UNCLE JOE' BACK HOME 'TO EAT AND SLEEP'

Air Bombs and a Few Friends Greet Him—Now He Will 'Enjoy Life.'

DANVILLE, Ill., March 9 (Associated Press).—"I am just plain Citizen Joe Cannon now, back in my home town to spend the balance of my days with my folks," said Uncle Joe Cannon upon his arrival home this afternoon.

A salute of aerial bombs and a few friends gathered at the station constituted the greeting he received. Later the home folks intend to hold a banquet at which he will be chief guest, when they will formally welcome him.

After greeting "the boys" at the station, "Citizen" Cannon was escorted to his home, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Helen Cannon, and spent a quiet evening chatting with several old friends who called.

"It required considerable fortitude to interrupt the many pleasant friendships I enjoyed at Washington for so many years," he said, "but I said that I'd get back to Danville. This is my home and all of my domestic interests are centred here, I'm going to enjoy life with the home folks.

"I'm out of politics now, and from this time on, I'm going to get all the sleep and rest I want, and eat all I want, and just take life easy."

CHICAGO, March 9.—"Back to Illinois!" were Uncle Joe" Cannon's words as he stepped from a train here today into a whirling March wind. The words were softly spoken, and he brushed his hand across moist eyes. Then, spying old friends, he exclaimed:

"How's everything? How you and the folks been?"

"Shoot!" but make it snappy. Shoot all at once, every one of you."

Mr. Cannon refused to discuss women in politics or answer other political questions, but he talked almost wistfully of home. At one time he said:

"And I guess I will, too."

It Accepts Political Clauses of the Lausanne Treaty With Slight Modifications.

BALKS AT ECONOMIC PART

Couched in Moderate Terms, It Suggests That Further Negotiations Be Held.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 9 (Associated Press).—The Turkish Government's reply to the Allied peace proposals arrived here by courier from Angora this afternoon and was handed to the British, French and Italian High Commissioners. Copies will also be delivered to the American and Japanese representatives.

The whole note is couched in most moderate language and suggests the resumption of the negotiations in some European city, preferably Constantinople. The note comprises 115 pages.

The note says that there are no fundamental modifications proposed in the political clauses of the draft treaty. Turkey, however, desires sovereignty of Castelorizza (off the southern coast of Asia Minor) and the small islands dependent upon the island of Tenedos (off the west coast of Asia Minor). She also suggests the Maritza River "Thalweg" (lowest point of the valley) as the frontier of Thrace, rather than the right bank of the river.

Regarding the economic clauses of the draft treaty, the note proposes that Clauses 71 to 117, upon which agreement has not been reached, be disjoined from the draft and subsequently discussed.

Part IV. of the draft treaty, dealing with communications and sanitary questions, is accepted with slight modification. Part V., dealing with prisoners of war, is accepted in full.

As regards the régime for foreigners, the note insists on the same prerogatives for Turkish subjects in Allied States as for foreigners in Turkey.

The note states that the text of the draft treaty has therefore been modified to avoid any disposition contrary to international practice.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 9.—The courier bringing the Turkish counter-proposals to the treaty of peace proposed by the Allies at Lausanne arrived at Constantinople at 9 o'clock tonight, and the Foreign Office staff is busy translating the 200 pages in the document.

Immediately upon the arrival of the courier, a summary was presented to the allied high commissioners here by Adnan Bey, which will be followed by the detailed proposals as soon as the translation is completed.

The summary declares:

First—The Turks are willing to accept the allied territorial conditions.

Second—Concerning the financial clauses, the Turks declare the Ottoman debt is strictly an internal question and hence cannot be regulated by the allies. They hold that the debt must be distributed over the Dodecanese Islands and other parts of the former Ottoman Empire which had a part in contracting the debt and which at present do not belong to Turkey. Arbitration is recommended for the part of the debt concerning the Bagdad and other railroads. A delay of twenty years is asked for in the payment of interest which accrued since 1914 for Turkey proper, the cut-off territories paying a proportionate share.

Turkey considers that France's demand for 12,000,000 pounds Turkish (the normal value of a Turkish pound is $4.39), is regulated by counter claims of 8,000,000 pounds Turkish against England for undelivered battleships and 4,000,000 pounds Turkish in gold sent to Austria and Germany in the course of the war to cover Turkish notes. This gold was partitioned by the Allies at Versailles.

The Turks demand that the economic clauses which were not agreed on be separated from the main body of the treaty for further negotiations.

NO SMYRNA RESTORATION.

Rebuilding Has Not Been Attempted —Streets Still Blocked by Debris.

SMYRNA, March 9 (Associated Press).—Although more than five months have elapsed since Smyrna was laid waste by the great fire, not a single brick has been restored. Indeed, little effort has been made to clear away the masses of shattered stone and mangled iron girders that block almost every thoroughfare. The great seaport still resembles San Francisco the day after the earthquake and fire. Leaning, insecure walls, tottering cornices and gutted roadways are a constant menace to pedestrians.

Smoke still issues from the fire-swept warehouses of the American tobacco companies. Millions of pounds of the finest Turkish tobacco which were destined for the American market lie two floors deep in these storehouses, forming a smoldering furnace that gives off a peculiarly pungent odor. Months of rain and the combined efforts of the Turkish and foreign fire-fighters have failed to extinguish the smoking mass of sodden leaf.

Only the blackened walls of the American Consulate remain. In addition to the destruction of many valuable state documents, George Horton, the American Consul General, who is a Greek scholar, lost an entire library of books on Greece. The present American Consulate, one of the few fine buildings that escaped the fire, is the busiest place in Smyrna. A. Wallace Treat, the young and popular Consul, in addition to his own manifold duties, looks after British interests and is a sort of liaison officer between the Kemalists and the Allies.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, March 9.—Dr. Wassermann announced today in an interview with German newspapers that he had worked out a blood reaction test for detecting the presence of active tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Wassermann asserts that most humans are infected with latent tuberculosis from birth, but healthy humans are able to throw it off or check its spread, keeping the germs from becoming active. He declares one of the greatest values of this new test will be to give positive assurance of whether children are infected with latent or active tuberculosis germs.

TWO INDICTED FOR MURDER.

Louisiana Moonshiners Accused of Killing Two Deputy Sheriffs.

FRANKLINTON, La., March 9.—Gideon Rester and John Murphy, alleged moonshiners, were indicted today by the Washington Parish Grand Jury for the murder of Robert Wesley Crain and Wiley Pierce, Deputy Sheriffs, who were killed Saturday morning at a moonshine still they were raiding in Betsy Creek Swamp.

Mack Little, his son, Jap Little, and Frank Carter, residents of the section where the still was located, were indicted as accessories, charged with having aided in concealing the crime.

Trials of the indicted men are expected to begin next week.

BEEDY INVITED BY SOVIETS.

Maine Representative Will Soon Sail for an Extended Tour of Russia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—On the invitation of the Soviet Government, Representative Carroll L. Beedy of Maine will make an extended tour of Russia to observe the workings of Bolshevism and to study conditions existing under the régime. Representatitfe Beedy will sail from New York with Mrs. Beedy March 17 and expects to arrive in Petrograd by May 1.

A similar invitation was extended some time ago to Senator Borah of Idaho, but it is understood that he is unable to make the trip at this time. So far as is known, Representative Beedy is the only member of Congress who has been asked to make the tour.

"I want it understood," said he today, "that I am paying my own expenses and that there are no strings to the invitation. I have no preconceived idea, one way or the other, of how successful the Soviet Government is, nor do I know in advance anything about conditions in Russia. I will withhold my judgment until I have made the investigation."

The invitation came to Mr. Beedy through Boris Skvirsky, the representative here of the Soviet Government. Skvirsky came to the United States at the time of the Washington conference as the representative of the Far Eastern Republic.

TRACE ACTRESS'S DEATH.

Chicago Police Seek "Lee" When Mrs. Ackerman Expires.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Search for a man whose first name is "Lee" was begun tonight by the police in an attempt to clear up the death of Mrs. Helen Crawford Ackerman, an actress, who died suddenly today in a rooming house at 4,242 Grand Boulevard. The only clues which the searchers have are cards addressed in endearing terms, signed "Lee," and several photographs of a young man.

At the conclusion of a preliminary examination by Dr. Norman Zoila of the Coroner's office he said that he could find no cause for death. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Letters in Mrs. Ackerman's possession lead the police to believe that the young woman's home may have been in Hackensack or Union, N. J. An empty envelope, stamped and ready to mail, was addressed to James C. Agnew in the latter town. Markings on her trunk indicated that she may have been at one time a member of the Fred Stone Company.

FORT MYER BARRACKS BURN

One Building Destroyed, Another Damaged—Loss, $110,000.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Fire broke out tonight in the barracks of enlisted men at Fort Myer, just across the Potomac River from Washington. Fire-fighting apparatus was rushed to the scene from Washington in an effort to confine the flames to one building, in which about one hundred men were quartered.

All of the men, it was stated at the reservation, got out of the building in safety.

The fire, destroying the building in which it originated, spread to an unoccupied wing of the hospital. Fifty patients were removed to safety.

Fifteen firemen and soldiers were injured, none seriously, in fighting the flames, which did damage estimated at $110,000.

INVENTED "PORTERHOUSE."

Woman Who Brought Fame to the Special Cut Dies at 87.

MILFORD, N. H., March 9.—Mrs. Anna F. Remich, who brought fame to a hotel and to a particular cut of beefsteak, died here yesterday.

Soon after the close of the Civil War Mrs. Remich became cook at the Porter House in North Cambridge, Mass., close to what was then called Fortes Station on the Fitchburg Railroad. Her skill made the hotel noted as a place for good food. She developed such skill in carving steaks from the sides of heavy beef that the tender cuts she served became known as porterhouse steaks.

The hotel is gone now, but the porterhouse steak is a common market term.

Mrs. Remich was 87 years old and a native of Lowell, Mass.

CHIROPRACTIC ISSUE RAISED

Bill is Introduced in Legislature Increasing Penalty for Practitioners.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—Under a bill introduced by Assemblyman Lattin, Republican of Orleans, the chiropractors of the State will have to renew the fight which resulted in one of the biggest hearings of last year's session.

The Lattin bill, the sponsor of which is a physician, provides that any one convicted of the illegal practice of medicine is subject to a fine of $50 or imprisonment for not more than six months or both. Through action by the Attorney General an additional penalty of $500 for each offense may be collected.

Senator Tells Them He is for Just Compensation for War Veterans.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, addressing members of the Belleau Wood Post, marines, last night in the 104th Field Artillery Armory, Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, said he was "heart and soul for just compensation for World War Veterans." He told the veterans he will be at their service as a legislator, and will stand for any legislation that will benefit them.

Senator Copeland urged the former marines to stand up and demand just treatment of the wounded, and asked them to visit wounded men confined in the Government hospitals whenever possible. He said that New York should have more base hospitals for the care of wounded soldiers than the one in the Bronx.

IS ARRESTED AS FORGER.

Old I. R. T. Employe Charged With Padding Concern's Time Sheets.

Accused of having padded the time sheets of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the last year, during which time he was alleged to have defrauded the company out of $5,200, William R. Bayne, 46 years old, of 2,721 Farragut Road, Brooklyn, for years an employe of the company, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night charged with forgery.

Bayne is alleged to have given employes of the company credit on the time sheets for more time than they had actually worked and to have obtained half of the wages paid them for the "faked" period. He was arrested at the I. R. T. car barns at 146th Street and Lenox Avenue.

$15,000 FOR BOY'S DEATH.

Butcher Sure His Son Would Have Become Famous Violinist.

A jury before Judge John B. Zabriskie in Court of Commons Pleas in Jersey City yesterday awarded $15,000 damages to Alexander Kopko, a butcher of 403 Grove Street, Jersey City, in his suit for $25,000 damages against the New York Live Poultry Trucking Company of West Hoboken, for the death of his son, Walter, 13 years old, on July 3, last. The Kopko boy was killed by a motor truck while crossing the street.

Congressman Charles Francis X. O'Brien, counsel for Kopko, brought out that the boy had been an accomplished violinist and that his parents had expected that he would have become a noted musician.

JERSEY NULLIFIES TAX EXEMPTION LAW

JUSTICE BERGEN'S RULING

Arbitrary Classification of Property Unconstitutional—May Set Precedent for New York.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 9.—Tax exemption as an encouragement to new buildings in New Jersey was declared unconstitutional by the Court of Errors and Appeals today in affirming a similar decision handed down in the Supreme Court about a year ago, so that Jersey municipalities may continue to assess new properties which were to have been exempt for five years under the Runyon act of 1920.

In handing down the decision of the court Justice Bergen ruled that the Runyon act was unconstitutional because it created an arbitrary classification of property. The prior decision of the Supreme Court was affirmed in detail in a short opinion written by Justice Bergen.

Just how far this decision might be used as a precedent if cities in New York decided to assess properties built under the New York tax exemption law lawyers in this case were not prepared to predict today, but the general opinion seemed to be that the Jersey case would set a strong precedent for all cases of that kind in all States.

Unlike New York, New Jersey immediately disregarded its tax exemption law, and all municipalities taxed new buildings pending final settlement of the case in the courts. As soon as the Runyon law was passed by the State Legislature in 1920 the Attorney General wrote an opinion that the act was unconstitutional, and New Jersey municipalities went right ahead taxing properties without regard to tax exemption.

Test Started in Jersey City.

The test of the constitutionality of the Runyon act was started in Jersey City, where Pauline Brunstein challenged the right of the assessors of Jersey City to levy taxes on property which she had improved in expectation of the benefits of the Tax Exemption law. The assessors there contended that the law was unconstitutional and both sides decided to carry it to the highest court in the State for settlement.

Tax exemption in New Jersey lost in every legal contest, and the decision today closes the case in the State courts. There was no indication today of any further legal battle over the constitutionality of the act. The decision means a saving of several thousands of dollars to the muncipalities, particularly in Jersey City, Newark, and the larger cities, where there has been much building in the last four years.

Exemption Here Expires March 31.

In this State there has been no serious legal contest over the constitutionality of the law providing tax exemption on new buildings for ten years, though there has been much controversy over the subject. Unlike New Jersey, this city has not put the new buildings on the assessment lists, so that no property owner has found it necessary to ask the courts for a ruling. The period during which tax-exempt structures may be erected expires at the end of this month.

When the Supreme Court in New Jersey rendered its opinion on March 1, 1922, on the unconstitutionality of the Jersey law, Henry H. Curran, former President of the Borough of Manhattan, and sponsor of the New York law, said that he did not believe that the New York law could be attacked on the same grounds. He said he believed that the law here would withstand attack, and none has been made upon it in the courts.

Henry M. Goldfogle, President of the Tax Board, estimated last August that the city had lost $2,294,831 in taxes through exemption in 1921, and that the total for the ten-year period would be close to $23,000,000. In New Jersey the tax boards contended that the decision of the Supreme Court enabled them to lower their tax rates materially.

42 NOT TOO OLD.

Time Yet to Learn to Read, Says Naturalization Judge.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, March 9.—"I'm too old to learn to read, I am 42 years old," said an applicant for citizenship papers to Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. in the White Plains Naturalization Court today.

"You are not too old, you are just beginning to live," remarked Justice Taylor. "I am older than you, and I am learning something new every day."

could be removed to the sanitarium again.

Mrs. Seip is said to be the widow of a Michigan lumber operator, and, so the story goes, was a belle in Washington during the Hayes Administration.

Young Seip came of a distinguished family. One of his uncles was A. A. Birney, a prominent lawyer of Washington and at one time United States attorney for the District of Columbia. His grandfather, General William Birney, born in Alabama in 1819, took part in the revolution of 1848 while studying in Paris. He was Professor of English Literature in the college at Bourges, France. In 1861 he enlisted as a private in the Union army and at the end of the war held a commission as Brevet Major General. He commanded a division between 1863 and 1865 and took part in the battle of Gettysburg. Between 1874 and 1877 he was counsel for the District of Columbia. He retired from law practice in 1900.

The window from which Seip leaped is just at the point where the monument begins to slope sharply to an acute peak. Above the window the monument rises fifty feet further, for the entire distance from the tip to the base of the great shaft is 555 feet, while the window is 504 feet from the ground.

Records show that Seip is the first person who ever leaped from the windows, although a woman, Mrs. Mae Cockrell, of Covington, Ky., threw herself 500 feet down the elevator shaft in February, 1915.

Dr. William Tindall, a historian in the District of Columbia, is authority for the statement that in the early '80s, when the shaft had reached a height of only 180 feet, a cat pursued by a dog jumped off the top of the structure, and when it struck the earth another dog attacked the cat and killed it. Some years ago when Charlie Street, catcher on the Washington baseball club, caught a ball dropped from the windows, scientists made extensive calculations on the speed of the ball and the poundage at which it struck the catcher's mitt.

Scientists estimated today that only 5.9 seconds were consumed today between the time Seip left the window ledge and the time his body smashed into the flagging. The force at which he struck the earth was estimated at 300,000 foot-pounds or about 150 footons. This was explained as a force that would raise a 150-ton weight one foot.

CHEER FIGHT PLANS FOR MILEAGE BOOK

READY FOR COURT BATTLE

1,500 Attend Meeting of Traveling Men's Council—Brady Pledges Support.

Vigorous protests against the reported intention of the railroads to contest the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the issuance of interchangeable mileage books were voiced last night at a mass-meeting held by the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Association in the Astor ballroom. About 1,500 persons attended, including salesmen, buyers and representatives of theatrical and business interests.

Attacks on the railroads were cheered, and resolutions were adopted pledging the association to fight any attempt of the railroads to avoid compliance with the order. The speakers included A. M. Loeb, President of the association; former Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, William A. Brady and Victor Leighton, representing the theatrical interests; Representative Arthur Free of California, and George W. Furey, former President of the Far Western Travelers' Association.

According to the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission 2,500-mile books, good on all roads, are to be issued at a reduction of 20 per cent. below the prevailing one-way passenger rates. The regular fare for 2,500 miles travel is $90 and the books would be sold for $72.

Mr. Loeb said that, in his opinion, the chief benefit from the sale of interchangeable mileage books would not be the mere saving to industry of $80,000,000 annually. "I believe," he said, "that every dollar of this vast sum and much more will revert to the railroads through the added impetus this reduction in the high cost of travel will give to business generally. If the railroads want a fight they can have one."

Senator Smith was cheered when he said that he "had not the slightest idea that the railroads could sustain a fight in the courts."

The co-operation of the theatrical interests was pledged by Mr. Brady. "In behalf of the theatre I am told to tell you that there is no limit that we will not go to in backing up the traveling salesmen to bring down the railroad rates," he said. "The private opinion of the theatre people is that the railroads are the biggest hogs in the country."

Mr. Leighton, a theatrical traffic man, said that before the war companies were carried at 3½ cents a mile, while now it cost them 90 cents.

Many telegrams from business concerns favoring the interchangeable mileage books were read at the meeting.

AGED WOMAN MURDERED.

Bruised Body of Brooklyn Woman Found in Flat Here.

The bruised body of Miss Kate Griffin, 67 years old, of 192 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, was found by Detectives Nammack and Mitchell of the Clinton Street Station late yesterday in a first-floor apartment at 96 Goerck Street, when they answered telephone calls for police assistance.

John Donohue, 63 years old, of 202 Stanton Street, was arrested and locked up in the Clinton Street Station charged with homicide in connection with the murder. In the station house he appeared to be in a daze, told the police he remembered nothing and is alleged to have said that he had taken "a few drinks."

Miss Griffin was a maid in the employ of a family at the McDonough Street address and went to the Goerck Street apartment yesterday to visit her lifelong friend, Mrs. Katherine Solomon. Mrs. Solomon went out for a short time, leaving her friend in the apartment alone.

Detectives learned that neighbors heard screams in the apartment but did not investigate. According to the police, Mrs. Solomon returned to her apartment three hours later and found her friend's body on the floor and Donohue, employed as cleaner in the building, in the same room.

Mrs. Solomon ran to the street screaming and the Clinton Street station was notified by a neighbor. According to the police examination of the body showed bruises that indicated she had been terribly beaten and kicked about the body, head and face.

REVIVE MONITOR MEMORIES.

Ericsson Society Celebrates Sixty-first Anniversary of Battle.

The memory of Captain John Ericsson, designer of the famous ironclad Monitor and inventor of the propeller, was honored last night at the Engineers Club, 32 West Fortieth Street, by the Captain John Ericsson Memorial Society of Engineers. Yesterday was the sixty-first anniversary of the fight at Hampton Roads between the "Yankee cheese-box on a raft" and the Confederate Merrimac.

Colonel Philip E. Dodge, H. F. J. Porter, H. A. Gillis, Dr. Pehr Stigner, Erik Hammerstrom and John E. Franzen were speakers. Colonel Dodge, who went from Washington to Hampton Roads in the Monitor, said that the battle of Hampton Roads was the most important in the Civil War because the genius of John Ericsson saved the entire Union fleet from annihilation. Mr. Porter told of memoirs he had collected concerning the first vessels in this country to be equipped with the screw propeller which were built at Oswego, N. Y. He announced that a collection of Ericssonia was to be opened to the public in the near future.

HOSTESS TO EQUITY PLAYERS

Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff Entertains at Tea at Her Residence.

Mrs. Lewis B. Woodruff was the hostess yesterday of the members of the Equity Players at her residence, 14 East Sixty-eighth Street. A number of people were asked to meet them and tea was served. Frank Gillmore and Miss Helen McKellar of the Players made brief addresses and Olin Howland and others did various bits. Mrs. Walter Kobbe 2d and Miss Frances Butler were at the tea table.

Among those who accepted invitations were Mrs. W. Lanman Bull, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carr, Mrs. Daniel Chester French, Dr. Frits Holm and Mrs. Holm, Mrs. Samuel Van Dusen, Dr. Graham Lusk and Mrs. Lusk, Dr. William Lusk, Mrs. William Sloan, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Wickcliffe Rose, Mrs. George Dallas Yeomans, Hans Alline, a Swedish playwright; Mrs. Robert Kelly Prentice, Louise Closser Hale, Marie Dressler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trowbridge, Mrs. George P. Robbins, F. D. Gallatin, Mrs. Ronald B. Curtis, Robert Grier Cooke, George T. Brokaw, Thomas E. Desmond and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hurd.

Fireman Hurt at Muldoon's Farm.

SKI-PLANING BRINGS NEW THRILL TO SPORT

GARDEN CITY, March 9.—A new thrill was added to American outdoor sport today when Lawrence Sperry, inventor of the Sperry messenger plane, demonstrated to "movie" camera men and newspaper photographers his latest sport—ski-planing. It's a new relative to aquaplaning, only one uses an airplane and a pair of skis instead of a motor boat and water sled. Spectators crowded the links of the Cherry Valley Golf Club this afternoon and watched boys of the neighborhood being towed on skis across the snow-covered inclines of the golf park by the diminutive messenger plane. At times the skis were swept along at a speed of more than sixty miles an hour.

Sperry succeeded in holding his airplane as low as five feet above the earth as he sped along the course, but was forced to rise higher when approaching the grove that lines the outer bounds of the club's property. The skiers would release their hold on the ropes tied to the wings and tail skid of the plane as they approached the trees.

To demonstrate the unusual qualities of the small plane Sperry went down the side of a forty-foot embankment, almost perpendicular, without turning over. The machine was outfitted with skids during the demonstration.

The inventor conducted successful trials yesterday at Mitchel Field, where he demonstrated how the airplanes could come within a few feet of each other without collision.

SERRATI ACCUSED OF PLOTTING TREASON

Italian Socialists Plan Strong Fight for Socialist Editor Recently Arrested.

ROME, March 9.—Menotti Serrati, Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies and director of the Socialist newspaper Avanti, who was arrested recently, has been accused of a crime against his country by aiming to submit his country to foreign domination, undermining its independence and breaking up its unity. The Italian code prescribes penal servitude for life upon conviction.

The Socialists are preparing a most powerful legal defense for Signor Serrati, engaging the services of eminent Socialist counsel.

Serrati was arrested on March 1, shortly after his return to Milan from Russia, where he had gone as a Socialist Commissioner to attend meetings of the Third International. He was interviewed with communism on his return and, finding that his policies had been disavowed by the members of his newspaper staff, he dismissed them, appointing communists to take their places.

FREED ON DANCE CHARGE.

Greenwich Village Restaurant Man Faces Other Accusations.

After a woman witness in Special Sessions yesterday had described a dance called the "Chicago" Robert Cushman, proprietor of a restaurant at 3 Cornelia Street, Greenwich Village, charged with maintaining a disorderly resort was freed, and the Court announced that additional charges against him impairing the morals of minors and conducting a public nuisance would be called for trial next Monday.

Cushman was arrested last January after detectives of the Vice squad raided his restaurant. He denied that disorderly dancing of any character were permitted in the place. His principal witness was Rose Gebhardt, 21, who described herself as an artist's model and said she lived at 159 West Eightieth Street. She said she saw no improper dancing in the restaurant and contradicted detectives who had testified that young girls sat on the laps of young men and kissed them.

"Have you seen the balconnade?" asked the prosecutor.

"Yes," the witness replied. "It is a sort of shimmy. The girl shakes her shoulders, but I never saw it danced in Cushman's."

Miss Beatrice Marie Villaverde, 17, of 688 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, and her mother, Mrs. Clara Villaverde, testified for the proprietor of the restaurant. The mother told the Court her daughter went to the restaurant with her consent.

In dismissing the charge against Cushman Justice Salmon said: "The dances in the place may have been vulgar, but not indecent. The fact that some of the patrons dance improperly does not make the proprietor guilty of conducting a disorderly house."

DIES OF BULLET WOUND.

Chinese Youth Believed Victim of Doyers Street Quarrel.

Yep Sung, 22 years old, a Chinese, of 3 Pell Street, was taken to Beekman Street Hospital yesterday afternoon with a bullet wound in the abdomen. He died soon after reaching the hospital. Sung was found by police of the Oak Street Station on the floor of a Chinese poolroom at 17½ Doyers Street with a .38 calibre revolver, one chamber of which had been fired, still clutched in his hand. Another revolver, also carrying an empty cartridge, was found in an ash can a few feet away.

According to the police, Sung's death is thought to have been the result of a quarrel between him and Chin Luck, of 3 Pell Street. Sung, they say, was released from the State Penitentiary a few days ago after serving a sentence for felonious assault. Luck, who is said to have objected to his living in the same house, met Sung in the pool room yesterday, and the quarrel followed.

SQUATTERS QUIT MANSION.

Dispossess Action by John E. Andrus in Yonkers Ends.

After a month's litigation a dispossess action brought by John E. Andrus of Yonkers was terminated in Yonkers City Court yesterday by the families of Louis Calcia and Mrs. Paria Piano moving out of an old mansion on South Broadway, Yonkers, in which, it was alleged, they were squatters nine months. For four weeks they defied Mr. Andrus's legal efforts to evict them and then left voluntarily.

The two families, admittedly, never paid any rent for the use of the old residence which was bought by the multi-millionaire nine months ago along with adjoining property. When the action was brought by Mr. Andrus, who feared the building might fall down upon the occupants, Attorney Harry Holmstrom induced Judge Morris L. Rosenwasser to adjourn the case long enough to permit the families to find new quarters. They moved and the action automatically ended yesterday.

PACKER SENT TO TOMBS.

Held on Embezzlement Charge Pending at Wilmington, N. C.

Magistrate Charles E. Simms yesterday in the Tombs Court remanded Robert Williams, 53 years old, who said he was a packer, with an office at 56 East Forty-second Street, to the Tombs without bail when he was arraigned as a fugitive from Wilmington, N. C.

Detective Sergeant Minturn of the Old Slip Station arrested Williams in his office yesterday morning at the request of the Wilmington authorities, who alleged that he had been indicted there for embezzlement. Williams denied the charge.

FIVE KILLED BY GAS, THREE ARE SUICIDES

GRANDPA'S MONEY ALL GONE

Woman, 74, Found Dead in Rocking Chair With a Gas Tube in Her Mouth.

Five deaths were caused by gas yesterday. In three cases the victims ended their lives voluntarily, while the other deaths were accidental. There was still a sixth case in which a man was overcome, but did not die.

Mrs. Kitty Sherman, 74 years old, was found dead in the bathroom of her daughter's apartment at 481 West 165th Street. She was sitting in a rocking chair and had a gas tube in her mouth. Her body was found by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. Braunsford. Despondency due to old age and illness were believed to have moved her to self-destruction.

Lack of money caused Herman Mortzack, 78 years old, to end his life in his furnished room at 112 North Eighth Street, Brooklyn. He took the room three years ago, saying he had plenty of money. The children came to know him as "Grandpa," and loved him for his generous distribution of pennies and lollypops. In the Summer he used to carve boats out of small pieces of wood and give them away to children at the Metropolitan Avenue recreation pier, and he would make snowmen in Winter. Parents used to get him to stay with their little ones while they went out. Recently his gifts had become less abundant, and only last Monday he told his landlady that his funds were running short. She smelled gas yesterday and couldn't open the old man's door. A policeman broke into the room and found "Grandpa" dead in bed.

The motive of George F. Grosch's suicide is said to have been despair, growing out of trouble with his wife. Grosch was 42 years old, lived at 92 North Fifteenth Street, East Orange, N. J., and was a driver for the Ward Baking Company. He quarreled with his wife yesterday morning. Instead of going to work he went to the home of a friend, Edward Cashin, at 4,127 Hudson Boulevard. During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Cashin Grosch lay on the parlor floor and put the gas tube in his mouth. Besides his widow five children are left.

With a pet cat dead on the floor beside her, Annie Williams, 75 years old, was found dead in bed in the home of Edmund Penfold at 10 East Fortieth Street, where she had been a servant for forty years. Gas was escaping from a small heater. The police said her death was an accident.

A peculiar accident caused the death of Michael J. Cooney of 457 Broad Street, Elizabeth, N. J., an employe at the Bayway plant of the Standard Oil Company. Cooney entered the chamber of a condenser box to insert a gas pipe. He plugged the hole in the pipe and was about to leave when the plug blew out. Gas poured into the chamber and overcame him before he could escape. He died as he was being taken to the hospital.

Joseph Millheiser of 855 Cross Street, Elizabeth, was overcome in another curious accident in the same city. An employe of the Elizabethtown Gas Light Company, he was tracing a leak in the mains, and had entered a manhole of the New York Telephone Company, which was ten feet deep with three feet of water at the bottom. The leak caused gas to overcome him, and he fell into the water.

He would have died from either the gas or drowning had not his plight been discovered. The fire department, constabulary, several policemen and two ambulances were called. The gas was so strong in the pit that the firemen were forced back the first time they tried to get a rope around the workman's body and lift him up. They succeeded the second time, and them an was brought around after an hour's work with a pulmotor. He is expected to recover.

aiding in every way possible to locate the missing child.

At the request of Governor Smith, police of the Bureau of Missing Persons are searching for little Leo Minkin of Albany, and his nurse, whose name they understand, is Mary Conkling, and whose age is given as 30.

The boy and his nurse were last seen in Albany early yesterday morning.

Hunt for Pair in Bennington.

BENNINGTON, Vt., March 9.—Local police officers were searching tonight for a woman and boy who corresponded to the description of the nursemaid and 3-year-old son of City Judge Leopold Minkin of Albany, N. Y., who disappeared yesterday. The woman and boy arrived on the 7 o'clock train from North Bennington, which picks up passengers from the Troy train.

The police were handicapped by the fact that two women, each of whom was accompanied by a boy about 3 years old, left the train. One of them, however, is believed to answer the description of the missing nursemaid. Where this woman is located is a mystery.

Officers communicated with Albany detectives and received a message that two police detectives and an operative from a private detective agency were on their way to Bennington to aid in the search. Local police stated that they would have held the woman and boy had they received word in time, but arrived at the station too late to effect a capture.

KIDNAP AND BEAT YOUTH.

Two Men, Posing as Officers, Take Him From Friend's Home.

ROCHESTER, March 9.—Police today are searching for assailants of Roy Ribson, aged 23, who while visiting at the home of a friend last night, was called to the door, seized, handcuffed and spirited away to his own home, where he was flogged unmercifully in an attempt, it is said, to extort from him a confession of his relationship with a girl he does not know.

After the beating the men warned him that he must return to Pennsylvania immediately.

Ribson in recounting his story said he was called to the door by two men wearing badges, apparently those of deputy sheriffs. "They said: 'you are under arrest' and snapped handcuffs on my wrists, he said. He then was pushed and dragged along the street, he said, when one of them felled him with a heavy blow.

Ribson says he was struck repeatedly until he reached his home. When in his room he was again beaten and then robbed. He came to this city from Williamsport, Pa.

SAY BOY RISKED LIFE TO FIRE A BUILDING

CLUE FOUND IN CANDY NOTE

Prisoner Is Alleged to Have Crossed on Wire From Fire Escape to Loft Structure.

Investigation by Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy of two fires which occurred in a twelve-story loft building at 317 to 323 East Thirty-fourth Street on Feb. 19 and Feb. 20 resulted in the arrest last night of 15-year-old Charles Pollero of 326 East Thirty-fourth Street, who was turned over to the Children's Society as the person responsible for the fires.

The boy was taken from Public School 116, Thirty-second Street, near Second Avenue, yesterday afternoon by Detective Ernest Moore of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station and Assistant Fire Marshal Abraham Flamm. He was led to Fire Marshal Brophy's office in the Municipal Building and questioned until late last night, when he was taken to the Children's Society charged with juvenile delinquency.

According to Marshal Brophy, the boy risked injury and possible death in making his way from the fire-escape of his home on the fourth floor of a tenement to the third floor of the loft building.

The fires were started in the space occupied by the Harriett Hubbard Ayer Company, manufacturers of perfume who occupy four floors in the building. On Feb. 19 as the employes of the firm opened the doors at 7:35 A. M. they found a small fire in the rear of the building on the fourth floor. The fire was extinguished before it had gained headway or done much damage. It was then discovered that the sprinkler system had been turned off by some unidentified person, according to Marshal Brophy. None of the firm or employes had turned off the sprinklers and the manner in which it was done was a mystery. None of the doors leading into the place had been forced.

The next morning at 5:06 o'clock the sprinkler system went off, automatically turning in an alarm of fire. Apparatus which responded found a fire on the third floor and several of the sprinklers in action. Investigation disclosed that several desks in the firm's office on that floor had been broken into and a few dollars in silver had been taken from an employe's savings bank.

"Dear Girls:

"I tried your candy but found it too sweet. I would have opened the safe only I left my tools home.

"YOUR LITTLE CALLER."

The note had been printed in pencil on the back of an envelope. Again investigation showed that no instruments had been used to open the doors leading into the place and Fire Marshal Brophy, with Detective Moore, started a hunt for the intruder. After eliminating several suspects, Marshal Brophy said, the search led them to watch the Pollero boy. According to the Fire Marshal, the boy seemed to show more than usual interest in the building in which the fires had occurred and this was reported by guards stationed at the building since the fires. The boy is also alleged to have questioned Assistant Fire Marshals working on the investigation in the neighborhood. He was requested to print certain words in pencil for the Fire Marshal and did so. This resulted in his arrest.

According to Marshal Brophy, the boy made his way into the loft building adjoining his home by swinging across the space between the fire-escapes on the adjoining buildings on a wire attached to the rear wall of the loft building. The Fire Marshal said that the boy arose early in the morning when the rest of his family were asleep, made his way to the fire-escape of his apartment on the top floor of the four-story tenement, and then swung—hand over hand—along the wire for a distance of several feet to the fire-escape of the third floor of the loft building adjoining, risking a fall which meant death.

The third floor of the loft building is almost on the same level as the fourth floor of the tenement. The second fire in the loft building is said to have done damage estimated at $20,000.

WILL INVESTIGATE DEALS.

Atlantic City Real Estate Men Are Ordered Before Commission.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 9.—Sixty-three real estate agents and salesmen of this vicinity were summoned today to appear before the New Jersey Real Estate Commission, now meeting here, to answer complaints of gross negligence and failure to comply with the law.

It has been reported to the members of the State body that certain real estate men here had been unethical in some of their dealings, not only with clients but with other real estate operators. The State body decided to make an investigation.

Mapes Goes With Law Firm Here.

Angevine, well known as a lawyer in Montana and in Washington, has joined the firm.

AIDS IRRIGATION TENANTS.

Secretary Work Tells Plans to Give Relief.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Immediate relief for thousands of farmers located on Federal irrigation projects in the West will be made available under a policy announced today by Secretary Work of the Department of the Interior. The farmers in many cases have been threatened with ruin through their failure to raise sufficient crops to pay charges due the Government for supplying water. Payment of these charges will be deferred under the new policy.

Three classes of relief will be given under authority of an act passed near the end of the recent session of Congress.

Extension of time for payment of construction charges on irrigation ditches due during or before 1925 to Dec. 31, 1924, will serve to relieve many farmers from their most immediate problem. The second class of relief will comprise the furnishing of irrigation water during the season of 1923 regardless of delinquencies in payment of past charges, either for operation or construction due the Government and the third class will permit payment in installments of accrued charges for operation, maintenance and construction.

Secretary Work, in announcing the policy of the department, declared that the question of leniency in the collection of charges due the Government would be considered "from a practical business standpoint and for the best interests of both the Government and the water users."

Must Develop Men Who Think in World Terms, Declares Dr. Burton.

Dr. Marion L. Burton, President of the University of Michigan, in addressing the members of the alumni of that society in New York at their annual dinner in the Hotel Commodore last night told them that he aspired to develop in that institution a true university, something, he said, which has not yet been developed in America. He said that this meant a university to develop men who can think in terms of the destiny of civilization.

"America is in the solemn hour of civilization and it should not be found wanting in leadership, because the world is looking to it for leadership," said President Burton. "I am not thinking in terms of politics, but I am of the profound belief that a university should develop men of that type of mind. What the whole world needs in its distress today is leadership and the United States now has not the leaders who have the ability to compare the relationship between the political and economical in the solution of the world's problems."

United States Senator Copeland, a graduate of Michigan, endorsed President Burton and declared that the men of Michigan University were trying to live up to the convictions and traditions taught them there.

STEAL BERLIN DOOR KNOBS.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, March 9.—Doorknob thieves, who have been making Berlin housewives' lives miserable by stealing doorknobs, hinges and other metal furnishings in apartment house halls, will be punished more severely than those who steal diamonds, furs or other valuables if the legislation now before the Berlin Town Council receives official sanction.

For the last two years these corridor pests have been operating throughout the city, filching all the hardware they could screw loose. New legislation is intended to stop this practice by making the risk greater than the profit.

Red Cross Chairman Leaves Frelinghuysen's Houseboat at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—John Barton Payne, Chairman of the American Red Cross, and a member of President Harding's party, who came to Miami in advance of the Executive with Secretary of Labor Davis, Attorney General Daugherty and others, was removed from former Senator Frelinghuysen's yacht Victoria today to the hotel, where the others of the party are stopping, and placed under the care of Dr. J. T. Boone, Mr. Daugherty's physician.

Mr. Payne came to Miami primarily for his health, and Dr. Boone said he believed hte former Shipping Board Chairman would be more comfortable in the hotel, where he could have better attention.

TEST MEXICAN LAND TITLES.

Supreme Court Will Pass on Article 27 of the Constitution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, March 9.—The Supreme Court of Mexico will pass on Article XXVII. of the Constitution early next week. A suit brought by the Utah Tropical Company to compel the Secretary of Industry to refrain from granting surface titles in Casallao, one of the largest producing oil lands, will be decided by the court.

This case is attracting much attention in Mexico City. Emilio Rabasa, a leading lawyer of the old school, assisted by a number of lawyers of the new or revolutionary school, is defending the case against the Utah Company.

A. A. Vantine & Co. Still in Business

In announcing the organization of Vantines, Inc., composed of a group of former employes of A. A. Vantine & Co., on Thursday morning, THE NEW YORK TIMES was in error in saying that A. A. Vantine & Co. went out of business in 1920. L. D. Block, President of A. A. Vantine & Co., said yesterday that his firm is now actively engaged in manufacture at 71 Fifth Avenue. The new corporation of Vantine, Inc., will be located in the Rawak Building, 1 to 11 West Thirty-ninth Street, near Fifth Avenue.

CREDITORS SUFFER BY NEGLECTING LAW

Blamed for Their Own Losses by the National Association of Credit Men.

BANKRUPTCY ACT EXPLAINED

Closer Attention to Their Interests in Every Case Would Increase Protection.

The National Bankruptcy law may need amendments to bring certain parts of it up to date, but the chief reason why the law fails of its purposes is that creditors neglect their own obligations under the law, according to a statement of the Bankruptcy Law Executive Committee of the National Association of Credit Men, made public here by J. L. Medler of the Atlas Portland Cement Company, Chairman of the committee, which is making a study of the administration of the law and its proposed amendments.

The committee bases its views in part upon a report from a subcommittee of the improved administration of the Bankruptcy law, headed by George Wentworth Carr of Philadelphia.

The credit men are convinced that if creditors would take an interest in every case wherein they are involved, and see that their interests were protected at every point no matter what the effort might be, the situation would greatly change and criticisms of the bankruptcy law would decline.

The statement says that creditors frequently neglect the privileges given them under the law, namely (1) a critical inspection of the schedules filed by the bankrupt. (2) A public examination of the bankrupt and (3) the election of a trustee; around these privileges center the obligations of creditors to see that the law is faithfully and fairly applied in every case.

"The referee in bankruptcy is a judicial officer," continues the statement. "He cannot represent the creditors. Upon them and the trustee they elect rests the burden of inspecting the schedules, examining the bankrupt, resisting unfair compositions and a final discharge where the bankrupt is undeserving of it. When creditors file their claims direct with referees in bankruptcy, they eliminate themselves from these privileges. Their claims are merely filed away for participation in any division of the liquidated assets. The practice of filing claims direct with referees in bankrupter is too general, and the results of it cannot be recognized by the creditors.

"No law is automatic in its operations. There must be human forces back of its operations. So with the bankruptcy law. Its benefits and protection are strictly in proportion to the diligence and insistence of creditors as to their rights. Even where claims are not filed direct with referees, creditors are frequently unrepresented at meetings and take no interest whatsoever in the application of the law. Can it be surprising, therefore, that when these neglects are considered, the administration of the law should have provoked criticism and found in some direction to encourage abuses"?

"We appeal for greater diligence of creditors and an elimination of the practices that affect the application of the Bankruptcy Act as at present constituted, or in whatever form it might be re-written or amended. Economy perhaps, has suggested the direct filing of claims. Distance prevents frequently the participation of creditors at examinations and meetings; but where convenient to attend, the creditors should be present in every instance, and where inconvenient they should be represented by some proper person or attorney. We cannot bicker over expenditures where the just application of a law is concerned."

PINCHOT ASKS SMITH TO JOIN IN POWER USE

vania will be intensively developed, enormously increased, and their product greatly cheapened, not only for the people of Pennsylvania, but also for the people of New Jersey and New York.

"The negotiations already informally begun by you, Governor Silzer and myself for the development, apportionment and control of the water power resources of the Delaware River illustrate most clearly that power is an interstate problem, both as to its origin and its distribution. In that connection I desire to urge you to consider most carefully the suit begun in the Supreme Court of the United States by your predecessor in the name of the State of New York to annul the Federal Water Power act.

Tells of Work With Roosevelt.

"That statute is the outgrowth of the conservation movement initiated by President Roosevelt, and especially of measures taken by him for safeguarding public rights in water power. In the initiating and application of these measures I had the good fortune to enjoy his confidence and support, and I was active in the fifteen years of controversy which bore fruit in the Federal Water Power act of 1920.

"This law embodies the ideal of the conservation of natural resources for the public interest to a degree greater than any other with the possible exception of the national forest laws. By it 53 per cent. of the undeveloped water power resources of the nation were saved from monopoly and dedicated to the public welfare. It is not only equitable and workable but it is accepted as such by the best opinion among water power experts, who recognize that one of its principal purposes is to promote development.

"The Federal water power law gives preference to States and municipalities which may desire to construct or take over and operate water power projects and relieves them from all rental if they deliver power to consumers at cost, which I understand to be the purpose of your plan. It is especially adapted, therefore, to meet the needs and objects described in your message.

"By proceeding under the Federal Water Power act and by accepting the preference it gives to State enterprise over private enterprise, New York can initiate the new policy under the most favorable circumstances and without the delay inseparable from litigation, and can do so without jeopardizing the interests of other States. For it is true that by this statute, and by it alone, the rights of the people of all the States in water power are now safeguarded. If the State of New York should attempt, and unhappily succeed, in overthrowing it while safeguarding the rights of her own people, she would thereby strike down the people's rights in forty-seven other States which are not ready to undertake a State ownership policy at this time. I am sure that any such result is far from your intention.

"Since, therefore, the Federal water power law is specifically adapted to meet the present needs of the State of New York as well as to safeguard the interests of the other States, I respectfully urge on behalf of the people of Pennsylvania and of other States as well, that you withdraw the suit begun by your predecessor and use the Federal Water Power act as a sure and sufficient basis of the policy of State ownership which you have proposed. If you take that course, you will have the good wishes of the people throughout the nation for your success in this difficult undertaking. If not, you will put one of their most vital interests to the hazard of litigation, and actually destroy that interest in the event that your litigation should succeed.

"I speak for the people of our whole Commonwealth when I say that Pennsylvania desires to live with New York her sister State, on terms of the closest mutual helpfulness and consideration. I cannot, however, but regard with deep concern any movement which might be expected to interfere with such mutual helpfulness or lead to antagonism of any sort."

ENRIGHT IN REPORT ATTACKS DRY LAW

Says Mullan-Gage Measure Was Framed to Harass Hylan Administration.

GIVES 1921 POLICE HISTORY

In his belated annual report of the Police Department for 1921, made public yesterday, Commissioner Enright again criticised the Mullan-Gage law as legislation intended to embarrass the Hylan Administration, defended the police against charges made during several investigations and renewed his recommendations for the improvement of traffic conditions in the city.

The report fills the largest volume ever issued from the office of the Police Commissioner, and full-page half-tones of Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Enright occupy the first two pages. Then follows an exhortation to the public to "stop sobbing for the criminal—sob for his victim." The Commissioner points out that he has attempted the innovation of writing a history of the department for 1921, and it fills 400 pages. It is fifteen months since the last annual report was issued.

Hindered by Investigations.

"The preparation of this report has been hindered," writes Commissioner Enright, "because of the state of chaos in which the operations of the Almirall Grand Jury, the Whitman Grand Jury and the Meyer Legislative Investigating Committee left the records of this department. Thousands of documents required in making this report were requisitioned under blanket subpoenas issued by these agencies, many of which were never returned, leaving great gaps in the important records of this department which, in many instances, could not be duplicated or replaced, and the preparation of this report could not begin until after tremendous labor. These records were reassembled and, so far as possible, reproduced from available data scattered about the department."

The Commissioner then attacks the Almirall Grand Jury, the Whitman inquiry, and the Meyer committee, and adds:

"I cannot drop this subject without reference to another form of political strategy of which the Police Department was made victim. You will anticipate that I refer to the so-called State Prohibition Enforcement law, commonly known as the Mullan-Gage law. There can be no doubt in the mind of any one thoroughly familiar with the circumstances but what this piece of legislation was prepared and passed for the sole purpose of embarrassing your Administration."

Calls Liquor Law Double-Edged.

He adds his opinion that "there is much reason to believe that the Mullan-Gage law was the fruit of an attempt to frame a piece of legislation that would be double-edged—impossible of enforcement, or, if a serious attempt were made to enforce it, the effect on public sentiment would be to everlastingly damn those responsible for the attempt." He said that the law doubled the work of the department and arrayed an army of enemies against it because of the sympathetic attitude "of the people at large toward this illegal traffic."

Telling of the prohibition work of the police, the Commissioner says that all but 2,600 out of 10,000 saloons were closed, and 10,062 arrests were made in the first nine months. The value of the confiscated liquor, at bootleg prices, is estimated at $15,000,000.

In discussing traffic conditions, the Commissioner suggests limiting the privileges extended to out-of-town motor car owners, in favor of city owners, and urges a reduction in the number of taxicabs. He renews his former recommendations for the removal of the Sixth Avenue elevated structure, changing the Second Avenue elevated to a subway, widening the bridge approaches and adding ferries.

Suggests Elevated Roadway.

"An elevated roadway built of steel and concrete, at least eighty feet wide," he says, "should be erected along the marginal way and West Street from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street, carried over the New York Central tracks and connected up with Seventy-second Street. This structure would be used for light and speedy vehicular traffic, leaving the surface free for heavy commercial vehicles."

In a section entitled "The Uniformed Force," the report presents figures to show that assignment of patrolmen and detectives to special work leaves about 5,000 men for patrol, divided into three shifts.

"In other words there are about 1,700 men on patrol on the streets of this city," adds the report. "There are approximately 3,900 miles of streets and about 30,000 street corners. When these facts and figures are given due consideration, even the severest and most hostile critic of the Police Department cannot fail to admit the efficiency of the police force and the able manner in which it is administered."

Amundsen Starts Polar Flight June 21

SEATTLE, Wash., March 9.—Captain Roald Amundsen, head of an Arctic exploration expedition that left Seattle June 3 in the schooner Maud, will hop off June 21 from Wainwright, Alaska, for an airplane flight over the North Pole, according to a letter received from him by Captain John Backland, owner and master of the schooner M. S. Holmes. The letter gave the present position of the Maud at 200 miles north by northeast from Wrangell Island and drifting slowly with the ice toward the Pole.

GET $3,800 PAYROLL IN FACTORY HOLD-UP

TWO OTHERS KEEP WATCH

Back Paymaster Into Elevator, Order Operator to "Pull Rope" and Escape in Taxicab.

Leon Heitler, 38 years old, of 605 West 141st Street, paymaster for J. J. Weis & Co., clothing manufacturers, was held up yesterday afternoon in the hallway of a loft building at 819 East Fifth Street and robbed of a payroll containing $3,800.

The Weis Company occupies the fifth and sixth floors of the Fifth Street building as a factory. The coatmakers, on the fifth floor, are paid off on Friday and the pantsmakers on Monday. Heitler's custom has been to go to the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, at Eighth Street and Broadway, on paydays, where he would draw the money and take it to the main office of the firm, at 636 Broadway. After making up the payroll he would return to the factory in a taxicab. The elevator was kept in readiness for him at the ground floor.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the elevator operator, George Sebold, of 185 Columbia Avenue, North Bergen, N. J., was waiting for the paymaster when he noticed two men standing about the doorway of the building. Thinking that they were merely "extras" who had been employed by the Weis firm and who were waiting for their money, Sebold paid no attention to them.

A taxi drew up at the door, Heitler alighted with the bundle of money wrapped in brown paper in his left hand and started through the hallway toward the elevator. Both men followed him. As he was about to step into the elevator one man suddenly struck him a blow in the small of the back with his fist, sending Heitler reeling against the wall. The other snatched the package from Heitler's hand. Both drew revolvers and covered the paymaster and the elevator man and commanded "Hands up! Keep 'em high, now. No nonsense."

They then backed Heitler and Sebold into the elevator and ordered Sebold to pull the rope.

Realizing that Heitler was armed and hoping to stall the bandits off, Sebold tried to close the door, but the bandits pushed him back and repeated the command to pull the rope.

As the elevator disappeared upward the robbers hurried from the building. Persons in the neighborhood said the two robbers were joined by two other men who had been stationed outside the doorway, and that the four hurried to the corner of Lewis Street, jumped into a taxicab, the motor of which had been left running, and disappeared northward.

About 100 employes of the Weis Company went home without their salaries as a result of the robbery. Some said that the robbers had chosen a poor day, as the shortage of work made it necessary to close down for a day last Thursday and the payroll was smaller than usual this week.

SACCO AND VANZETTI HEARING IS POSTPONED

Counsel for Defense Asks Week's Delay When the Judge Refuses to Rule on an Affidavit.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 9.—Hearing of motions for a new trial in the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of the killing of a paymaster and his guard three years ago, was postponed today until next Friday at the request of counsel for the defense.

Judge Webster Thayer had refused to rule on the admissibility of an affidavit by John J. McAnarney of defense counsel, explaining he was without adequate information, and asked counsel to proceed on other points. The defense attorneys, however, said they were not prepared to go ahead and asked a week's delay.

When Judge Thayer asked for the prisoners' views on the request for delay, Vanzetti agreed promptly, but Sacco protested. The latter is now on his twenty-third day of a hunger strike which he has said was intended to expedite the proceedings. "I want to eat," he explained, but Vanzetti and the defense counsel, after a long talk, prevailed on him to consent to postponement.

Attorney McAnarney asked the Court to have Vanzetti transferred from the State prison, where he is under sentence for another offense, to the county jail here, where Sacco is confined. "I have very good reasons for making this request," he said. Judge Thayer, however, said he had no authority to grant the request, adding that if he had the power he would do so.

Judge Thayer rebuked counsel for both sides for their failure to reach an agreement on the bill of exceptions submitted to the Court, saying that in all his experience at the bar he had never encountered such a condition, and directed that they get together and mark for him the paragraphs on which they agreed and those on which they could not. With 5,000 pages of manuscript to read, he said, it was impossible for him to give proper consideration to the subject unless counsel would assist.

700 Arrested at Lottery Drawing.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 9.—700 persons, including forty women, were arrested here in a raid by Deputy Sheriffs on an alleged lottery drawing in a barn in the southeast section of the city. More than eighty revolvers and automatic pistols were taken from the prisoners.

INVESTIGATE BOOKS OF BOSTON-MONTANA

District Attorney of Boston Broadens Inquiry—Shareholders Allege Plot Involving Official.

BOSTON, March 9.—Edwin L. Pride, a public accountant, has been examining the books of the Boston-Montana Corporation, a mining concern, and of the American Discount Corporation, at the request of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien of Suffolk County, who is investigating transactions of the former corporation. This became known today, when the question of ordering Mr. Pride to furnish desired information to counsel for shareholders of the Boston-Montana Corporation came before Judge Morton in the Superior Court.

Mr. Pride had refused to give this information at a hearing before George H. Mellen, master in a litigation involving the corporation. Upon learning that he had made his examination on behalf of the District Attorney and had not completed it, the various counsel interested in the litigation agreed today that he could not properly be called upon to give his impressions as to the corporation's financial condition. They indicated, however, that a motion to have him directed to testify before the master might be renewed later.

Shareholders of the Boston-Montana to the number of about 5,000 are seeking to recover a majority of a $5,000,000 bond issue which they claim fell into the hands of the American Discount Corporation and other concerns. They allege conspiracy on the part of President William R. Allen of the Boston-Montana Corporation, former Lieutenant Governor of Montana, and William Robert Montgomery, connected with the American Discount Corporation. In one of the suits, Hammond T. Fletcher seeks to recover $56,695, an alleged indebtedness of Allen. In another suit the Boston-Montana Corporation appears as plaintiff against Allen, Montgomery, the American Discount Corporation, the First People's Trust and the Corporation for Discount.

TWO SMALL BOYS DROWN.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 9.—Francis Batch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Batch, and James Cade Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cade, each 5 years old, were drowned in the former Scully quarry in Groton today. Their bodies were found hand in hand, the children having broken through the ice with their hands clasped.

The boys, who had been playing together this morning, were missed by their mothers. Search was kept up more than three hours, when footsteps of children were found along the edge of the ice in the quarry, and broken ice showed where the boys had broken through. Recovery of the bodies quickly followed.

they were in there McAllister took a look into the car and saw the bottle of whisky. In the chase which followed, when the men emerged from the café, the detective caught Joseph Unsinol, 21 years old, a chauffeur, of 80 Vandam Street. He was discharged later in Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate Richard F. McKinley when he denied ownership of the liquor.

At Trenton, N. J., yesterday John C. Crossland of Miami, Fla., was sentenced by United States Judge Rellstab to serve two years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and to pay a fine of $10,000 as a result of conviction on an indictment charging conspiracy to smuggle whisky and gin valued at $60,000 into Atlantic City. Judge Rellstab declared that Crossland was the principal conspirator in this particular case and the first of the "higher ups" in liquor smuggling to be convicted. Counsel for Crossland at once took out a writ of error, acting as a stay. Bail was increased from $5,000 to $20,000.

Mrs. Lillian Wallace, 30 years old, a chorus girl, and wife of "Joey" Wallace, well known jockey, died from acute alcoholism in a boarding house at 1,381 Union Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday, according to Dr. Green of the Swedish Hospital, who was summoned in an ambulance to attend her.

PLANE PUZZLES CAPE MAY.

Residents Think Machine Is Used by Prohibition Agents.

The people of Cape May, N. J., became very much excited yesterday at the landing of a big blue airplane on the beach opposite the Lafayette Hotel. They believed the machine had some connection with rum-runners and considered that it was part of the prohibition enforcement equipment. The pilot and lone passenger climbed out of the machine and went uptown without answering any questions.

Reports from Cape May last night were to the effect that rum-runners were beginning to desert the territory around Highlands and that other points along the Jersey coast are now being utilized for the landing of cargoes of liquors. Coast guards kept a sharp lookout over two or three schooners that stood off the shre at Cape May yesterday. They continued their vigil last night.

Two steamers and fourteen schooners were sighted off Ambrose Channel Light yesterday by Captain Peterson of the steamer Eastern Leader, arriving from Hull.

GUILTY OF $76,000 THEFT IN COAL DEAL

BOUGHT FUEL FOR NORWAY

Hernandez, to Be Sentenced Next Friday, Faces Another Indictment in Auto Case.

A jury in Judge Nott's part of General Sessions late yesterday afternoon, convicted Benjamin F. Hernandez, 28 years old, a coal exporter, formerly with an office at 17 Battery Place, of grand larceny in the first degree for the theft of $76,000 from the Davis Coal Mining Company of West Virginia. He will be sentenced next Friday. The penalty is from five to ten years in State prison.

Witnesses produced at the trial by Assistant District Attorney Hugo Wintner, testified that on Nov. 1, 1920, Hernandez, who formely was connected with R. E. Matthews & Co. and the Maritime Navigation Company, exporters, in Battery Place, arranged with a representative of the coal mining company to obtain a check for the $76,000 from Clark Brothers, bankers, on a credit account of the Norwegian Food Commission. Hernandez was to turn the check over to the representative immediately in payment for 5,400 tons of coal which had been shipped to the Norwegian Commission from Philadelphia.

It developed that although Hernandez, in the presence of the coal mining company's representative, had instructed a clerk in his office to bring the check from the bankers to him for delivery to the representative, he secretly ordered the employe to certify the check with a stamp and place it to his account in the Empire Trust Company. When the employe returned to Hernandez's office and informed the representative of the deposit of the check to Hernandez's account, it was revealed. Hernandez showed the representative a letter from Jose Codena, an associate, claiming payment for the coal. Hernandez then told the representative that he had deposited the money to his account because of Codena's claim.

Mr. Wintner produced evidence which revealed that Hernandez obtained a contract for the coal from the Norwegian Food Commission and turned it over to the coal mining company. The company insisted on cash payment from him. Hernandez was to receive a commission of $1,300 on the order. The coal mining company had no claim on the bankers and had to depend on Hernandez for the check for $76,000. Election Day intervened between the day Hernandez converted the check to his own account and the day he withdrew it, and the coal company representative realized that his company was out not only the money but the 5,400 tons of coal, as well.

Another indictment charging Hernandez with grand larceny and criminally receiving stolen goods was returned by the Grand Jury a month ago, when it was discovered that one of five automobiles he had crated for shipment to Cuba had been stolen from a merchant on the Bowery six months ago. He had been tried before on the indictment on which yesterday's verdict was returned, but the jury disagreed.

HUNT FOR FUEL SWINDLER.

Police Want Man Who Got $5 for "Gas Co. Coal" and Disappeared.

Scores of gas consumers in Brooklyn and the officials of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company are hoping that the police will catch a man who took advantage of the coal shortage to collect money from persons to whom he promised gas company coal. The police of the Liberty Avenue and Brownsville Stations have received many complaints.

The man obtained an identification card of the gas company, which indicated that he was "Peter Pullen," an employe. He said that the gas company had anthracite coal beyond its needs and that the concern wished to dispose of the surplus to customers who were unable to get enough fuel.

The coal, he said, could be had by an initial payment of $5 a ton, the other $7.50 to be paid on delivery. He collected many deposits, but the coal did not come and the gas company and the police began to get complaints. Now they are looking for "Peter Pullen."

STORMS DELAY TWO SHIPS.

The Munargo and the Araguaya Arrive a Day Late.

Delayed a day by stormy weather, which their skippers said was the worst encountered in many years, the Munson liner Munargo from Nassau and the Royal Mail steamer Araguaya from Bermuda docked yesterday. Shortly after midnight last Tuesday one of the low pressure turbines of the Munargo went out of commission, and the steamer's progress was almost stopped.

While repairs were being made a huge wave sent a flood of water through the port holes, rousing the passengers, who rushed to deck in the belief that the ship was sinking. Captain A. Osborne allayed their fears, but the majority of the passengers remained up the rest of the night. Coffee and sandwiches were served. Before morning the steamer was buffeted about by a hurricane.

Among the passengers were Stephen Baker, President of the Bank of Manhattan; Roy Taylor, assistant to Frank Munson of the Munson line; Mrs. Aurelia Murcheson and James L. Ashley, President of the International Nickel Company.

Captain G. F. Gillard of the Araguaya said his vessel was so buffeted Wednesday morning that she was slowed down for safety. One large wave smashed the port rail.

SOVIET PROTEST TO FRANCE

Aroused by Reported Intention of Selling General Wrangel's Ships.

MOSCOW, March 9 (Associated Press).—Maxim Litvinoff has sent a note to Premier Poincaré protesting against the reported intention of the French to sell General Wrangel's ships now at Bizerta, the French naval station in Tunis. The proceeds are to be applied to subsidies advanced to General Wrangel by France.

The note contends that the vessels are Russian property and asks their restitution.

Plan Plymouth-London Air Mails.

LONDON, March 9.—Plans have been completed for an air line between Plymouth and London to handle mail for and from America. The service is expected to be put into commission soon. This will greatly facilitate the distribution of American mails in London, for they could be delivered the day they land at either Plymouth or Southampton. The new plan is the first step toward airplane flying between Plymouth, London, Cherbourg, Southampton and Manchester.

NEW PORTO RICAN SUIT CONCERNS EX-GOV. REILY

Contempt Proceedings Against Insular Officials Ordered by Attorney General Daugherty.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 9 (Associated Press).—In contempt proceedings before Federal Judge Odlin today, involving the former legislative speaker, Coll y Cuchi; his brother, Dr. Victor Coll, Insular Police Chief Bennett and Detective Chief Harding, the Court said the action had been ordered by Attorney General Daugherty and was based on a Grand Jury report, not made public, and returned while the former Governor, M. Mont Reily, was on his recent trip to the United States.

The Grand Jury report, said the Court, contained "statements which, if true, might involve Governor Reily in a serious offense."

"Why Governor Reily was not included in this information," the Judge added, "is for the District Attorney, not me, to state."

The information alleges that Dr. Victor Coll, now under two indictments for alleged violation of the Volstead Prohibition Enforcement law and at present in Washington, used detectives obtained by him in the name of Governor Reily from the accused officials to "corrupt and harass" the chief witness against him.

Prosecutor Wells said Mr. Reily was not included in the contempt information because both Dr. Coll and the former Governor denied that the latter aided in obtaining detectives to suborn the witness. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Harding deny knowledge of the purpose for which Dr. Coll used the detectives.

The Court directed that a request be made to Attorney General Daugherty to have Dr. Victor Coll in court here by March 22, so that Mr. Reily, who will sail soon after that date, might appear in person for testimony and cross-examination rather than by deposition.

Lewison Georgette

Ribbons, ribbons, ribbons—this is the choice of Paris! Numbers of petite chapeaux which our representative has just brought from across the seas stress this nouveaute. Some of these creations owe their beauty entirely to ribbons, others of straw show a ribbon cabochon. Strong rivals for their popularity, however, are the exquisite French flowers which encircle crowns, droop over brims and peep from underneath them. They seem to show a preference for the youthful pokes and mushrooms which the chic Parisienne has exploited along the Rue de la Paix. For the woman of more dignified mien, there are the larger chapeaux trimmed with startlingly new feather novelties.

FINDS BABY CRUSHED UNDER DEAD MOTHER

NEIGHBOR BROKE WINDOW

Coroner Reports That Mrs. Kammerer Died From Pulmonary Embolism.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, March 9. — After breaking a window pane with a brick this afternoon, Mrs. Edna Smith of 16 Valley Road, White Plains, crawled through the opening into the kitchen of her neighbor, Mrs. Leo Kammerer, and found her dead on the floor, with her two-weeks-old daughter crushed beneath her.

Mrs. James Horner of 39 Lake Street, mother of Mrs. Kammerer, was worried this morning about her daughter, who last Wednesday brought home with her from the White Plains Hospital her first baby. Mrs. Horner telephoned Mrs. Smith asking her if she would see how her daughter was getting along. This afternoon Mrs. Smith went to the little home just bought by the Kammerers at 22 Valley Road, but there was no response to her repeated knocking. Going to the rear of the house Mrs. Smith found a soap box, put it under the window, stood upon it and saw within the figure of Mrs. Kammerer prostrate on the floor. Then she broke the window and climbed in, to discover that Mrs. Kammerer was dead. Beside her was a little tin tub half filled with water and on a chair nearby were the baby's socks and clothes. Turning her over, Mrs. Smith found the lifeless baby.

Mrs. Smith called several neighbors and they notified Police Headquarters. Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald said that Mrs. Kammerer had died of pulmonary embolism, and that the baby had been suffocated by the mother's weight. Mrs. Kammerer apparently had been stricken when about to bathe the infant. They had been dead about five hours.

Mr. Kammerer, who is employed by Clarke & Gibney, a furniture house in Manhattan, was notified, and hurried to White Plains. They were married three years ago. Mrs. Kammerer was 27 years old and a graduate of the White Plains High School.

'RAIDING PARSON' AT 56 FORCES AN APOLOGY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 9.—Rev. John B. Adams, a Methodist minister of Ocean City, who because of his prohibition activities has earned the sobriquet of the "raiding parson," demonstrated in the office of United States Commissioner John B. Izzard here this afternoon that, despite his age—he is 56 years old—he possesses considerable prowess as a boxer. Without any hesitancy he tackled a man fifteen years his junior when the latter is alleged to have used an ugly word in referring to the activities of the minister in his prohibition work.

"You will either apologize or I'll take you into the street and thrash you within an inch of your life," declared the minister as he grabbed the other by the shoulder. The apology was forthcoming and the incident passed off.

Mr. Adams was in court when Robert Fitzgerald, negro Freeholder of the Third Ward, offered bail for two men. The minister said he overheard the negro use vile names and when he took the man to task there was an apology.

A couple of days ago he declares he was attacked by a bartender during a raid. The bartender used a bottle and Mr. Adams used a blackjack and quickly subdued the other.

He said today that hereafter he purposes to invoke the statute calling for sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment in the cases of persons "destroying United States evidence." He refers particularly to the practice of bartenders and others smashing bottles containing liquor during raids. The minister asserts that this is a violation of the Federal laws and he will prosecute all offenders.

Cancels Passage for Today to Lecture in the South.

The Very Rev. Albert Victor Baillie, dean of Windsor, chaplain to the King of England and registrar of the Order of the Garter, in an address last evening before the Episcopal Church Club in the New York Bible Society's assembly hall, 5 East Forty-eighth Street, announced that he had canceled his passage home in order to accept lectures in the South in the interest of the English-speaking Union. He was to have sailed today.

Dr. Baillie showed views of the chapel of St. George's at Windsor for more than an hour. He is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James at 39 East Sixty-ninth Street.

LESS SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Ten Cases Reported Yesterday, as Against Fifteen Thursday.

Ten cases of sleeping sickness were reported to the Health Department yesterday, as compared with fifteen on Thursday. Deaths yesterday were three, compared with two on Thursday.

City Health Officer Charles Raster of Newark, in a letter to Mayor Breidenbach yesterday suggested that an ordinance be passed by the City Council making mandatory the reporting of all cases of sleeping sickness. He pointed out that there had been twenty-two cases in 1922 and twelve during the first two months of the current year.

Won't Push Curley's Libel Case.

BOSTON, March 9.—District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien refused today to grant the request of Mayor Curley and City Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney that he ask the Grand Jury to consider evidence looking to the indictment of the Boston Finance Commission for libel, in connection with the commission's recent report to the Mayor recommending removal of Dr. Mahoney. The District Attorney said that if the Mayor wished to press his complaint he should go to the lower court and ask for a warrant.

HISTORY IN NEW LIFE, DECLARES HARDING

He Favors a Broader Outlook as Helping to Deal Especially With Peace and War.

RECENT EVENTS HAVE AIDED

Commends in Letter Bowdoin College's Plans for an Institute of Modern History.

BRUNSWICK, Me., March 9.—The teaching of history should be changed to take a broader view that would consider the nations of the Western World in their relations to one another instead of considering them separately, President Harding said in a letter to President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College, made public today. The President was congratulating the college on its plans for an institute of modern history to be held here from April 19 to May 1. Our point of view regarding modern history, he said, has been shifted greatly by the events of the last decade.

All the factors of the story of mankind, which are an essential unity, he declared, must be weighed and appraised if any were to be accurately estimated and understood. A broader view of history would help greatly those having to deal with the problem of preserving peace and outlawing war.

It was conceded that some lessons of the past had been misunderstood, President Harding said, adding:

"It is peculiarly necessary in time like these that every effort be made to correct whatever misapprehensions may have arisen."

Text of President's Letter.

Mr. Harding's letter was as follows:

"Washington, March 1, 1923.

"My Dear Dr. Sills:

"I wish I had the time and opportunity to make something more than a perfunctory acknowledgment of your invitation of Feb. 24. I am deeply interested in your plans to hold at Bowdoin an institute of modern history. I think you are inaugurating a fine piece of work, and I wish I could be among those privileged to participate with you; which I am sorry to say is not possible. There is need for a vast deal of this kind of work on the part of educational institutions and learned societies, not only of this country, but of the world.

"I remember when I was a very young man hearing a political orator, in a particularly fervid period, announce that 'the whole history of the past must be changed.' A good deal of fun was poked at this proposal, and I was among those who indulged more or less humor in connection with it. Yet, since the World War, I have sometimes wondered whether the orator was so hopelessly wrong as to justify all the hilarity.

"Certainly our point of view regarding modern history has been shifted greatly by the events of the last decade. To fit into our histories the story of the years from 1914 down to this time is requiring the most painstaking, thoughtful and analytical consideration of all the course and processes of modern history. For one thing, it seems very clear to me that henceforward the teaching of history will have to be conducted, if it is conducted wisely, on quite different lines than have marked it in the past.

"There has been too much disposition among both the writers and students of history to deal with the different nations of the Western World, as it were, in separate compartments; to assume that one may study and understand the history of one nation without particularly devoting himself to the relations of that particular nation to the others.

Urges Unity of History.

"Undoubtedly, we shall from this time forward have a much more adequate conception of the essential unity of the whole story of mankind and a keener realization of the fact that all its factors must be weighed and appraised if any of them are to be accurately estimated and understood. I feel strongly that such a broader view of history, if it can be planted in the community's mind of the future through the efforts of educators and writers, will contribute greatly to uphold the hands and strengthen the efforts of those who will have to deal with the great problem of human destiny, particularly with that of preserving peace and outlawing war.

"It is because I entertain these views that I am so glad to know what you are undertaking at Bowdoin. I have felt that the work of the Institute of Politics at Williams College has represented one phase of a very useful service in the direction of illuminating current problems; and I feel that your plan for an Institute of Modern History at Bowdoin represents another phase, just as useful and desirable, in behalf of a broader conception of the tremendous task that the race confronts.

"It is everlastingly true that on the whole the best guide to the future is to be found in a proper understanding of the lessons of the past. If some of its lessons have been misunderstood, as I think we all feel nowadays some of them have been, it is peculiarly necessary in times like these that every effort be made to correct whatever misapprehensions may have arisen. I recall the great interest and even enthusiasm with which I discovered the work of Ferrero on Roman History, because it gave a new means and furnished new applications of so many of the lessons of old Rome.

Looks for Change in Attitude.

"I venture that in the light of the last decade's tremendous events there is now the possibility of a reshaping of our attitude toward modern history through such inspirations as you are seeking at Bowdoin, that may ultimately have as great an effect upon our views of modern times as Ferrero's work had upon our attitude toward the story of the Roman Empire.

"I do not believe it is a contradiction of what I have already said about the essential unity of all history to add that in our own country it seems to me there is altogether too little knowledge of our national story, too little interest in and serious study of it. One has many times seen the high school student who had completed his studies in an intermediate text book on American history promptly close the volume with the announcement that 'He knew about history.' I fear that cheerful attitude is not by any means confined to students of high school age. The business of living and of making a living so largely consumes the energies of most people that they find it all too easy to close the volumes which ought to be kept open to them.

"I am sure that the work you are undertaking at Bowdoin will be an encouragement to such an attitude toward the study and analysis of history; and so I am sending my congratulations on the program you have undertaken.

"Most sincerely yours,

"WARREN G. HARDING."

Arrested at a Hotel on a Charge of Extorting Money.

Mark Soroko, 22 years old, of 59 Sherman Street, Roxbury, Mass., and his wife, Nellie, 20, were arrested at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night on the charge of extortion. According to the police, the couple were caught when receiving $75 in marked bills and a note for $300 from Morris Schoenhut, 25, of 1,405 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx.

The police say the couple were trapped after Schoenhut complained they had followed him from Boston and had threatened to expose his relations with the woman. Schoenhut said that they demanded $1,000 at first, but agreed to take the $75 and the note. The prisoners denied the charge.

SANE WOMAN IS HELD IN AN INSANE ASYLUM

Kept There, Despite Her Full Recovery, by Technicality of Connecticut Law.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 9.—A normal woman, without any traces of insanity, is obliged to remain at the Connecticut State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown because the authorities of the institution have no authority to discharge her. Superintendent Roy L. Leak made this statement to the Legislative Appropriations Committee today in the course of their inspection of the institution. He proposes to ask the Legislature to pass a law empowering the hospital officials to discharge her and providing for any similar cases that may arise in the future.

The woman was sent to the hospital while awaiting trial in court for an offense committed in a period of temporary aberration. The commitment was by order of a Judge, who had been convinced by a report of three reputable physicians appointed by him that the woman was mentally deranged. The Judge in committing her to the State Hospital at Middletown, as provided by law, had no power to fix the length of her commitment, the statutes providing simply that a person thus committed while awaiting trial for confinement, support and treatment," shall remain at the institution for the insane "until the time of his (or her) trial."

The mental experts at the institution soon discovered the cause of the woman's temporary aberration and, correcting it, quickly had her on the road to recovery. She has been perfectly normal for more than a year, but the prosecuting attorney in charge of her case has not moved for the trial, and until he does the woman must remain at the institution for the insane, unless liberated by legislative enactment.

Man Arrested in Subway Denies Charge; Wife Pleads In Vain.

Julius Berger, of 1,480 Seabury Place, the Bronx, was sentenced to ten days in the workhouse by Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in the Yorkville Court yesterday for disorderly conduct. It was alleged that while riding on a subway train Wednesday morning Berger annoyed Isabella Priest, twenty-three years old, of 900 Tinton Avenue, the Bronx.

The probation officer reported that Berger was highly respected by all who knew him and his record was exceptionally good, but despite this Magistrate Cobb imposed a workhouse term as an example, he said, to others. Mrs. Berger was in court and stated that her husband was the sole support of herself and child.

Berger denied that he intentionally annoyed the complainant.

SHOOT AT POLISH TRAIN.

Lithuanian Irregulars Wound Four of the Passengers.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

WARSAW, March 9.—A Polish express train was fired on today by Lithuanian irregulars near Besdany. Four were wounded. The engineer escaped from the zone of fire by increasing speed. The irregulars escaped.

The Lithuanian Government has suppressed the Polish papers at Kovno. There is great resentment in Warsaw.

Dutch Art Exhibition Opens Today.

J. B. Hubrecht, secretary of the Royal Netherlands Legation, will officially open the Goudstikker exhibition and collection of Dutch paintings at 9:30 this morning, at the Anderson Galleries, 489 Park Avenue. The collection shows the development of Dutch painting from the early fifteenth century to the present time. After the opening ceremonies for invited guests, the exhibition will be open, free, to the public until April 17.

Prison for False Label on Taxi.

Charles Marble, a taxicab driver, of 2,542 Seventh Avenue, pleaded guilty in Special Sessions yesterday to displaying a misleading advertisement on his machine and was sentenced to ten days in the Tombs. The Yellow Taxicab Corporation complained that Marble's machine was painted yellow and black in imitation of their machines and had the words "yellow taxi" and the telephone number of the corporation painted on it.

Scott to Head Springfield Schools.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 9.—Zenos E. Scott, Superintendent of Schools in Louisville, was appointed tonight as successor to Dr. James Van Sickle, who resigned recently as Superintendent of Schools in this city. For four years Mr. Scott has been an instructor in the Summer School for Teachers, and School Superintendents at Columbia University.

'REIGEN' POSTPONED AFTER SETBACKS

PUBLICITY SCHEME HINTED

Reichenbach's Connection With the Affair Pointed Out—Pecora Rejects Libel Case Against Sumner.

After meeting with a long series of stumbling blocks in their efforts to produce "Reigen," the Green Room Club decided last night to postpone the show, which was scheduled to take place tomorrow night, but it was asserted that this decision might be altered suddenly and that the play might be produced Sunday night after all.

In addition to the withdrawal of the guest of honor, Otto H. Kahn, the Green Room Club had other discouragements yesterday. Supreme Court Justice Mullan declined to enjoin the police from interfering with the production. The Belasco Theatre management canceled the permission to present "Reigen" in the Belasco Theatre. Assistant District Attorney Pecora declined to start proceedings against John S. Sumner, Secretary of the Society for the Supression of Vice, for criminal libel. Late last night it appeared as if Sumner had won a complete victory.

It was reported yesterday that one of the young women who was to appear in "Reigen" had withdrawn because she agreed with Mr. Sumner as to the immorality of the play. This was denied by Green Room Club officials, who said the withdrawal of the actress had taken place some time before because of other engagements.

Publicity Scheme Seen.

The most active officer of the club in attempting to straighten out the situation yesterday was Harry S. Reichenbach, the publicity man who put the lions in the Hotel Belleclaire to advertise Tarzan and who housed a group of sheiks at the Hotel Majestic on an heiress hunt just before the production of "The Virgin of Stamboul." The activity of Reichenbach caused some fear that the Green Room Club, the Society for the Suppression of Vice, Schnitzler, the Magistrates' Court, the Supreme Court and the District Attorney's office were all being used in the interest of publicity for some forthcoming sensation of the silent or dumb drama. But this theory was denied by officers of the club, who insisted that this was an occasion when a group of actors experienced genuine sorrow at having publicity thrust upon them.

Harry S. Heechheimer, a lawyer, of 1,540 Broadway, who was referred to as the official spokesman, insisted yesterday that "Reigen" would be produced, regardless of the withdrawal of Otto H. Kahn, the guest of honor, and regardless of the action of the Belasco Theatre management.

Denies Postponement Plan.

"If we can't present it at the Belasco Theatre, we will present it at the Earl Carroll Theatre," he said. "It will go on Sunday night, you can make sure of that. Further than that, we are going to prosecute Mr. Sumner for criminal libel. No action has been taken on that matter by the Magistrate's Court yet, but we are ready to up with the District Attorney directly."

Harry Reichenbach said later that it was intended to cancel the Sunday night production and to give it at a later day. He explained that instead of being produced as a compliment to Mr. Kahn, who had declined the compliment, it would be read aloud to him and the other guests after the dinner on Sunday night. The names of the guests and newspaper men, according to the publicity man, will be accepted as a disinterested, impartial and virtuous body of citizens who will be asked to declare by a plebiscite whether "Reigen" is moral or otherwise.

Mr. Sumner said yesterday that he was much gratified with the turn of affairs.

"Mr. Kahn's letter was exactly the right thing, I thought," he said. "I have no doubt that he and many others of the Green Room Club, to which many fine people belong, would have nothing to do with a performance of this character. I believe that it was being put over on a majority of the club members as well as Mr. Kahn."

Pecora Rejects Sumner Case.

Assistant District Attorney Pecora, replying to the request of the Green Room Club's lawyer for the indictment of Mr. Sumner, said:

"As you are undoubtedly aware, Mr. Sumner is within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate's Court of this county and amenable to its process. If you have any complaint to make against Mr. Sumner, involving the commission of any crime, you should make it through the medium of the Magistrate's Court. As a lawyer you are familiar with the procedure in such cases."

While refusing to tie the hands of the police so as to prevent their interfering with "Reigen" on Sunday night, Justice Mullan issued a writ calling on Commissioner Enright and others to appear in his court on Monday and show cause why they should not be so restrained. This document, however, will not operate to deter the police, if the play is presented tomorrow night and if the police decide that its presentation constitutes a crime.

The debate at the Green Room Club, which was holding a regular meeting last night, began at an early hour, but it was asserted that this morning might be far advanced before the supply of elocution was exhausted.

THREATEN TO JAIL PENFIELD

Springfield Defaulter's Wounds Assure Him Police Guard at Home.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, March 9.—A. H. Penfield, defaulting cashier of the defunct Springfield National Bank, will be locked up in the Clark County Jail not later than Monday unless he posts a bond of $25,000. Michael Devanney, United States Marshal, made this statement to police officials here today. Penfield is under police guard at his home. His physical condition as a result of his attempt to commit suicide Tuesday morning is regarded as still too critical to permit his being placed in a cell.

Although rumors coming from many sources are to the effect that the bank's shortage will reach $1,000,000 or more, T. C. Thomas, Chief Bank Inspector for the Fourth Federal Reserve District, said tonight that he could not venture an opinion as to the amount. Reports were circulated that safe deposit boxes at the bank had been looted of bonds to the amount of $250,000. The examiner refused to confirm this figure.

LAW LIBRARY SALE ENDS.

Harvard Buys Old Volumes for $1,095 in Winters's Collection.

The closing session of the sale of the American library of William H. Winters, formerly Librarian of the New York Law Institute, was held yesterday afternoon at the Anderson Galleries. The collection included the early acts, journals and laws of several States and colleges, with a volume said to have been the first law book owned by Abraham Lincoln.

The total amount realized at the sale was $19,007.45. Harvard University Law Library paid $1,095 for "Laws of the Territory of the United States Northwest of the Ohio," printed in 1790. The Massachusetts State Library, the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Congressional Library and the Boston Public Library were among the buyers.

'KING LEAR' POORLY STAGED

SHAKESPEARE'S KING LEAR—At the Earl Carroll Theatre for special matinees.

|---|---|
| Earl of Kent | Mortat Johnston |
| Earl of Gloucester | Arthur Hughes |
| Edmund | Lawrence Cecil |
| Lear | Reginald Pole |
| Goneril | Winifred Johnston |
| Regan | Kiran Markham |
| Cordelia | Genevieve Tobin |
| Duke of Albany | Paul Huber |
| Duke of Cornwall | Frank Arundel |
| Duke of Burgundy | Jameson Reilly |
| King of France | Gregory Safranau |
| Edgar | Lawrence Tibbett |
| Oswald | William Austin |
| Curan | Norman Cope |
| Fool | Beata Karm |
| Knight | Charles Bradley |

A performance of "King Lear" at the Earl Carroll Theatre was yesterday's contribution to the special matinee epidemic. The production was under the direction of Reginald Pole, who also appeared as Lear.

With all the best will in the world brought to any attempt to bring back to our stage "King Lear," not seen here since the Mantell production, it must be recorded that yesterday's performance was decidedly unsatisfactory. Bit by bit the large audience that greeted the players as the curtain rose melted away, and those who remained to the close felt with Kent that "upon such sacrifices the gods themselves throw incense."

The play, called by Shelley "the most perfect specimen of the dramatic art existing in the world," was butchered into a blood and thunder drama, perhaps to make a Broadway holiday. Shelley saw in it the elements that warranted comparison with the masterpieces of Greek tragedy—and yesterday's audience saw a play dealing with an allegedly old man determined to go out into the lightning and thunder because his retinue of 100 servants was to be cut in half. So far as this is a play at all, it is one, of course, because in its essence it is the exposition of inevitable tragedy, because it is the story of a gentle nature doomed to destruction in a world of wilful men and women. And Mr. Pole gives us the spectacle of a ranting, raging human nuisance, for whom the treatment by Regan and Goneril was much too good.

Mr. Pole's interpretation of Lear, if it was an interpretation, was extremely poor. His very appearance was absurd—he created less the self or illusion of a heart-sick man, four scores and upward, than of a young actor with white whiskers.

It is a pleasure, however, to be able to record excellent work by other members of the cast. Moffet Johnston, for example, added much to his growing art by his Kent. There was a vitality to his performance, a sign of his recognition that his was a part, for living as well as for reading Shakespearian lines, that gave joy to the beholder. Lawrence Cecil's Edmund, too, was human and manly, and Lawrence Tibbett played well and smoothly as Edgar.

Not much is to be said for the three sisters. Winifred Johnston and Kiran Markham gave weakly obvious portrayals of Goneril and Regan. Genevieve Tobin was sweet as Cordelia, but cloying. The Fool was hopelessly miscast in the person of Beata Karm.

The play was done in two acts, the division coming when Lear goes out into the storm. What might have been an effective setting—a short flight of steps, leading to a black curtain circling around the stage, with occasional use of a ramp before the footlights—was spoiled by eccentricities of the lightmen and curtain-drawers.

SELZNICK TO REORGANIZE.

Majority Creditors of Movie Firm Are Said to Favor Plan.

James N. Rosenberg, counsel for Lewis J. Selznick, President of the Selznick Pictures Corporation, now a defendant in bankruptcy proceedings, yesterday submitted to Federal Judge A. N. Hand a plan for the reorganization of the Selznick enterprises. It was not made public because it was explained that there were some points of difference to be adjusted. The majority creditors, it was stated, have accepted the main features of the plan.

The matter came before the court as part of a proceeding instituted by Jacob Weener, a creditor of the T. & T. Pictures Corporation, a Selznick subsidiary, for a writ of replevin to get possession of prints of pictures of Norma and Constance Talmadge. The application for the writ was denied. An application by editors of the Select Pictures Corporation, another Selznick subsidiary, to obtain control of the assets of the corporation, also was denied. A stay, preventing dissatisfied creditors from taking other court actions until further notice, was granted.

Large Audience Hears "Tristan."

Leading singers of the Wagnerian Opera Festival, on the eve of closing today their month at the Manhattan and moving to the Lexington for some weeks more, were greeted by a large audience at the third and last "Tristan" in the Manhattan series last evening. Miss Alsen, a soprano Isolde, shared with Urius as hero, and with Mme. Metzger as Brangaene, in hearty applause for Wagner's great love scene. Kipnis as King Mark and Laltermann as Kurvenal reappeared and Moerike conducted.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Reginald Goode is playing the role of Bassanio in "The Merchant of Venice" during the last few days of that production at the Lyceum. Philip Merivale, who has been acting the role, is ill.

The curtain will rise at 12:15 A. M. on the occasion of the midnight performance of "March Hares" at the Little Theatre tomorrow night.

Elise Bartlett, in addition to appearing in the first act of "Pear Gynt," will play a role in the last act of "The Adding Machine" when that play opens at the Garrick.

"Up Town West," a play by Lincoln Osborn, will be presented at the Earl Carroll Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, April 3. It will be acted there only for special matinees.

The opening of "Cinders" in New York is announced for April 2. The theatre is not named.

"Drums of Fate," a play by Ted Dickson Jr., will be produced out of town next month.

Michael Fokine will speak on Sunday afternoon at the Earl Carroll Theatre. His subject is Russian Ballet and Drama and he will demonstrate his theories with some of his pupils. The lecture is under the auspices of the New York Drama League.

MUSIC NOTES.

Dr. Charles Winter, the Hungarian Consul, will speak at a concert by some of his countrymen tomorrow evening at Washington Irving High School.

GIRL WITH FEVER HEAT WILL RECEIVE EXPERTS

Chicago Doctors Will Visit Miss Lyons, Whose Temperature Stands at 114 Degrees.

ESCANABA, Mich., March 9.—Miss Evelyn Lyons, whose 114 degree temperature for more than two weeks has resulted in a flood of telegrams and letters asking for details and extending consolation, sat up in her chair this morning with a smile of expectancy on her face. The fever has not abated the slightest, physicians say. Miss Lyons read over news reports which promised aid from several of the nation's most eminent fever specialists.

"I hope they come. I know I will get well," she said.

According to telegrams said to have come from Evanston and Chicago, two or three of Chicago's most celebrated physicians will arrive here soon to aid the young woman.

According to Dr. Harry Defnet's report this morning, Miss Lyons spent a fairly restful night. She is restless and desires to go out of doors to "cool off."

"If they would only quit thinking of me as a freak," she protested. "I don't intend to die just because I have a temperature. I'm going to get well."

The cause of the excessive temperature still remained a puzzle to physicians, the only solution offered being that Miss Lyons was slightly injured in an automobile accident last September.

In a signed statement issued to The Associated Press last evening, Dr. Defnet and G. W. Moll, Secretary of the Delta County Medical Association, officially verified the temperature readings as 114 degrees or better.

IOWA REBUFFS BROOKHART.

Senate Rejects His Presidential Preference Primary Proposal.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 9.—A bill for a Presidential preference primary in Iowa was turned down by the State Senate today. The vote was 21 to 25.

Such an enactment was urged by United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart in a speech at a joint session of this Legislature and the bill was introduced by his brother, State Senator J. L. Brookhart.

'Romeo et Juliette' for Vassar Fund.

The Metropolitan was twice thronged yesterday, a special matinee of "Romeo et Juliette" attracting generous patronage in aid of the fund of the Vassar College Alumnae. Bori and Gigli sang the Shakespearean lovers in Gounod's opera, which leads the season now with nine performances, and again Hasselmans conducted. Last evening's double bill brought Pongelle and Lauri-Volpi in "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Morangoni conducting, and Queena Mario, Salazar and Danise in "Pagliacci," under Papi's baton.

Joseph Schwarz, Baritone, Sings.

Joseph Schwarz, heard in Italian and recently in German opera, as well as in his own concert with the Philharmonic, came to closer terms with a cordial audience last evening at Aeolian Hall, where the Russian baritone sang German Lieder and songs in Russian and English, accompanied by Michael Raucheisen at the piano. His hearers redemanded Strauss's "Serenade," Grieg's "Swan," in translation, and Sinding's "Sylvelin," among the more intimate and lyric sort, in which his voice was at its greatest. There were encores also for Sinding's "Ein Weib," and Schumann's "Two Grenadiers."

TEAMS ARE BUNCHED AS GRIND NEARS END

Seven on Even Terms, While Six of Trailers Are Lapped Again in Early Morning Jam.

PAIR GETS BACK A LAP

Buysse Brothers Continue In Race for First Honors—Fitzsimmons and Spencer Out of Contest.

SCORE AT 1 A. M., 122D HOUR.

| Team. | Miles. | Laps. |
|---|---|---|
| Goullet-Grenda | 2,146 | 6 |
| McNamara-Horan | 2,146 | 6 |
| Gastman-Lands | 2,146 | 6 |
| Egg-Van Kompen | 2,146 | 6 |
| Brocco-Coburn | 2,146 | 6 |
| M. Buysse-L. Buysse | 2,146 | 6 |
| Kockler-Stockholm | 2,146 | 4 |
| Lorenz-Saldow | 2,146 | 3 |
| Thomas-Lawrence | 2,146 | 3 |
| H. Wynsdau-T. Wynsdau | 2,146 | 3 |
| Olivieri-Drobach | 2,146 | 4 |
| Kopsky-Osterritter | 2,146 | 2 |

Leader—Hanley. Record, 2,800 miles 6 laps, made by Lawson-Drobach in 1916.

Six of the trailing teams in the six-day bike race which is fast approaching its end lost a lap in a terrific jam that came shortly after 1 o'clock this morning in Madison Square Garden. None of the leaders was affected, however, leaving seven pairs still in the van for the final day honors.

The teams that dropped further back were Kockler and Stockholm, who were left two laps behind the leaders; Olivieri and Drobach, Wynsdau Brothers, Thomas and Taylor, now three laps back; Kopsky and Osterritter,, four laps, and Spencer and Fitzsimmons, seven laps. The last named pair were declared officially out of the race at 1:40 this morning. Thirteen teams now remain in the race.

Willie Lorenz, veteran German bike star, was the rider who started things going. While the field was doing some desultory riding, Lorenz shot out and opened up a full quarter lap before the rest of the riders got under way.

Egg and Brocco Lead.

Then a mad chase followed for several minutes. Brocco and Egg headed the pursuers, the latter being relieved by his lightning-like partner, Van Kempen. When Saldow took up the race he opened up the gap to almost half a lap, but McNamara was close behind him.

Coburn and Brocco then went out. Coburn passed the German pair and it looked as if he and Brocco were making the bid which they have been expected to make for a time. When Coburn came to Brocco's relief the sprint stars were on the track, and after a few laps of hard riding Egg, McNamara and Grenda succeeded in frustrating the attempt.

The Buysse brothers were presented with a lap early yesterday morning, just after the closing of the morning sprints. After several false starts, Marcel, who had ridden the pack hard for almost a quarter of an hour, finally went out and after a few rellefs by his brother Lucien managed to lap by the officials on account of the had pickups made by the other riders.

There was little excitement during the sprints last night, but no sooner had they finished then Carl Stockholm, one of the best pair riding in the race with Ernest Kockler, started a jam which gained back a lap and left them only one lap back of the leaders. One relief by Kockler, and the object of the Chicago boy was accomplished.

That brief spurt, a spill that sent three riders down on the boards, and the renewal of the battle between the two leading teams, Egg and Van Kempen and Goullet and Grenda, sufficed for the early morning.

Egg and Van Kempen annexed the sprint honors rather handily. Van Kempen was again the hero of the party, winning four heats and taking one second. Goullet led the pack in three of the sprints and Egg in two.

Riders Await Big Jam.

The leaders were watching one another closely, ever on the alert for the "one big jam" which is expected to materialize at any moment.

That the tension is beginning to tell is shown by two altercations that furnished excitement during the afternoon. Egg and Stockholm came to blows in one of the battles, and Willie Coburn made a few passes at Marcel Buysse after the Belgian had sent him down in a spill. The trainers in both camps put an end to the flisticuffs before damage resulted.

During the afternoon sprints the Wynsdau brothers and Hanley and Magin attempted to get a lap, but hard riding on the part of Grenda, McNamara, Egg and Coburn foiled them.

The race will wind up tonight with an hour of sprinting between 10 and 11 o'clock. There will be a sprint every mile, or about twenty-five in all. In these final dashes first place will count 72 points instead of 6, and the other points will remain as they are.

In all probability the seven teams that will compete in the final hour are Egg-Van Kempen, Goullet-Grenda, McNamara-Horan, Gastman-Lands, Brocco-Coburn, Hanley-Magin and the Buysse brothers.

Egg and Van Kempen captured the $50 prize for winning the most points in the evening sprints, with 46, which brought their grand total to 492. Goullet and Grenda were second with 35, which gave them second place with 331. McNamara and Horan collected 21 points making their total for the week 315.

Van Kempen Again Stars.

Van Kempen won the opening heat in the 9:30 o'lock sprints last night without a contest.

The leaders pocketed Egg in the second heat, which Goullet captured, with Horan second and Gastman and M. Buysse finishing in order. Egg made one bid to crowd his way through, but, failing, made no attempt to contest the sprint.

Van Kempen went out after the third sprint, winning it easily, although McNamara made a contest in the final lap. Lands was third and L. Buysse fourth.

Egg ran away with the fourth sprint. Taking a place in the van of the procession toward the end of the two-mile journey, he fought off an attack by Horan and won with a couple of lengths to spare. Coburn was third and M. Buysse fourth.

There was plenty of jockeying in the fifth heat. Two laps from the end Van Kempen, who was back in the pack, made a frantic effort to catch Grenda, who was leading; but Grenda refused to be caught. The pair sailed around on even terms over the last lap, but Grenda stood off Van Kempen's great spurt and won by inches. The crowd, now rooting for Van Kempen, booed the announcement. McNamara took third and Stockholm fourth.

Joe Kopsky set the field off in the sixth sprint. He led out, but Egg proceeded to make a runaway of the dash, leading Goullet by several yards. Coburn and Horan took the remaining places.

Van Kempen did a bit of daring riding in the seventh sprint. Three laps from the end he shot into second place between Lands and Grenda and, on the final circuit, rode rings around Lands for the six points. Grenda and McNamara followed Lands across the line.

Goullet allowed Egg to set the pace until the bell lap in the eighth sprint when he flashed past the Swiss rider and held him off to the finish. Horan was third and Magin fourth.

During the ninth sprint, Saldow went out in an effort to regain some of the lost ground, but Van Kempen quickly overhauled him, and winning, continued on a mad dash around the saucer with the field in hot pursuit. No sooner had he quit than one after another, Horan and Coburn made their bids, but the flurry soon died. Three riders were upset during the melee, Fitzsimmons, Kopsky and Lorenz, but none was seriously injured. The six points went to Van Kempen, with Lorenz, McNamara and Grenda following in order.

Goullet Wins Tenth Sprint.

Goullet ran off with the tenth and final sprint, Saldow taking second, Egg third and Magin fourth.

3—Van Kempen, McNamara, Lands, L. Buysse.
5—Grenda, Van Kempen, McNamara, Stockholm.
7—Van Kempen, Lands, Grenda, McNamara.
8—Goullet, Egg, Horan, Magin.
9—Van Kempen, Lorenz, McNamara, Grenda.
10—Goullet, Saldow, Egg, Magin.

| Team. | Total. | Eve'g. |
|---|---|---|
| Egg and Van Kempen | 492 | 46 |
| Goullet and Grenda | 331 | 35 |

| Lorenz and Saldow | 22 | 3 |
| Kopsky and Osterritter | 46 | 0 |

SIX LAPS BEHIND.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Fitzsimmons and Spencer | 7 | 0 |

Horan and McNamara Gain.

Harry Horan and Reggie McNamara were the heroes of the afternoon sprints, scoring 45 points. Alf Goullet and his teammate Grenda, were second with 23 points, while Magin and Hanley were third with 17.

6—McNamara, Magin, Lands, Stockholm.

Pioneer Club Is Denied Injunction in Firpo Case

The application of the Pioneer S. C. to prevent Luis Firpo, the South American heavyweight, from boxing Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden on Monday was denied yesterday by Justice Mitchell L. Erlanger in the Supreme Court. He rendered a brief decision which stated in part: "A careful examination of the case here and of the proofs submitted convinces me that no just basis for injunctive relief has been established. Motion denied with $10 costs."

CALZA PINS CUTLER TO MAT IN 53:30

Italian Heavyweight Wrestler Beats Chicagoan in Main Bout at 71st Armory.

Georges Calza, the Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, was victor in the main bout last night at Seventy-first Regiment Armory, defeating Charles Cutler, the crafty Chicagoan, after 53 minutes and 30 seconds of lively and evenly matched competition. After going along for more than three-quarters of an hour, with both men alternating in position of advantage, Calza managed to get a head and hip lock on Cutler and pin his shoulders to the mat.

It was by far the most bitterly contested match on a card which included four regular bouts and one extra bout. The Calza-Cutler affair, which was scheduled for two hours, ended so far ahead of the time that the officials gave the principals of the opening bout, in which John Kilonis of New York defeated Charles Marshall of France, with an arm and body scissors in 13 minutes and 50 seconds, another chance to display their wares. This time the two wrestled a furious twenty-minute draw.

Hassan Ali, the new terrible Turk," proved not at all threatening to Ernst Siegfried, the German Oak, in their match scheduled for thirty minutes. Siegfried flored Ali in a little more than ten minutes of wrestling with a half nelson and leg lock. Joe Turner of Washington, was the winner in the other bout over Jimmie Demetral of Boston, using a cross and neck hold to pin his opponent's shoulders to the mat in fifteen minutes and ten seconds.

In the main bout each man threw away numerous chances to score a fall in the early stages by over-anxiety. Twice Calza had a half-nelson on Cutler in the first fifteen minutes, but the husky Chicagoan managed to slip out. Cutler, by a flying-leap, when both wrestlers were in a standing position, obtained a firm head-lock when the bout was half over, but in throwing Calza to the floor the wiry Italian wormed his way out and saved himself from sudden defeat.

The summaries:

Middleweight Class—John Kilonis, New York, threw Charles Marshall, France, with arm and body scissors. Time—13:50; Joe Turner, Washington, threw Jimmie Demetral, Boston, with cross and neck hold. Time—15:10.

Heavyweight Class—Ernst Siegfried, Germany, threw Hassan Ali, Turkey, with a half-nelson and leg lock. Time—10:15; Georges Clasa, Italy, threw Charles Cutler, Chicago, with head and hip lock. Time—53:30.

Extra Bout—John Kilonis, New York, and Joe Turner, Washington, wrestled to draw. Time—20:00.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 9.—Four falls and a referee's decision gave West Virginia University a 23 to 8 victory over the University of Pennsylvania in a dual wrestling meet here tonight. Richards, Hough and Millender earned straight falls for the mountaineers in the first three bouts. Penn took the next two and then West Virginia came back and won the final pair. Captain Pitzenberger won his eighth bout of the season, and Joe Betron, football star, his seventh.

RIDING CLUB TEAM BEATS N. Y. A. C. TRIO

CLASS C GAME IS CLOSE

Riding Club Defeats Squadron A "Y" Players by 5½ to 5—Philadelphians Also Win.

TONIGHT'S POLO PROGRAM.

Exhibition Game—New York Riding Club vs. Squadron A.

Three matches were played last night in the national championship tournament of the Indoor Polo Association at the Squadron A Armory, Madison Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street. Lacking the attraction of an international contest, there was a comparatively small attendance, although some good polo developed, especially in the Class C contest. In this event the Riding Club's trio defeatetd the Squadron A "Y" team by a score of five and a half goals to five. The cavalrymen had the game won up to the last two seconds of play, when Cawthra, the No. 2 of the Riding Club's outfit, hooked the ball out of a scrimmage and shot the winning goal. The ball had hardly struck the back wall when the whistle blew for the end of the game.

In the feature event of the evening, the Class A game between the Riding Club and the New York Athletic Club, the former won by a score of 10 goals to 5½. The third game was in Class D, in which the First Philadelphia City Troop defeated the Riding Club team by a score of 4 to 1.

Two of the American international players appeared in the Class A competition. R. A. Grannlss was at back for the Riding Club trio and played his usual sound polo in that position. He did not come up into the game as much as usual, being content to feed his long drives up to his forwards, Harriman and Fahys.

At No. 2 for the Mercury Foot representatives was Dr. H. B. Blackwell, who plays the same position on the United States team. He was the high scorer of the match, putting across four tallies, but although he fought valiantly, he naturally did not have the combination play afforded when Kinny and Grannlss are with him. Blackwell rates as the highest handicapped player in the association, and his total of nine goals boosted his team's total to 17 goals. The New Riding Club players were all handicapped at 4 goals they were in receipt of 5 goals to start the game. This handicap was more than the Athletic Club players could afford to give away, the game proving that the two combinations were about even playing on the flat.

An accident marred the game in the third period, when George C. Sherman, President of the Indoor Polo Association and No. 1 of the New York Athletic Club team, received a nasty blow across the face from Grannlss's mallet in a melée and was forced to retire, being succeeded by Danforth.

The match between the Riding Club and the Squadron A "Y" team was a nip and tuck affair. The first half ended with the score standing at 4 to 3½ in favor of the Squadron. After a back-hand goal by Drowne of the Squadron and one by Ruxton of the Riding Club, the Cavalrymen were still in the lead and maintained their advantage until the last few seconds of the second period. The two teams were milling in a scrimmage along the side of the ring, when, a moment before the final bell rang, when Cawthra, No. 2 for the Riding Club, with a powerful fore-hander sent the ball squarely between the uprights and decided the game. Drowne, No. 1 of the Squadron trio, accounted for four goals, the other "Y" team score resulting from a pony goal.

The First Philadelphia City Troop outclassed the Riding Club in the Class D contest, the only trio ending with a minus count due to a foul being called on A. L. Warthen, at No. 2, who played despite an injury to his nose received in the play earlier this week. The Philadelphia trio scored 6 goals, but two fouls cut down by score. Adams, at No. 1, and Maderia, at No. 2, for the Troopers scored 2 goals each, while Walton, at back, made the other tally.

RENAULT KNOCKS OUT GODFREY AT PIONEER

Canadian Heavyweight Boxer Defeats Negro in the Eleventh Round.

George Godfrey, the negro heavyweight, who was being primed to meet Harry Wills, was knocked out in the eleventh round of a scheduled twelve-round bout at the Pioneer S. C. last night by Jack Renault, the Canadian heavyweight boxer. Renault sent Godfrey to the canvas with two vicious rights and a left to the jaw after two minutes and five seconds in the eleventh round. In the early stages of the fight Renault did not seem to take the fight seriously and Godfrey pointed the Canadian boxer in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds. But Renault, in the ninth, tenth and eleventh rounds, battered the negro severely with rights and lefts to the body. At the end of the fight Godfrey's nose was bleeding profusely and his left eye was completely closed.

Winnipeg Syndicate Would Match Renault With Harry Wills.

By The Associated Press.

A purse of $200,000 has been offered by a syndicate of Winnipeg business men for a bout between Jack Renault and Harry Wills, negro challenger of World's Champion Jack Dempsey, it was disclosed last night by George Lawly of the Pioneer Sporting Club. The syndicate proposed the bout for Winnipeg in May. The Canadian fighter, who has been approached by the syndicate as a "substitute for Dempsey," is ready to accept the offer, said Lawly, and he added, Wills is seriously considering it. The boxers, however, will await further offers.

Battling Nelson to Wed Girl He Has Not Seen in 17 Years

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—Battling Nelson, former lightweight boxing champion, announced today that he is to marry Dora Klein, 23, a schoolgirl of London, England, "within the next three months." He has not seen Miss Klein since she was 6 years old, Nelson said, but he has corresponded with her and recently they became engaged through the mails.

MERRIMAN TO PLAY PARSON FOR TROPHY

Players Reach Golf Finals by Defeating Scofield and Brown, Respectively.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 9.—B. P. Merriman of Waterbury, winner of the North and South title in 1921, and Donald Parson of Youngstown and Chevy Chase, who has won two tournaments at Pinehurst this season, will meet in the final round of the annual Spring tournament at Pinehurst tomorrow.

Buck Merriman came through to the final at the expense of E. L. Scofield of Stamford and Pinehurst, whom the Waterbury star defeated, 3 and 2.

Donald Parson played the best golf of his career in his semi-final match with T. Russell Brown of Lake Champlain and won, 7 up and 6 to play. Parson, who was 2 up at the sixth, played the next six holes in a total of nineteen strokes, or four strokes less than the par aggregate. He won five of them and brought the match to an end on the twelfth green.

The Youngstown golfer limited himself to three shots on each of the last five holes. He was four up at the turn and, although Rusty Brown played par golf on each of the next three holes. Parson gathered in every one of them with a birdie three.

DUNPHY WINS GOLF TITLE.

Captures Palm Beach Championship by Defeating Langford, 4 and 2.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 9.—Chris J. Dunphy, District of Columbia amateur champion, won the Palm Beach amateur golf championship on the Country Club links, 4 and 2, in the final 36 holes of match play. William B. Langford was his opponent. H. C. Davis of Lynnfield, Mass., won the second flight honors by defeating John Shepard Jr. of Boston, 2 and 1. Dunphy was also medallist of the tournament. A strong northeast wind swept across the course, which made every hole hard to play.

CHIVA RUNS FIRST IN CELESTA PURSE

Harvey's Good Handling Returns Cahn Entry a Victor at Jefferson Park.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—Over a fast track, and before a big Friday crowd, J. C. Cahn's three-year-old brown gelding, Chiva, was returned the winner in the Celesta Purse, the feature event on today's card at Jefferson Park. The son of Broomstick-Baksheesh, which was bred by H. P. Whitney, was the only favorite of the day to reward form players. Six of the seven starters were well backed to win the Celesta. Hermis Kemble was the only one which receded in the betting.

Next to Chiva, A. B. Woodliffe's Episode and C. A. Applegate's Orcus were the most fancied, each going to the post at 4 to 1, the former being the more heavily played, being backed down from 6 to 1. W. A. Burtschell's Fannie Bean and W. M. Cain's Tan Son both went to the post at 7 to 1, the former being forced down from 10 to 1 and the latter from 12 to 1. J. Farrell Jr.'s Mock Orange also received some support around 8 and 7 to 1. Chiva was held at 2 to 1.

Chiva's victory was in a great measure due to the good handling which he received from Jockey Harvey. Fannie Bean was pounds the best horse in the race, but Harvey kept Chiva well up until the stretch was reached, when he moved into the lead, passed Mock Orange and Hermis Kemble, which were first and second, respectively, finishing ahead of Fannie Bean, poorly ridden by Wallace, by half a length.

Fannie Bean Runs Wide.

Wallace took Fannie Bean wide during most of the trip, and entering the stretch was sixth, only a head in front of Orcus. But in the final sixteenth Fannie Bean closed a big gap and would have won in a few more strides. Tan Son tired in the last eighth, but held on long enough to beat Episode by a neck for the short end of the purse of $1,000. Episode had no mishaps, while Orcus, which finished fifth, two lengths behind Episode, followed a dull performance. Mock Orange quit when tackled by Chiva.

Jockey E. Pool rode two winners. He began the day by piloting Sunayr to victory in the first race and ended by getting home first with Execution in the sixth and last event. The first race was a four furlong dash for maiden two-year-olds, in which T. W. O'Brien's Reply was the favorite at odds of 13 to 10, with Sunayr, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer, second choice at 13 to 5. There were ten starters. That Sunayr, daughter of Sun Briar-Misty Law, was able to beat Reply, daughter of Huon-Disponde, was owing to the clever riding of Pool, who guided his mount through a small opening at the stretch turn, thus saving ground to withstand a hard drive in the last eighth and beat the O'Brien filly by half a length. Reply hung on long enough to finish second, a neck in front of Blue Monday, a Polymeliamm-Tranidcolt, owned by the Idle Hour Stock Farm.

Execution Wins Last Race.

The event which closed the day's racing and in which Pool rode Execution to victory, was over a course one mile and seventy yards. Execution and Bolster were equal second choices at odds of 9 to 2, while Adventure went to the post a well backed favorite at 18 to 5. Pool saved much ground with Execution, as he had previously done with Sunayr, and lasted long enough to outstay Blazonry, ridden by Moore at odds of 10 to 1, by a length. Adventure was beaten for the place by three lengths, while the best Bolster could do, after being out of most of the way in the field of twelve, was to finish fifth.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-old maidens; purse $700; four furlongs. Sunayr, 112 pounds (Pool), 13 to 5, 4 to 5, 4 to 5, first; Reply, 113 (Burns), 1 to 2, 1 to 5, second; Blue Monday, 115 (Wilson), 8 to 5, third. Time—0:48 3-5. Roman Girl, Anna Chestnut, Duelma, Fehrak, Lasses White, Patsy Howe, and Copperhead also ran.

SECOND RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; six furlongs. Hillhouse, 94 pounds (Costello), 20 to 1, 8 to 1, 4 to 1, first; Charles J. Craigmile, 110 (Doyle), 5 to 2, 6 to 5, second; The Peruvian, 118 (Butwell), 5 to 2, third. Time—1:14 3-5. Belgian Queen, Feodor, May Bolton, Orlova, Glenlivet, Sandalwood, Vouneed, Ogarite and Fernandos also started.

THIRD RACE—For three-year-olds; purse $700; five and a half furlongs. Body Guard, 105 pounds (Harvey), 7 to 1, 5 to 2, 6 to 5, first; Raffles, 109 (Pool), 4 to 5, 2 to 5, second; Prince of Umbria, 100 (Thurber), 7 to 10, third. Time—1:07 1-5. Lady Mary, Tepitzy, Better Times, Peter Brown, Majority, Rockgarden and Stump Jr. also started.

FOURTH RACE—The Celesta Purse; for three-year-olds and upward; purse $1,000; one mile and an eighth. Episode, Chiva, 102 pounds (Harvey), 2 to 1, 7 to 10, 1 to 3, first; Fannie Bean, 104 (Wallace), 5 to 2, 6 to 5, second; Tan Son, 106 (Doyle), 4 to 5, third. Time—1:47 4-5. Episode, Orcus, Hermis Kemble and Mock Orange also ran.

FIFTH RACE—For four-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; one mile and an eighth. Primo, 119 pounds (Butwell), 6 to 1, 5 to 2, 6 to 5, first; Tex, 107 (Owens), 8 to 1, 4 to 1, second; Repeater, 108 (Roach), 2 to 1, third. Time—1:54 3-5. Wylie, Tommas, Dumbfounder, Devonite, Ballotear, Tulsa, Lucky Kate, Wadsworth's Last and Scourgeman also ran.

SIXTH RACE—For four-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; one mile and seventy yards. Execution, 110 pounds (Pool), 9 to 2, 2 to 1, even, first; Blazonry, 111 (Moore), 4 to 1, 2 to 1, second; Adventure, 108 (Dupee), 18 to 5, 10 to 3, third. Time—1:46 4-5. Fast Trial, Bolster, Hot Foot, Tricks, Jake Feld, Billy Connor, Challenger, Sacajawea and Lively also ran.

PIPP JOINS YANKEES; RUTH IN FIRST DRILL

Takes Part in Practice Session Despite Doctor's Warning—McNally Also Has Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—Wally Pipp, regular first baseman of the Yankees, whose arrival at the camp here was deferred because of dissatisfaction over the contract offered him, reported to Manager Miller Huggins today. Pipp has not yet signed, but is now satisfied with the financial adjustment that has been made in his case. The first baseman and Bob Meusel, unsigned outfielder, had separate conferences with Huggins this afternoon after the training session, and at the end of the confabs Huggins declared everything was ready for the actual signing of the players.

Herb Pennock, former Red Sox pitcher, now is the only dissatisfied player with whom Huggins has to contend. The Yankee manager said he had not yet heard directly from Pennock, nor from the Yankees' headquarters in New York concerning the southpaw. The absence of Rafael Quintana, former infielder of the Havana Reds, has been explained with the receipt of a message stating that the recruit has been compelled because of illness to delay his departure from Cuba.

Ruth Defies Doctor's Orders.

Babe Ruth reported at Heinemann Park for today's two-hour practice session, regardless of his doctor's orders and his own announced intention of taking several days of rest before plunging into the strenuous routine of actual training. Mike McNally, bundled in a heavy sweater, and Bob Meusel also donned uniforms for the first time this year. For convalescents, Ruth and McNally worked with surprising vigor.

Ruth took advantage of the occasion to tune up his batting eye for the first time this season, and to gain the benefits of additional exercise as a first baseman in the fielding practice. Not content with these activities, the Babe batted out flies to the outfielders. On the whole, Ruth had a strenuous day. In his batting practice the Babe, after a poor start, finally got the range and entertained the natives with several demonstrations of his great hitting strength. He clouted many of the balls served up by rookie pitchers to the far corners of the lot.

McNally at Second Base.

McNally confined his activities to fielding practice. He filled in at second base while Aaron Ward shifted over to the short field in the absence of Deacon Scott, who, though in uniform, did not take part in the fielding practice because of a lame right arm. Joe Dugan covered third base, while Ruth kept himself busy at first. Meusel, after a period of batting practice in which he poled a drive out of the park while John Sugga, recruit pitcher, was on the mound, retired to the side lines and kept the outfielders busy chasing flies from his bat. Near the close of the fielding practice Meusel played at first base, with Hinkey Haines on second, John Wight at short and George Anderson on third.

Sam Jones had his first workout on the mound. Mays and Hoyt also were in the box. After the drill Huggins announced the line-up he plans to use in the opening practice game of the season against the New Orleans Pelicans on Sunday afternoon. The line-up follows:

ROBINS' SQUAD PLAYS EIGHT-INNING GAME

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 9.—Twenty-eight members of the Robins went through a hard practice session here this afternoon. New arrivals in the camp were Bert Griffith and Fred Schliebner. Manager Wilbert Robinson again divided his army of athletes into two teams and an eight-inning game was played between the Regulars and Yannigans. The contest was won by the Regulars by a score of 4 to 0 and each of the four hurlers selected for mound duty pitched four innings.

Harry Harper and Art Decatur pitched for the Regulars and only two hits were made off them. In the fourth inning Olson made a single off Harper and in the eighth session Shriver spoiled Decatur's record when he slammed a single to left field. Dickerman and Brown divided the mound work for the Yannigans. Dickerman pitched the first four innings and was not scored on. Only three hits were made off him and he showed a good change of pace, but did not throw any curves. Brown was found for eight hits. One of the wallops was a triple by Tom Griffith and another was a two-bagger by Bert Griffith.

The Regulars scored their first pair of runs in the sixth inning. With two out Bert Griffith was safe on Keeley's low throw from short. Nels drew a pass and the two runners then worked a double steal. Bill Mullan, the rookie third baseman from Birmingham, then singled and two runs came over the plate.

In the next inning Johnston singled and was chased home when Tom Griffith hit to deep left for three bases. Bert Griffith followed with a two-bagger and Tom scored. Schliebner covered first base for the Regulars and made a single in three trips to the plate.

Andy High has accepted terms and the third baseman is no longer a holdout. He will report here in a few days. Ruether and Zach Wheat are now the only prominent members of the club who have not yet signed.

The natives are planning a big reception for Judge Landis. The Commissioner is slated to arrive here next Thursday and will take a prominent part in the formal opening of the Robins' training grounds. A game between the Braves and the Robins will be played that day.

The score by innings of today's practice game follows:

| | R. | H. | E. |
| Yannigans | 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 — | 0 | 1 |

Tigers Book Practice Game.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 9.—Announcement was made yesterday that the Detroit Tigers would play a practice game with the Toronto Internationals April 2. The Toronto team is training here.

Sisler Delays Joining Browns.

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—George Sisler today announced he had postponed his departure for the St. Louis Americans' training camp at Mobile, Ala., until next week, as his physicians advised him his right shoulder should not be exercised for another week.

Shorten and Markle Sent To St. Paul in Benton Deal

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 9.—Chick Shorten, outfielder, and Cliff Markle, pitcher, have been added to the cash consideration to complete the purchase price paid by Cincinnati to St. Paul for Rube Benton, pitcher, it was announced here today. The decision to restore Benton was received with delight by both Manager Mike Kelley and John W. Norton, owner of the Saints.

"I personally feel vindicated for I originally brought the matter up," said Mr. Norton.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 9.—Today's double-barrelled session in the Giants' camp was as conventional as a National League schedule meeting. The only new wrinkle was the sliding practice, and the various rookies hurled themselves recklessly at the soft dirt pit. Young Mahlon Higbee, the capable little outfielder from Hopkinsville, Ky., came up with the best fallaway of them all and drew constant praise from John McGraw, who is said to be a pretty fair judge of such matters.

But the big news was about Dave Bancroft, who has been playing hookey from McGraw's school. A wire from the New York office informed Secretary Jim Tierney that Bancroft has signed his contract and is on his way here, according to a letter received from the captain at his home in Sioux City. Banny signed several days ago, but the reason the news was so late getting here was that he notified the New York office by letter instead of by telegraph.

So everybody is on the qui vive for Bancroft's arrival here tomorrow morning. McGraw and Tierney were visibly elated at the news and all the players joined in the chorus. The only athlete who didn't throw his hat in the air and give three cheers was Travis Jackson, who has been holding down the shortstop position. But Travis was not exactly depressed, although he will recede further back in the limelight when Bancroft arrives and sets to work.

Bill Ryan Reports.

It was said today that Dave had signed his original contract, with no changes. Bill Ryan, who reported this morning, had signed before leaving New York. Jack Scott's case is still in the air, because President Stoneham has been traveling to Key West, en route to Havana, and the club could not reach him until today to lay Scott's new offer before him.

Batting was the chief item of business today. McGraw turned the boys loose with their bats and let them hit their fill. A side diversion for the youngsters was the sliding pit drill, and the regulars ended up with the usual infield practice. Kelly, Frisch, Jackson and Groh were at the infield positions. Jackson looked better than ever and made one glove-hand stop that was a beauty.

Jimmy O'Connell loses none of his class on closer inspection. His batting stance is a model of ease and grace. He hits with the same natural simplicity as Rogers Hornsby—makes it look easy. There are no waste motions, no fidgeting, no rush off feet or hurrying of the swing. The coast leaguer stands well in the back of the batter's box, feet slightly apart, head bent. When he swings, he takes a medium step forward and has a smooth, easy follow-through. He hits to either field, and so far has not been bothered by left-handed pitchers.

Dillard May Rejoin Squad.

More light on the Joe Dillard case. Today McGraw got a letter from Dr. H. W. Gist of Bartlett, Texas, Dillard's home town, explaining that the young fellow is not well and is taking treatments from him. Dillard is there now, but the doctor says Joe is "anxious" to rejoin the Giants and probably will do so within a week.

The first casualty of the season is Jess Barnes, who was hit on the left cheek by a batted ball yesterday. Several teeth were jarred loose, but, outside of some soreness and a big daub of iodine, Jess showed no ill effects today.

HEYDLER OPPOSES RETURN OF BENTON

National League President Says He Is Against Move, Despite Landis's Ruling.

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—Regardless of the favorable ruling of K. M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner, as to the eligibility of Rube Benton, formerly an American Association pitcher, to return to the Cincinnati National League Club this season, John A. Heydler, President of the National League, is opposed to such a move, he disclosed tonight.

Heydler announced he had sent the following telegram to Garry Herrmann, President of the Cincinnati club:

"Pitcher Benton's right to play in organized baseball has never been questioned by me and, for his sake, I am glad that his eligibility has been definitely settled by Judge Landis. The National League, however, several years ago, instituted the policy of determining who shall not play on its clubs. In carrying out this policy, it is our judgment that Benton is not the type of character of player we want, and therefore I will not sanction his return to our organization."

Benton at Reds' Camp.

JAKE DAUBERT IS ILL.

Reds' First Baseman Has Grippe—Unable to Report.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 9.—Jake Daubert, first baseman of the Cincinnati Nationals, who was to have left tomorrow for the training camp, was taken ill tonight with grippe. Daubert is confined to his bed at his home in Schuylkill Haven and it may be a week or ten days before he will be able to leave for the southern training grounds. He recently sent his contract to the Reds.

BRAVES LEAVE FOR SOUTH.

Stuffy McInnis, who yesterday signed as first baseman with the Braves, will leave for the Southern training camp on Monday.

YALE SPORTS YIELD $718,599 FOR YEAR

GRIDIRON PROFIT $235,000

Deficit in Rowing of $47,000, in Track $10,000, Hockey $5,000, and in Baseball $1,000.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 9.—Of the twenty activities supervised by the Yale Athletic Association only football is on an entirely self-supporting basis, according to a report made public tonight for the year ending June, 1922. Of the other major sports baseball came closest to be self-supporting, while the crew and track were the most expensive.

Although the association reported receipts of $718,599 for the year 1921-22, expenses were $650,520, leaving net receipts of $68,270, which were applied to repaying advances made by the university. The association reported a cash balance on hand June 30, 1922, of $5,837.

Football receipts totaled more than $500,000, of which $495,671 were gate receipts. Expenses, however, were $294,880, which included expenses of visiting teams, training and upkeep of the bowl. The football surplus was reported at $235,000.

The baseball receipts were $77,000 and expenses $78,006. The hockey and swimming teams were the only other sports in which receipts even approximated expenses. The hockey team reported receipts of $35,455 and expenses of $40,509, while the swimming team reported receipts of $5,251 and expenses of $7,719.

The crew and track teams both showed large deficits. The crew brought in $9,715 and cost $56,494, while the track team reported receipts of $4,321 and expenses of $39,351.

The basketball team made out fairly well, reporting receipts of $7,391 and expenses of $13,989, while the tennis team brought in $3,209 and cost $7,244.

The only sports that reported no receipts were golf, gun club, rifle club and soccer, run at a cost of $3,538.

U. S. MAY PLAY CANADA FOR TITLE IN HOCKEY

Games Will Be Staged in Boston and Toronto if Invitation Is Accepted.

PITTSBURGH, March 9.—The Canadian Hockey Association will decide at its annual meeting in Winnipeg on March 20 whether the champion team of that league will compete in an international match with the winner of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, President W. S. Haddock announced here today. In the event an international series is decided upon, Mr. Haddock said, the teams will play for the Wills Trophy.

The decision of the Canadian association will be announced just before the close of the United States championship series between St. Paul and Boston. If the international event is staged, two games will be played at Boston and two games at Toronto. Mr. Haddock explained that even though St. Paul wins the United States pennant, the games will be played at Boston, because of the lack of ice at St. Paul.

BOSTON, March 9.—An invitation to Canadian amateur hockey authorities to have their champion team meet the amateur champions of the United States was announced by Manager George V. Brown of the Boston Arena today.

NEW HAVEN LOSES TO BOSTON COLLEGE

Defeated in Hockey Match in Boston Rink by Score of 3 Goals to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 9.—Boston College defeated the New Haven Hockey Club here tonight, 3 to 2. Leo Hughes started the scoring for Boston College after eleven minutes of play with a goal from the side. Sonny Foley scored the two other goals for Boston College. Norman Shay and S. Veno starred for the New Haven club. It was Boston College's last contest. It finished the season with a record of 14 victories, 1 tie and 1 defeat.

The line-up:

| BOSTON COL. (3). | | NEW HAVEN (2). |
|---|---|---|
| Fitzgerald | G. | Rasume |
| Culhane | L.W. | W. Veno |
| Hughes | R.W. | Lowrey |
| Foley | C. | S. Veno |
| Garrity | L.D. | Shay |
| S. L. Morrissey | R.D. | Armstrong |

Goals—Foley (2), Hughes, Shay, Lowrey.
Referees—Sands and Gaffney. Time—Three 15-minute periods.

BOAT RACE POSTPONED.

Unfavorable Weather Halts Miami-to-Havana Cruiser Event.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—Due to unfavorable weather conditions, the Miami to Havana race for express cruisers scheduled for tomorrow has been postponed, it was announced today by Commodore A. A. Schantz of Detroit, Chairman of the Racing Committee. The race will be held the first day that the winds permit. Five boats have entered the race, for which $10,000 in cash as well as other prizes has been offered.

SHOEMAKER DEFAULTS.

American Is Forced Out of British Snooker Tournament.

LONDON, March 9.—Owing to illness, J. Howard Shoemaker, former American amateur champion pocket billiard player, defaulted today to C. A. Harris, Bristol, in the elimination contests in the British snooker championship. Shoemaker was entered by the New York Athletic Club.

DRISCOLL AFTER 440 MARK.

Boston Runner to Try for Record in Buffalo Meet.

BOSTON, March 9.—James W. Driscoll of the Boston A. A., national amateur champion at 440 yards outdoors, today accepted an invitation to attempt to break the world's record for the quarter mile indoors at Buffalo, N. Y., March 17. The mark which he will run against is 49 3-5 seconds, established on the same track in 1913 by Thomas J. Halpin, a clubmate of Driscoll.

Pittsburgh Defeats Duluth.

PITTSBURGH, March 9.—Pittsburgh defeated Duluth, 5 to 4, tonight in the first game of the closing two-game series of the United States Amateur Hockey Association here.

Michigan Will Not Seek Reinstatement in I. A. A. A. A.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 9.—The University of Michigan will not seek reinstatement in the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America, but will confine its athletic endeavors to the West, it was announced today. Athletic Director Yost has decided that Western Conference competition, along with the national collegiate meet, will keep the Wolverine teams well occupied.

Numerous requests had come from the student body for Michigan representation in the Eastern intercollegiate meet. Michigan lost its membership last year through failure to enter a team in three consecutive years.

FOOTBALL SOLONS DISCUSS THE RULES

Twelve Members of Committee Meet in Secret Before General Session Today.

Twelve members of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee met behind closed doors in the preliminary session of the committee's annual meeting at the Biltmore last night. At the close Chairman E. K. Hall of Dartmouth stated that there would be no announcements as to the matters discussed or any action taken by the committee until the close of today's main session at noon.

As no radical changes are expected in the football code, the general air of an ordinary routine meeting prevailed before the members of the committee went into session last night. Informal discussion on the neutral zone controversy which was brought to light several times during last season's play took place before the doors were closed. At present it is not definitely designated in the rules book just when the neutral zone is established. Some umpires are of the opinion that it is when the ball is placed by the referee, others claim that it is when the centre of the team on the offensive places his hands on the ball, while others rule that it is established when seven men are on the line. It is understood that this question will receive some attention in the committee meeting which begins at 9 o'clock this morning.

A new type of football was also shown the members of the committee before the meeting convened. It is different from the standard type in that the valve is on the opposite side of the ball from the lacings, with a special water-proof attachment operated by a key. It is claimed that this ball is better balanced and laces in a more symmetrical form than the old type.

The following members of the committee were present last night: E. K. Hall, Dartmouth, chairman; Walter Camp, Yale; F. W. Moore, Harvard; W. W. Roper, Princeton; A. A. Stagg, Chicago; M. F. Ahearn, Kansas A. and M.; W. S. Langford, Trinity; J. A. Babbitt, Haverford; C. W. Savage, Oberlin; H. S. Stegeman, Georgia; D. X. Bible, Texas A. and M.; Captain J. McEwen, U. S. Military Academy.

HOPPE-SCHAEFER TO DISCUSS RULES

Referee Cline and Other Officials Will Attend Interpretation Conference Today.

Willie Hoppe, Jake Schaefer, Referee Harry Cline and officials of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company will hold a final meeting in this city this afternoon to discuss the rules and other arrangements for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard match between Hoppe and Schaefer, which will begin at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Monday night and continue on Tuesday and Wednesday.

There will be no changes made in the playing rules, and the meeting has been called solely for the purpose of making sure that both the players and the referee are thoroughly conversant with them. The meeting really will be in the nature of an interpretation affair at which certain of the rules will be discussed and interpreted.

The two men will conclude their practicing for the match today and tomorrow. Their work tomorrow will consist chiefly of limbering up. Both are in excellent stroke. Hoppe asserts that he is playing better billiards now than he has at any time this season. The muscular trouble in his right shoulder, which handicapped him so severely in the international tournament, has disappeared entirely and his physician has stated that he is in better condition physically than he has been for several years.

While Schaefer has been doing all of his practicing in private at the Hotel Majestic since his arrival in this city, it was learned yesterday that he ran 500 points without missing recently and several times has collected 300 and better from the spot in his workouts with Albert G. Cutler. Bob Cannefax, former three-cushion champion, was among those who witnessed Schaefer at work yesterday. He said that Schaefer ran 200 points on his first turn at the table and followed this with a cluster of 150. Then he called it an afternoon's work.

Following the announcement that Hoppe had been installed a 5 to 8 favorite, wads of Schaefer money made their appearance on Broadway yesterday afternoon. Charley Kline, proprietor of the Strand Academy, reported that he had a commission of $2,500 to place on Schaefer at those odds.

Billiard Results.

In his preparation for his championship meeting with Jake Schaefer at the Hotel Pennsylvania next week, Willie Hoppe engaged in another 500-point match with Charley Peterson at the Hoppe-Peterson Billiard Club last evening. Hoppe ran out in three innings averaging 166 2-3. Hoppe won by 500 to 3. His score by innings follows: 111, 137, 252—total 500.

In a New York State three-cushion amateur billiard title match, J. Cosgrove last night defeated W. J. Kranzer, 35 to 16, at Cranfield's 145th Street Academy. The game consumed fifty-two innings, and the winner had a high run of 3, while Kranzer's highest run was 2.

John Low won two matches last evening in the Metropolitan Class C 18.2 balk-line billiard championship tournament being held under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at the Broadway Billiard Academy. In the first game he defeated F. Burnham by 150 to 53, having a high run of 19 and an average of 3 30-40. Burnham's high run was 6 and his average was 33-59. In the second game Low won from H. Fischer by a score of 150 to 97, his high run being 11 and his average 3 18-44. Fischer's best cluster was 9 and his average 2 9-44.

Morgan Hughes was the winner over Jack Van Gilder in last night's New York State three-cushion tournament game at Cranfield's 181st Street Billiard Academy by a score of 35 to 25. Hughes had a high run of 6, while Van Gilder's best cluster was a 4. The game lasted fifty-six innings.

In another match in the New York State three-cushion tournament at Cranfield's 145th Street Billiard Academy last night Joe Cosgrove was an easy victor over W. J. Kranzer by 35 to 16. The game lasted fifty-two innings. Cosgrove had a high run of 3 and Kranzer had a 2.

St. Paul Wins at Hockey.

CLEVELAND, March 9.—St. Paul, winner of the Western Division championship, defeated Cleveland, 3 to 0, in a United States Amateur Hockey Association game here tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 9.—Yale's intercollegiate champion swimming team tonight hung up new world's records of 2 minutes 4 seconds for the 220-yard five-man relay race and 3 minutes 30 2-5 seconds for the 300-yard six-man event. It attempted to shatter the 200-yard figures of 1 minute 38 1-5 seconds, but succeeded in making the distance in only 1 minute 39 2-5 seconds.

The Eli mermen sliced three-fifths of a second off the former 250-yard mark of 2 minutes 4 3-5 seconds and an even second off the old figure of 3 minutes 31 2-5 seconds for 300 yards. The records were made in the regular 200-yard swimming race in the annual Yale-Pennsylvania Intercollegiate League dual meet here, the distance being extended to give the Yale mermen a chance to set the new marks. The home team led all the way. The record-shattering sextet swam in the following order: Colgate, Sullivan, Banks, Captain Jelliffe, Frost and Stewart.

Yale won the meet, taking five of the seven events. The score was 45 to 9. In the water polo game which followed, Yale was the victor by 34 to 5.

Eddie Bench of Yale established a new intercollegiate record in the 200-yard breast-stroke event. He swam the distance in 2 minutes 27 2-5 seconds, breaking his own record of 2:58 2-5.

50-Yard Swim—Won by Haist, Penn; Higgins, Yale, second; Bixler, Yale, third. Time—:25 4-5.

440-Yard Swim—Won by Sauers, Yale; Clark, Yale, second; Rimer, Penn, third. Time—5:50 1-5.

150-Yard Backstroke—Won by Lincoln, Yale; Higgins, Penn, second; Betobel, Penn, third. Time—2:07.

220-Yard Breaststroke—Won by Bench, Yale; Veeder, Yale, second; Fox, Penn, third. Time—2:57 2-5.

POLY PREP SWIMMERS TENTATIVE WINNERS

Lead Erasmus by Two Points in Marquand Meet — Backstroke Protest Is Upheld.

Poly Prep of Brooklyn was last night named tentative winner of the Marquand High School Interscholastic swimming meet held in the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. tank. The fifty-yard backstroke swim was completed under protest of officials with the result that Referee Bigelow of the Central Y. M. C. A. ruled that this event be held again some time next week at a date agreeable to all contestants. Doubt existed as to whether Curtin of Poly Prep, the winner, started in advance of the gun. For this reason the event was not pronamently considered as official and the awards will not be granted until the completion of the event, as the point scores are so close that it may determine a new meet winner.

Erasmus Hall stands second in number of points scored, having 20 to its credit. This is but two behind the Poly Prep total. Manual Training is in third place with 14 points.

The disputed race proved the most exciting of the meet. Brown of Flushing High School holds the national scholastic record, but he was defeated by Curtin in 33 1-5 seconds, a mark not quite the equal of Brown's record. The title holder finished second, about a foot behind Curtin, while Dretch of Townsend Harris High School finished third, approximately the same distance in the rear of Brown. The start of the race was deliberate but fast, and for about forty-five yards the swimmers were on even terms. Then a sprint was started which resulted in Curtin's protested victory.

50-Yard Swim—Won by McKee, Poly Prep; Arnold, Manual, second; Cady, Marquand, third. Time—:28 seconds.

220-Yard Swim—Won by Hastings, Manual; Davenport, Manual, second; Dodd, Poly Prep, third; Edwards, Poly Prep, fourth. Time—2:30.

Fancy Diving—Won by Smith, Erasmus (76.6); D. Krissel, Erasmus, second (79.9); Curry, Erasmus, third (71); Koch, Poly Prep, fourth (63).

50-Yard Back Stroke Swim—Won by Curtin, Poly Prep; Brown, Flushing, second; Gretch, Townsend Harris, third; Van Aalst, Manual, fourth. Time—33 1-5 seconds.

WEISSMULLER HOLDS TITLE.

Successfully Defends National 220-Yard Crown in Pittsburgh.

BALFOUR ON BALFOUR.

Lord BALFOUR has recently been giving a second series of Gifford Lectures on Theism, and seemingly carried something of their metaphysical method into his controversy with Ambassador HARVEY. The issue between them appeared to be very simple. Was it or was it not true, as Lord BALFOUR stated in his famous but not very fortunate note of last August, that the United States "insisted that though "our Allies were to spend the money "it was only on our security that "they were prepared to lend it"? This has been categorically denied by the Treasury of the United States. In fact, this country did lend money to France and Italy and other nations in the war, without a British endorsement of any kind on their obligations. Lord BALFOUR is perfectly aware of this, since in his speech on Thursday he said: "In some cases the loan "was a direct transaction between the "United States and some particular "ally, such as France or Italy." Yet he came forward rather more indignant than becomes a philosopher that his words of last August could possibly have been misunderstood, or that he should have been accused of even unintentionally misrepresenting what had actually occurred.

Undertaking the task of expounding himself, Lord BALFOUR charged Colonel HARVEY with having overlooked the vital words, "in substance if not in form." This was the starting point for a display of the subtle Balfourian dialectic which at once fascinated and perplexed in Lord BALFOUR'S book, "The Foundations of Belief," and even more in his pamphlet, "Economic Notes on Insular Free Trade." This last was issued at the height of the controversy with JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN, when he was trying to make the Conservative Party take up with the policy of protection. The Balfour statement was supposed to clear the air, but in truth it filled it with so many fine-spun distinctions and evasive phrases that nobody knew exactly where the Prime Minister stood.

It is almost as hard to make out Lord BALFOUR'S present position. He comes down heavily on the wrong that was done him by taking a single phrase out of its "context." But he himself takes the entire passage out of its context in what was a long plea for a mutual cancellation of war debts. That plan having fallen flat, and the stage of paying the war debts having been reached, it is easy to agree with the prevalent opinion in England that Lord BALFOUR is now merely beating the air over a dead issue. He did, indeed, make one statement on which it would be interesting to get the official view of Washington. He said that "the British Gov-"ernment suggested to the Govern-"ment of the United States that the "latter should relieve us of the first "of these tasks." He meant the task of financing the European Allies. It was because the American Government declined the proposal that Great Britain, according to Lord BALFOUR, was compelled to ask for loans here on her own account. Obviously this cannot have been the whole of the financial transaction, but it would be desirable for our Government officials, or at any rate some of those who were in office in 1917, to state whether their recollection of the affair agrees with that of Lord BALFOUR.

All that has come from the State Department thus far is that the dispute between Lord BALFOUR and Ambassador HARVEY is no concern of this Government. The Ambassador was not acting on instructions when he issued his unusual and rather rude challenge to Lord BALFOUR, and now must be left to conduct his own controversy with the Scotch metaphysician. It is a private quarrel. The debate between the two has become purely academic, and, if continued, will almost surely be voted by the public in both countries to be flat, stale and unprofitable.

BILLS AND LAWS.

When "Uncle JOE" CANNON was Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, it was a favorite saying of his that "people seem to "think that it's the business of this "committee to make appropriations. "That ain't so. It's the committee's "main business to prevent appropria-"tions." He meant, to prevent excessive and unnecessary appropriations. So it is a main function of a Legislature to kill foolish, unjustifiable or imperfectly considered bills; to prevent bad, or doubtful, or hasty, half-baked laws. Most of the innumerable projects of legislation are best smothered. The Legislature at Albany has before it a large and useful job of suffocation. Bills swarm. Eighty-five were reported in the Senate on Wednesday; but on the same day all but four of the "equal rights" bills introduced at the request of the National Woman's Party were slain by the Senate Committee on General Laws. The four bills reported make the sexes equal in the matter of wills, inheritances, public office and service, and certain habeas corpus proceedings.

These are unexceptionable. The percentage of wheat to chaff is not usually so large among the bill-producers. Nobody doubts the good intentions of the advocates of a dozen or more "child welfare" bills on which hearings have been held before the Senate Judiciary Committee; but when charity commissioners and representatives of charitable organizations, as well as of the much-enduring taxpayers, oppose the extension of the work, the committal of the State to new and expensive enterprises in a field that is still largely experimental, it is the duty of the Legislature to obey common sense and common prudence, no matter how enticing the voice of the humanitarian.

So with the large, ambitious program of the Lockwood Housing Committee that was. Here is a sheaf of measures, many of which require long and careful pondering, and some of which seem plainly premature or superfluous. The bills to regulate the Stock Exchange, to regulate labor unions, to make workmen's compensation insurance a State monopoly are, it is said, sure to fail in one or both houses. They ought to fail. The bill for a State Commission of Trade and Commerce, subjecting corporations to paternalistic inquisition and regulation, is unnecessary, to say no more. In its intermediate report the Lockwood committee showed that "under the general "supervision of the counsel for the "committee" in this city alone 370 indictments under the Penal Code and the Donnelly Anti-Trust act had been obtained; under the Sherman act and the Clayton act, 296 indictments. There had been 255 pleas of "guilty," 29 sentences to prison, and fines to the amount of $550,000 had been collected. Juries were willing to convict. What is the need of any more law?

GEN. O'RYAN AND THE BUREAU.

The appointment of Major Gen. O'RYAN as counsel to the Senate subcommittee that has been directed to investigate the Veterans' Bureau is admirable. A lawyer by profession, he has been associated with the National Guard since 1897. It is not too much to say that General O'RYAN has done more to develop and train the New York organization than any other officer. Serving three years as a private, he rose rapidly to the command. Nothing that affected its interests was too unimportant to have his attention. He was always active in securing legislation for its benefit. When the National Guard of New York was constituted a division there was no question of who had earned the right to lead it. On the Mexican border in 1914 he commanded as Major General by designation of President WILSON. When the Twenty-seventh Division was organized for service in France General O'RYAN went over with it, the only National Guard officer to be entrusted with a division of troops in the field.

The Twenty-seventh made a great name for itself in fighting with the British army to break the Hindenburg line, sharing the honors with the Thirtieth, a Southern division. Upon his return from France General O'RYAN found time, while taking a prominent part in reorganizing the National Guard of New York, to write an authoritative history of the record of the Twenty-seventh in France. It is a model work of the kind. As an experienced Guardsman and a veteran who was a witness of the gallantry and privations of the American soldier in the World War, General O'RYAN can be depended on to give efficient aid to Senator REED of Pennsylvania and his associates in the investigation of the Veterans' Bureau. He has an understanding of the difficulties that the ex-service men have had to contend with in obtaining relief. At the same time he realizes that the task of the Veterans' Bureau is a severe test of administration, and that it has solid achievement to its credit.

It is General O'RYAN'S view that the subcommittee will co-operate with the new Director General FRANK T. HINES, in putting the needs of the disabled veterans first. "All interfering red tape," says General O'RYAN, "will be cut for the accomplishment of that purpose." There is no intention of making a sensation of the inquiry. At the same time the committee will look into legitimate complaints and overhaul the machinery of the bureau, local as well as national. A thorough investigation has become necessary, but to prolong it unnecessarily would be detrimental to the interests of the veterans. With Senator REED, General O'RYAN and General HINES active in their behalf, their cause is in good hands.

THE CITY'S POWER TO BORROW.

Controller CRAIG'S report that the City of New York has at the present date power to borrow about $175,000,000 within the constitutional debt limit is doubtless intended partly for public information. But it also must be meant for the enlightenment of the Legislature. It really answers one of the questions addressed by that body to Mayor HYLAN. Pending before the Legislature is a Transit bill which, if enacted into law and carried out, would require the city to raise something like $600,000,000 by loans. The Legislature properly asked how this could be done. Controller CRAIG'S report bluntly intimates that it can't be done.

To be sure, the Transit bill provides that the bonds issued in order to acquire and extend subways in this city shall be "deemed" to be revenue-producing bonds, and so exempt from the debt limitation. But deeming them so does not make them so. In fact, the Transit bill itself clearly implies that they will not be so, at least during the first year or two after they are issued. As a very first step, about $190,000,000 would be required by the city to "recapture" parts of the existing subway system. That sum alone is greater than the entire borrowing power of the city at present. It is evident that the Controller's report, rightly interpreted, is a fatal obstacle to the Mayor's grandiose but impossible transit plans.

OFFICIAL INFORMATION.

Mr. UTARD, President of the Franco-American Board of Commerce and Industry, put a question in his letter printed this week, which is answered in a statement just issued by the Executive Committee of the Press Congress of the World. His general question related to the distinction between "propaganda" and "information." President HARDING, who has added words to our current vocabulary, a year or two ago differentiated "propaganda" from "education." The difference was not one of content but of purpose: propaganda aiming to close the mind against any other conclusion than the one presented by the propagandist; education having, by contrast, as its aim the opening of the mind and making it receptive.

This definition does not help to discriminate between "propaganda" and "information" in their content. If both tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, there is no difference. But if either propaganda or information is other than this, it is bound eventually to defeat its own objects. As the Press Congress put it, "before the next war comes, if it "comes, Governments and nations "must be convinced that, in the long "run, lying does not pay." The Germans found this out. But the world suffered while they were finding it out. Any agency that contributes to making the exact facts known is performing a world service. If the French publicity bureau here, of which M. LIEBERT spoke the other day, spreads accurate information concerning conditions in Europe, it will be beneficial to the world, and especially to America, by whatever name the publicity is called.

JANUARY RAILWAY EARNINGS.

In January the net operating income of railways doubled compared with last year, the totals standing at $60,654,700 and $29,486,000. The rate of return on investment was 2.75 per cent. last year and 5.54 per cent. this year. Those who think that the railways are too rich will emphasize the later figures. Those who think that the country needs strong and thriving railways will point out that last year's income was only half of what it ought to be and that the average of the two years is not sufficient to sustain railway credit. It is in every way desirable that railway capital should increase in proportion to traffic increase. Otherwise the business the country can do will be limited. Over the last dozen years railway capital has increased by about one-fifth of its official valuation. But during the same period traffic has increased 41 per cent.

If the railways are to increase their facilities, they must have more capital. They would like to spend a billion a year. But if the rates and profits of the railways are restricted, they cannot continue to consume a quarter of the coal and lumber production, a third of the iron and steel production, a fifth of the copper and brass production, and one-ninth of the oil production. Railway consumption of everything used in transportation is a promise of a price level for both labor and goods, which is a better remedy for the troubles even of the farmers than any conceivable reduction of rates could be. A policy of limitation of transportation capacity is a threat against the general prosperity.

The railways have earned their profits by increasing their efficiency. They reduced the proportion of their earnings to their expenditures, their "operating ratio" from 85 per cent. to 81 per cent. They did not carry their unprecedented traffic at an absolute reduction of costs, but only realized a relative reduction, due to a larger increase of business than of expenses. Even the ratio of 81 per cent. is abnormally large, and the possibility of reducing it further is the best argument for letting the railroads alone for a time. The immense freight movement shows that mere rates did not obstruct it. The Interstate Bureau of Statistics reported the other day that the roads did not earn enough in 1923 to provide "the margin above "fixed charges necessary in any busi-"ness." They are now likely to earn a margin attractive to capital if they do not have to fight the edicts of both Congress and the railway unions.

A LITERARY SUICIDE SQUAD.

A quarter of a century ago some brave young men allowed themselves to be inoculated with the germs of yellow fever, that science might learn from its effects on their bodies something of its workings, and might seek a cure. Some of them died, but a grateful nation honored them. Like honor will presently be paid to the squad of volunteers which Justice FORD is organizing to read all the indecent and atrocious literature that can be got hold of, in order to warn the public against it. This is no conscription, no compulsory service; these gentlemen are voluntarily going to turn their backs on sweetness and light and submit themselves to horrors untold, for the public good. Polish up the bugles and get ready to sound taps; call in the artists and set them to work on designs for the commemorative gold medals.

Justice FORD, no doubt to comfort his weeping family, pretends that the committee may survive the ordeal. It is to be composed, he says, of "hard-"ened sinners like myself, representa-"tive fathers of families." We are glad to find that he agrees with SAMUEL BUTLER, spiritual progenitor of the younger generation, on the inevitable wickedness of fathers of families. But we are afraid he is mistaken in thinking that they, though necessarily hardened sinners, are immune to further corruption from the printed page. His friend Mr. JOHN S. SUMNER can tell him that nobody is immune except Mr. SUMNER himself, who has to read obscene books in the line of duty and by long experience has become well vulcanized.

The imagination staggers at the thought of the agonies awaiting this gallant band, but they will not shirk their duty. They will read everything that is offered, and ask for more; read it line by line to make sure that no obscenity escapes unnoticed. They know that such practices lead to inevitable ruin of the moral character; is it not in the writings of COMSTOCK? But they count their own ruin as nothing if they can save the rest of us. Applications for membership on the committee will be received at Justice FORD'S chambers, accompanied by sworn statements that the applicant is a father and a hardened sinner. The Post Office has made special arrangements to handle the increased volume of mail.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Grievance Confessed and Regretted.

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, writes to THE TIMES with a vehemence which shows him still "a first-class fighting man." He declares that it has treated him unfairly and demands confession and reparation. He shall have both, for Mr. ANDERSON has a real grievance.

It lies in the fact that there was printed on this page of THE TIMES criticism of him, based on the report that he had told the Assistant District Attorney, Mr. PECORA, of having paid money to men on "dry" papers to do what they could for prohibition, and on the further near-fact that in the same issue of the paper there should have appeared, but did not, statements from both himself and Mr. PECORA, denying that he—Mr. ANDERSON—had said or intimated that the men who, as he still admits, did get the "dry" money, had been disloyal or treacherous to the papers employing them. This does justify protest by Mr. ANDERSON, for he had a right to have printed—and believed—his direct and explicit assertion that so far as he knew none of the men paid by him had "betrayed or put anything over on any paper he was working for."

As it happens, his denial was printed in THE TIMES on the day when he says THE TIMES was the only New York paper not to print it, but it was printed only in the earlier editions. It was crowded out of the latest—the one he presumably saw—through those exigencies and necessities of last-hour insertion of late news which hardly are explicable to people who have not been in a composing room at that time.

In his heart Mr. ANDERSON must be sure that this was not intentional suppression of his denial and that it sincerely is regretted by THE TIMES. He has had, at one time and another, not a few columns of THE TIMES'S space, and the fact that the paper often has found fault with him would be an additional reason, if one were needed, for it to treat him with absolute fairness.

Precautions Could Be Taken.

A more terrible experience than that of the young man who for four hours was locked in the vault of a Paterson bank hardly could be imagined. He knew the strength of his prison, that his release would take long, and that the chances were that he would be suffocated to death before the walls of steel and concrete could be pierced. Both his emotions and his sufferings there in the darkness, as the difficulty of breathing steadily increased, can be imagined only too easily, and that he was not dead, but only nearly dead, when the rescuers at last broke through to him, can be explained only by the fact that he had become unconscious, a state in which all the bodily functions and demands are much reduced.

Accidental imprisonings of this sort in bank vaults have occurred often enough to make it a little surprising that provision for meeting them is not made in their construction. One that suggests itself would be the leaving of one or more small conduits through which air could be forced into the vault from the outside in case of need. Perhaps that would be deemed the leaving of points of attack by burglars, but seemingly it would not be difficult to make the conduits in such a way that nothing except air could be driven through them.

But the accounts of the affair in Paterson state that, as soon as the hole broken in the top of the vault with such difficulty was large enough to let a man pass through it, the one who entered after the surgeon immediately disconnected the time-lock, and then the door was opened by means of the regular combination, just as it is every morning when the time to begin business has arrived.

Why could not the imprisoned clerk have done that? Presumably because he did not know how, but there is no obvious reason why he and the other few employés whose regular task it was to enter the vault in the regular course of the day's work should not have been given the same information that was possessed by the man who so quickly did make possible, from the inside, the opening of the door from the outside. The fact that this was not done indicates that there are good reasons for not doing it, but they are not apparent to the uninitiate.

An Oldster Enters a Protest.

At least one elderly person has been both discouraged and alarmed by the warmth and amount of praise that has been given by seemingly authoritative critics, both in this country and in England, to "Jacob's Room," a recently issued book by VIRGINIA WOOLF. The elderly one's literary standards, it must be admitted, were fixed a good many years ago and they may be quite obsolete—they certainly are if "Jacob's Room" is worthy of the eulogies it is receiving—but he cannot help wondering what epithets now are deserved by the books in many languages, hitherto recognized as products of genius or high talent, that are utterly unlike it in every element of style and content.

If this book is a masterpiece, as its admirers say—if its incoherences, its inconsequences, its innumerable obscurities, its many inexplicable appearances and disappearances of insignificant personages, make it commendable—then the once admitted beauties and merits of all the classics, old and older, are the delusions of ignorance, and writers should be lauded not for lucidity of phrasing, for getting their ideas clearly and fully down on paper, but for leaving their readers to dig and toil through a wild confusion of fuzzy sentences, few of which have any relation to any other, to get at last, if any meaning at all, one that the better authors of other days could and would have expressed in terms easily and swiftly understandable by any literate.

And it is not only in English that the new school writers are making books of this sort. The Germans and the Italians are doing it, and even in France, where obscurity always has been a mortal literary sin of which even the humbler writers were innocent, something of a cult has arisen for the works of MARCEL PROUST, a man who, by all previously accepted French standards, deliberately and continuously violates every rule of literary composition.

If this sort of thing doesn't indicate degeneration and perversion, what does it indicate? That nobody knew how to write till now? Perhaps; but the elderly person who hates "Jacob's Room" and "Du Côte Chez Swann" is not ready to admit it—not yet.

This Theory Has Its Plausibility.

Seemingly the mystery of how the victims of the Ku Klux Klan in Mer Rouge were mutilated has been solved. Their bones could have been broken just as they were broken by running a heavy tractor engine over their bodies, dead or alive, and close to where the men were killed there was a tractor with wheels perfectly adapted for doing what was done.

As proof, of course, the contiguity of an adequate instrument to the scene of the crime is far from conclusive, but the degree of probability it creates is so high that its acceptance by many people in the vicinity of the village is not surprising.

Hitherto it has been supposed or suspected that the lynchers devised and constructed a special machine for torturing as well as killing the foes of the Klan, but it took a lot of credulity to believe that of American citizens, even though they were members of an utterly un-American and wholly vicious organization. That, in a moment of rage and fear, they might run a tractor over dead bodies in an attempt to render their identification impossible is believable, though with some difficulty.

BLUE JAYS IN THE SNOW.

Than blue jays flying in the snow,
Junco, with your ashen breast,
Nuthatch, with your steely crest,
Little friendly chickadee
Crying in the cedar tree,
Crow, that never seems so black
As upon a Winter track,
Did you see them going by,
Like small bits of the blue sky,
Hidden now behind some thing
Dusky gray as a bird's wing?

As blue flowers delicate
Laid upon a china plate,
As an orchid suddenly
Blooming on a barren tree,
They were with me yesterday
In the snow and shadows gray,
Earnest of the lovely things
In the pack that April brings.

Now my faith is strong again
In dogwood and in cyclamen,
And I believe in iris now,
And flowers on the apple bough,
And under the great drifts of snow
I see the bright arbutus grow,
Although the wind is loud and cold,

As if some bed of blossoms blue
Suddenly took wings and flew,
The blue jays chattered, as jays will,
And flew over my Winter hill.
And then the gentle chickadee
Came down to sing familiarly,
And where I'd tied a lump of fat
A black and white woodpecker sat,
And the blue glory had gone by,
And it is Winter still. But I
Can shut my eyes and see them go,
Like morning stories in the snow.

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

NEW ANTI-TRUST LAWS.

More Regulation Costly and May Miss the Mark.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Congressional cry is for laws, more laws, speedily enacted laws, vindictive laws to regulate the ten great oil companies. The remedy may be worse for the public than the disease. The Senate report shows that the net earnings of these companies for a period of ten years is slightly less than two billion dollars. Divided among ten companies it shows an annual income each of twenty million dollars. Henry Ford, on flat tires and hitting on one cylinder, can beat this record in almost any quarter when the highway of business is not dug up by politicians. The cost, much of it hidden, directly or indirectly to enact anti-trust laws, to interpret these laws, to conduct investigations and maintain commissions apart from all that is lost through the halting of business, is probably greater than the entire net earnings of the ten companies. One can readily see the folly of it.

There have been enacted 65,000 statutes in the United States during the past five years. For a country which started on the Ten Commandments, with only a blunderbuss and a barrel of rum to enforce them, we may be termed progressive! With several hundred thousand laws and regulations, we may term ourselves a law-ridden, commission-driven, tax-whipped people. Conscientious citizens, even judges, unwittingly break their daily dozen. We are drugged by legislation and blackjacked by regulation. Personal and local responsibility for the observance and enforcement of a right is shifted to the law and thereafter ignored. From a preventive rather than a punitive point, if laws against larceny were repealed there would probably be no more theft than today. The individual and locality would check it through more precaution. If fire insurance were abolished, fires would diminish, firebugs would vanish. So as to most of the ills which legislators pray over or prey upon. If given time, each community by economic barriers, Blue Sky Committees, care in admission of strangers to business, boycott and other ancient and approved methods, would do more than all the laws to prevent these ills.

One and all recognize that a Divine Providence or some natural law rules the tides and rotates the seasons. It put the natural resources in the earth, such as coal, iron and oil, and permits their extraction. Thus created and maintained for centuries, they are surely followed through all processes to their ultimate use. It is, therefore, incredible that, if at any time this all-wise Providence found human aid necessary, it would invoke a legislative body, unless the inscrutable purpose be to punish us for our abuse of the ballot and neglect of civic duty.

The wisdom of ages, unmuzzled and unbottled, points to a few simple laws, rigidly and continuously enforced. Let the individual do the rest.

The direction of great economic forces may finally be left to the constructive, affirmative mind of business. The blue-wing teal flies eighty miles an hour. To hit him the gunner aims three yards ahead. So with these Business Birds whose flight is so swift that a law directed at them today may hit a spot three years behind them. They are making a new civilisation while legislators debate. LINDSAY RUSSELL.

AFTER EGYPT, GREECE.

No one will dispute Mr. Ragosine's contention, advanced in his letter published in last Sunday's TIMES, that the artistic achievements of Greece in the fifth century B. C. immeasurably surpassed those of Egypt at any age and, in particular, of Tut-ankh-Amen's time, which preceded the classic Golden Age by nearly a thousand years. Indeed, it is to be hoped that educational agencies will turn the present popular curiosity concerning things Egyptian to other even more instructive and inspiring fields.

There is a very gross error in the letter referred to, which must not be allowed to pass uncorrected in justice to the "illustrious English Lord" accused of having "stolen a long time ago" certain sculptures from the Parthenon. The truth is that Lord Elgin, thrice illustrious indeed, saved a few of the mutilated treasures of the Parthenon from complete annihilation by the Turks, who were at the time using the marbles for building purposes and were in the habit of shooting at less accessible figures for a pastime. Lord Elgin was appointed British Ambassador to the Porte in 1799. In his desire to preserve a knowledge of Greek antiquities he employed a body of draftsmen to execute drawings. When he learned of the irreparable destruction taking place, he bought a number of the sculptures from the Turkish Government, shipped them to London and offered them to the British Government. The expenses—I am quoting from memory—have been computed at considerably above £70,000. After much dispute and wrangling Parliament agreed to pay the sum of £35,000 for his whole collection. Since those days the custody of the Parthenon has been taken over by the Greeks. On comparing a series of plaster casts of the frieze, taken from the Parthenon about thirty years ago, with a more recent set of casts, unmistakable evidence of deterioration due to lack of care is noticeable.

Another point. The principle of evolution still appears to await comprehension. Only Athene—thought—was born fully grown from the head of Zeus. "Unsurpassable beauty" and "supreme art" are not born, but evolve slowly and laboriously. The great Greek artists and thinkers of classic times well realized their obligations to the barbaric Egyptians, Cretans, Asiatic peoples and the mysterious Pelasgi.

By all means let public attention be turned to the study of the classic treasures of the Metropolitan Museum. Much would be gained by obtaining worthier casts and, above all, by a rearrangement of the exhibits more in keeping with the splendid achievements in other sections of the Metropolitan. E. F. KERBY.

Alas, Poor Tut-ankh-Amen!

It seems that the recent scientific invasion of the tomb of the ancient King Tut-ankh-Amen has been a distinct shock to some of our English and American leaders of thought. To them, doubtless, the melancholy Dane's reference to "imperial Caesar dead, and turned to clay" must cause a shudder, while the jesting grave-diggers in the play, and Hamlet himself, as he fondles Yorick's skull during his tender apostrophe, must utterly overwhelm their sensitive souls with horror. "Alas! poor Yorick—" and, alas! some poor others.

CHARLES D. NORTON.

Chief Justice Taft Pays a Tribute to His Friend.

Your just and appreciative editorial upon the loss the community has sustained in the death of Charles D. Norton leads me to ask a place in your columns for a little fuller reference to what he did for the public in the course of a very busy life. Mr. Norton worked his way through Amherst and began life with the discipline of overcoming the obstacles of poverty. By his energy and foresight he strengthened and enlarged the agency of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company in Chicago. His interest was catholic, his mind constructive, his energy intense, and his vision broad and confident. He made himself known among business men in Chicago by these marked traits. He naturally foregathered with those like him in that hive of forward-looking men, and so threw himself into what then seemed the impossible task of rebuilding Chicago on a proper plan, but which is now at hand. He had not only a natural love of art and the beautiful, but he had also the practical knowledge of how things are done, which made him a most valuable participant in any such movement. His standing was high in Chicago, so that Franklin MacVeagh as Secretary of the Treasury in 1909 brought him to our school of financial training of the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, a school that has graduated many into success and usefulness. Vanderlip, Keep, Hilles and Leffingwell are some of them. Norton there disclosed his ability in organization, and I called him to the position of secretary to the President in 1910.

It was he who suggested to me and made possible the forming of the Efficiency and Economy Commission. He was the guiding spirit in that effort at reform from which came the present adoption of a budget system in the National Government.

Mr. Norton, after leaving office, became active in establishing a Bureau of Research on a private foundation to assist the Government by disinterested examination and report upon better methods. Such a bureau is now functioning with most beneficial results in Washington. He was one of the prime movers in its creation.

Mrs. Norton was the niece of Charles McKim. Thus Norton had a close association with Burnham and McKim, our great architects. It awakened his interest in the American Academy at Rome. It is not too much to say that he was one of the chief agents in securing the last great fund which has put that fine institution for the education of American artists and promotion of American art on a secure basis. The great Metropolitan Museum of your city called him into its board and his efforts in its behalf have had notable result.

From its early beginning Mr. Norton was active in aiding the development of the American Red Cross. He was one of the three or four who worked in its inner circles with Henry P. Davison, and spent all their energies in making it what it was during the war.

I need not more than mention Mr. Norton's service as an officer of the Sage Foundation and in the city planning for the Greater New York. You have dwelt on that.

Mr. Norton left the office of secretary to the President to become Vice President of the First National Bank of New York and an associate of Mr. George F. Baker and Mr. George F. Baker Jr. in the conduct of the great interests of that bank, and at his death was President of its affiliated security company. It is remarkable that, with all the burden of business and financial work that these positions must have entailed, he was able to devote so much time to disinterested and unpaid public service. He was a cultured, high-minded, patriotic American citizen and gentleman. He had real brilliancy and genius for progressive constructive tasks, and a strong sense of responsibility prompting devotion of his talents to the public interest. I knew him and loved him; but I do not think this circumstance impairs my judgment of him. He was but fifty-three, with a pregnant future, when death overtook him. He will be greatly missed. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Shipper's Choice of Route.

My attention has been called to the letter of Mr. John T. Reid, dated Lovelock, Nev., Feb. 21, 1923, addressed to you and published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of March 4, 1923, under the caption "Southern Pacific-Central Pacific."

The gentleman criticises your approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision to lease the Central Pacific to the Southern Pacific Company and states that if he were to ship a carload of antimony ore from Nevada it would be sent via Sacramento, thence via the Southern Pacific to New Orleans, and from there by Southern Pacific-owned Morgan Line boat to New York, and that six weeks would be consumed instead of two weeks that would be required to have the shipment reach New York via the all-rail route, and that in the meantime a loss to him might result from a decline in the antimony market by virtue of his being unable to make quick delivery.

This statement was evidently made under a misapprehension of the facts. Several years ago a rate was initiated by the route which the gentleman describes, namely, the Southern Pacific Company's Sunset-Gulf route, which was lower than the eastern rail lines were willing to join in making, so that the industry was indebted to that route for permitting the marketing of the product, but in recent years the rate via the Central Pacific-Union Pacific route via Ogden from Lovelock to New York has been the same as in effect via the Sunset-Gulf route and includes the privilege of sampling in transit.

The Interstate Commerce law gives the shipper the right to specify the routing of his freight and the initial carrier is legally bound to respect the routing specified, so that both the rate and the route by which the gentleman states he could accomplish delivery in two weeks are available to him to use at his pleasure.

L. J. SPENCE,
Southern Pacific Company.

"So Early in Life."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am writing in the hope that some one will see this letter and help me protest against the injustice which is being imposed upon the schoolchildren of Greater New York particularly.

In normally crowded public schools the sessions are from 9 A. M. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3 P. M. After this the children go home, take a bit of refreshment and then sit down to a pile of home-work in every subject, from which they do not emerge for almost the whole afternoon; when the sun has already set is the only time left for their recreation. It is the home-work that I am against. In the name of common sense, why must we be bowed down with work so early in life?

It seems to me that it could be avoided. At least it could be cut down by the teacher assigning only home study and leaving out any written home-work. Six hours per day in school should be able to cover it all.

I hope some one will be aroused by this appeal, and will try to help to change the educational system of today.

CHINESE PAINTINGS SHOWN IN MUSEUM

DEGAS SCULPTURES LOANED

Many people attended the opening and private view of the exhibition of Chinese paintings at the Metropolitan Museum of Art yesterday afternoon, one of the largest, most complete and finest collections ever brought together. It is composed of the Museum's paintings with those loaned by friends of the Museum. The collection fills the special exhibition gallery, walls and cases, occupies the galleries E 9 and H 11, in the galleries of the Department of the Far East and overflows into the adjoining galleries.

Great care has been exercised in arranging the collection to give the greatest advantage for study and comparison. In the large exhibition room the paintings have been hung as far as possible in alcoves, and the pictures of a kind together. The Sung landscapes of different periods fill different alcoves, figure paintings are kept together, flower pieces have been given special corners. On the walls are the large-sized hanging paintings and the scrolls are in the cases. There are no catalogues of the collection, but each painting is labeled with the name of the owner, the maker and the date to which the painting is attributed by the owner. In the Bulletin of the Museum for the month Dr. Bosch-Reit discusses Chinese paintings as a whole in a way which will be an aid to the visitors to the collection. The collectors who have contributed to it are Robert Woods, Edward B. Drake, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Mrs. William H. Moore, Dr. Frederick Petersen, Owen F. Roberts, V. G. Simkovitch and John B. Trevor. The exhibition will be open through April 22. There was much interest shown in it by visitors yesterday.

Twelve Degas Bronzes.

One of the most interesting special exhibitions now on view at the Museum is another small loan, one of bronzes by Degas. The twelve sculptures are lent anonymously, most of them are small, but there is one, about half life size, Degas's celebrated "Danseuse," which is shown in the country for the first time. It is of the greatest interest. It, as the smaller sculptures, has been cast in bronze by A. A. Hibrard, after the original wax by the artist. The "Danseuse," is the only piece of sculpture which he ever publicly exhibited.

Degas made many models in his experiments in form and this little "Danseuse," with her intelligent, ugly little face is a remarkable exhibition of his skill. It is a great privilege to the public to be able to see it now on view in Gallery 21. It is worth many visits and will be a never ending source of pleasure as long as it remains on exhibition. The artist in bronze has finished it as Degas himself did when it was in the wax, with a little dingy tarlatan skirt and a rather shabby blue ribbon is tied around the braid of hair at the back of the neck. The smaller pieces of sculpture are more crudely finished, human figures and race horses.

Two delightful portraits shown in Gallery 16 have been acquired by the Museum, a self portrait by Samuel Lovett Waldo and a charming unfinished portrait by the artist of his wife, Deliverance Mapes Waldo. This shows a young woman with a sweet face framed in simply arranged dark hair; she wears some kind of a white bonnet or cap, tied under her chin, and there is the effect of white draperies like a shawl drawn around her shoulders. There is a grayish background. The portraits come from Charles Frank Sullivan, who was a grandson of the artist and his wife.

Another picture acquired by the Museum, which is of real interest, is that by Goya, the Spanish artist, "The Bull Fight," a side of the artist's work which is not well represented in this country or in the Museum which has on exhibition five of his portraits. There can be seen in the print room more varied sides of the life and work of Goya, but this picture shows one of the artist's most interesting sides as a painter. Like all Spaniards, he was a devotee of the great Spanish sport, an intimate of the bullfighters and one of them at times, it is said. The painting is one of his later works, shows a double ring, and he depicts the excited crowds and the atmosphere charged with enthusiasm.

Collection of Ship Models.

Another loan collection which will find many interested admirers is of a collection of ship models of the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries loaned by Col. H. H. Rogers and to remain on exhibition this month in Gallery H 22. The collection was formed by an admiralty official in the time of William and Mary. The ships are finely set in cases of the period as well made as pieces of furniture.

W. C. POTTER TO WED MISS SALTONSTALL

SHE IS IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

Banker Was Divorced in Paris by Mrs. Potter, Who Recently Married Harry F. Guggenheim.

The marriage of William Chapman Potter, President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and Miss Rose Lee Saltonstall, daughter of Mrs. Philip Saltonstall of Boston, will take place at noon today at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Philip Weld, in Dedham, Mass.

Miss Saltonstall is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club of Boston. During the war she gave entertainments for soldiers at the head of her own company in Europe. For some time she has been with the order department of a large coal distributor of this city, and resided at 111 East Sixtieth Street.

Mr. Potter was sued for divorce by his first wife, Mrs. Caroline Morton Potter, in Paris last Autumn and the decree was granted there Oct. 31. The couple were married in Chicago in 1902 and have two daughters, the Misses Jean and Charlotte Potter. Miss Jean Potter made her début this Winter and Miss Charlotte is still at school. Mrs. Potter was married to Harry F. Guggenheim, son of Daniel Guggenheim, in this city last month.

McMillan—Benton.

Miss Florence M. Benton, daughter of Mrs. Charles Montgomery Benton of 134 West Ninety-first Street, and Charles F. McMillan of this city were married on Thursday at the home of the bride's mother. The Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker of the First Presbyterian Church officiated. Owing to the recent death of the bride's father, the wedding was quiet. A wedding breakfast at the Ansonia for the bridal party followed the ceremony.

Marvin—May.

The marriage of Miss Edna May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. May of Mamaroneck, and John Marvin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marvin of Butler, Okla., took place on Wednesday evening in St. Thomas's Church at Mamaroneck. The Rev. William A. Caswell, rector of the church, officiated. After the ceremony the couple left for a honeymoon in this country and Canada.

Day—Paxton.

Randolph K. Day, a son of Mrs. Charles W. Allen of North Stamford, Conn., and Miss Prairie Paxton, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Saxe, were married last evening in St. Agnes's Church, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bellinger officiating. Mrs. Carl Hollstein, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and the Misses Gertrude Kountze of Omaha and Grace O'Brien were maids of honor. The Misses Emilie Pleydell, Daphis King, Eleanor Phelps and Alice Stein were bridesmaids. Browning the Biela Day was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Clifford Towell, Francis Whidding, G. Penfield Bowman Jr., John Fechelmer and Alfred Robinson.

There was a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saxe, 337 West Seventy-seventh Street. Mr. and Mrs. Day are sailing today on the Majestic and will tour England and France. Upon their return they will live in Bronxville.

CURIO FOR FLOWER SHOW.

"Resurrection Flower" from Egyptian Tomb to Be Exhibited.

From the tomb of an Egyptian high-priestess to the big Flower Show which opens at the Grand Central Palace on Monday, is the history of the Resurrection Flower which will be one of the curiosities shown there, a dried, dead flower, which comes to life. It is a little bronze colored flower, about the size of a silver quarter. After immersion in water, its petals open and it changes from a dried weed to a living blossom.

It was given to Dr. I. Decker, a New Yorker, who was on an expedition to locate lost mines in Upper Egypt, in 1848, by an Arab to whom he had rendered professional services. It was the Arab's story that the flower had come from the tomb of the high-priestess. The history of the flower and its study by naturalists in this country is given in an account of Dr. Decker's treasure in Harper's Magazine in April, 1856. Photographed copies of the pages of the magazine, and its cover, will be shown with the flower. The flower was bequeathed by Dr. Decker to the late Dr. C. J. Eames.

When Dr. Decker returned to this country with his "Resurrection Flower," it was examined by Prof. Torrey, the celebrated botanist, who said that the flower seldom reached this country, but that he himself possessed one.

The Flower Show will open at 2 P. M. on Monday and will be open daily thereafter from 10 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. until March 17.

SEES RELIGIOUS AWAKENING

Bishop Manning, In Lenten Lecture, Says New Interest Is Manifest.

The fact that the Cathedral of St. John the Divine has been filled every Friday afternoon at his weekly Lenten lecture is a "real sign of the times" Bishop William T. Manning believes. In his lecture yesterday the Bishop said he felt "we are at the threshold of a great religious awakening, and your presence here is an evidence of the stirring among us of earnest inquiry and of living faith in our Lord Jesus Christ."

It was the fourth of the Bishop's lectures during Lent and his subject was "The Sacraments Essential to Practical Religion."

"The expressions of aroused faith which have come to me recently especially from the younger people from many parts of the land, have been to me a revelation and one that has touched me greatly.

"The sacraments, more than any other agency, bring home to us through simple outward acts the fact of our personal relationship to God. It is a simple fact that where men lose hold of the sacraments, the outward and visible channels of life from above, their faith in revealed religion and in God as a Personal Being tends to grow less clear and to move towards more humanitarianism.

"People seem sometimes to be disturbed at finding that there have been sacramental observances in the earlier religions. This is not a fact which should disturb us. On the contrary, this fact confirms the sacredness and the fundamental place of this principle in religion. The sacramental principle has had its place in all religions."

Hostess to Jacinto Benaventa.

Jacinto Benavente, the Spanish author, was the guest of the Marquesa de Santa Ana y Santa Maria at a tea yesterday afternoon at her home, 1,038 Fifth Avenue. Among others at the tea were Senor and Senora Bamprubi, Mrs. Henry Stuyvesant Dudley, Mrs. Richard T. H. Durkee, Miss Carleton, Mrs. W. Henry Harrison, Mrs. Ambrose D. Henry, Mrs. George P. Lawton, Mrs. Leonard P. Morgan, Mrs. Ogden, Mrs. Edwin F. Shattuck and Mrs. H. C. Ewer.

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

Mrs. John Sanford, who is sailing today on the Majestic, entertained at dinner last evening at her home, 9 East Seventy-second Street.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is expected to return from Europe early in April. She will be at the Ambassador upon her return.

Mrs. Paul M. Reinsch of Washington, D. C., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Augustine Scully at Mantle Hill, Hempstead, L. I.

Countess Irene di Robilant entertained at luncheon at Sherry's yesterday. Mrs. H. E. Manville also gave a luncheon there.

Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, the German Ambassador to the United States, came from Washington yesterday and is at the Ambassador.

The British Consul General and Mrs. H. Gloster Armstrong, Mme. d'Alvares and Cecil Barrett, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Bossom in their parterre box at the opera last evening.

ORGAN CLOCK BRINGS $2,800

An interesting cuivre doré and porcelain organ clock brought the highest price at the sale yesterday afternoon of the collection of P. A. Valentine and from other private sources at the American Art Galleries, going to Myron Holmes for $2,800. This organ clock was an elaborate specimen of Louis XV. craftmanship, made by Moisy.

It was from the Double collection, Paris, was exhibited at the Paris Exposition in 1900 and was of a total height of 4 feet 7⅛ inches by 3 feet 8 wide. The organ's five sets of pipe were of pewter; it was ornamented with chiseled cuivre doré, surmounted by the clock, and the base, of three irregularly scrolled cuivre doré platforms, concealed a music box playing many tunes. Upon the platforms, made of Dresden china, beautifully painted, was the famous monkey band of eighteen performers. Organ and clock were encircled in a frame of beautiful porcelain flowers. The whole rested on a gray velour shaped base and was enclosed in a pyramidal glass case.

Gold and enamel snuff boxes formed the most interesting part of the sale and there was spirited bidding for them. There was much beautiful Wedgwood in the collection, but being for the moment out of vogue the prices were comparatively low. A champleve enamel and gold snuff box, No. 149, by Jean Jacques Prevost, with medallions after Boucher, brought the highest price among the boxes, going to Charles of London for $800. Prevost was one of the most renowned goldsmiths of the eighteenth century in France. No. 147, another of the interesting boxes of the sale, agate, jewelled and gold mounted, went to one of the private buyers, Mrs. Albert Blum, for $450. The top of this was surrounded with the "du-Barry sphinx," figure of the sphinx with a du Barry head, in the dark brown agate, mounted in gold, with a jeweled neck, lace and saddlecloth and a ribboned plume of feathers in the hair.

A fine example of craftmanship was No. 129, a Louis XV. gold-mounted mother of pearl bonbonnière, carved and overlaid with relief scrollings, which was sold to Henry Symons for $880. A Louis XIII. gold-mounted ivory snuff box with a beautiful signed miniature by Buvier, and lined with tortoise shell, No. 116, was sold to Lewis & Symons for $625. A statuette of "Danaide," by Rodin, No. 206, sold to Seaman, agent, for $400.

CABARET AT LENTEN DANCE.

The third of the series of Friday Lenten Dances at Sherry's took place last evening. All the tables were taken and a number of late comers were turned away. The cabaret, which was under the direction of Miss May Leslie, opened with a balloon number and Miss Natalie Hanna sang "I Want Some One to Make a Fuss Over Me," assisted by a chorus made up of the Misses Mary Moore, Helen Jenkins, Helen Lowe Rice, Carolyn Frances McCoon, Katherine Leslie, Emily Wright, Margaret Power and Margaret Hollister.

There were several other numbers, including a specialty by the Duncan sisters and a banjo solo by John N. Hall of the Yale Glee Club. The fourth dance takes place at Sherry's on March 16.

Lydia F. Emmet's Portraits Shown.

An exhibition of portraits by Lydia Field Emmet has been arranged by the Art Committee of the Women's City Club of New York and will be shown in the big lounge of the club on the dining room floor through this month for the benefit of the members and their friends. The low toned walls of the Club Lounge make an excellent background for the soft brilliance of the coloring of Miss Emmet's work. There are five portraits, "Portrait of a Lady," "Portrait of a Naval Officer," and three of children. One of these is "Olivia," and "Playmates," shows two children, a boy and a girl.

Collection of pictures property of W. J. Cook and D. Driscol, over 200 numbers selling at the Metropolitan Art and Auction Gallery last evening, brought returns of $20,900. A Ranger, No. 149, "St. Lawrence Landscape," sold to G. Morey for $400; No. 156, Blakelock, "New Mexico," N. Duyer, $285; Bruce Crane, No. 185, "Late Winter," J. Selden, $1,800; and No. 196, same artist, "Upland Farm," J. D. Adams, $1,600; No. 187, Wyant, "Opening in Woods," H. Moore, $1,500; No. 193, Schreyer, "Come Here," G. Fairchild, $2,900; No. 210, Richard Cosway, "Portrait Cecilia Phipps," J. Brown, $1,500.

Miss Betty Jones Entertains.

Miss Betty Jones entertained at tea yesterday in the grill room at the Lorraine. Among her guests were the Misses Constance Banks, Mary Moore, Olivia Sterner, Gloria Gould, Marie Murray, Frances Bogert, Dorothy Hurt, Rosamond Farrell and Katharine Bogart and James Farrell, Clifford Wheeler, Reginald Parks, Oliver O'Donnell, Marice Scott and Samuel Safford.

SAY 30 POLICEMEN BELONG TO KU KLUX

ONE DETECTIVE REDUCED

Patrolman Said to Be a Kleagle—Inspectors Ordered to Make Strict Inquiry.

It became known last night that detectives of the bomb squad, under Lieutenant James J. Gegan, during the last three weeks had secretly investigated a report that detectives and uniformed policemen were members of the Ku Klux Klan. It was also revealed that one detective sergeant recently had been reduced to patrol duty and sent to an obscure precinct in Brooklyn because of his activities for the Klan.

It was said the detectives had uncovered the fact that thirty uniformed policemen were connected with Klonklaves organized in the five boroughs of the city within the last year and that all of them had attended meetings regularly, donning the white hood and robe of the organization.

Several other detectives were suspected of having joined the Klan, but the detectives who investigated were unable to obtain convincing proof of their connection with the movement. The name of the detective who was reduced to patrol duty because of his connection with the Klan was mentioned at Police Headquarters last night, but no official could be found who would admit that his transfer to precinct duty was a result of the investigation.

It was understood that the investigators were informed that at least one of the uniformed policemen was a Kleagle, and that efforts were being made to obtain proof with a view to preferring charges against the suspected man and bringing about his dismissal.

Chief Inspector William J. Lahey was credited with having ordered the investigation by the bomb squad. Because of reports he received he ordered every Inspector and Deputy Inspector in the department to attend a special meeting in his office late Thursday afternoon. Fifteen Inspectors, a like number of Deputy Inspectors and five Deputy Chief Inspectors were said to have attended the meeting.

Chief Inspector Lahey, it was said in Police Headquarters last night, told the gathering that the meeting had been called because detectives and patrolmen had been suspected of connection with the Klan, and ordered that every effort be made to obtain proof of such connection.

Among the many rumors about Police Headquarters last night was one that Police Commissioner Enright had been receiving daily reports on the progress of the investigation and that he had ordered Chief Inspector Lahey to bring the Inspectors together in an effort to facilitate the work of the detectives.

Commissioner Enright will leave for Florida on a vacation today, and it is said that he has placed First Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach in charge of the investigation. It was not learned whether the Commissioner had been informed of the reason for requesting the transfer of the detective several days ago.

JOHN WANAMAKER JR. SETTLES FRENCH CASE

A satisfactory settlement of the case of John Wanamaker, son of Rodman Wanamaker, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined 50,000 francs by a French court before which he appeared on a charge of giving a worthless check to the Deauville Casino, was announced yesterday by Wise, Whitney & Parker, lawyers, of 15 William Street.

"The satisfaction of the judgment in the County Clerk's office yesterday afternoon," said the statement, "brought to a close the negotiations between the company owning the casinos at Deauville and Cannes, and Capitaine John Wanamaker Jr. While the matter was being considered by the attorneys here in the United States some one on behalf of the company, unknown to counsel here, brought an action in France, to which no appearance and the default judgment was entered. The Court assumed to impose a sentence as well as enter a money judgment. The settlement here includes all claims, and speedy and proper action will be taken to clear the record in the French court of the default judgment. This action will be taken by Hyacinthe Ringrose, the attorney for the casinos."

A judgment for $12,266 was entered against young Wanamaker in the County Clerk's office in New York on Dec. 4, when Hyacinthe Ringrose, counsel for the casinos, explained that the charges against Wanamaker were based on the failure of the American Express Company in Paris to cash three checks alleged to have been issued by Wanamaker to cover 1,000,000 francs lost while playing baccarat at Deauville.

INVENTOR GETS A MEDAL.

Thomas Midgley Reduced the "Knock" in Automobile Engines.

For his discoveries in applying chemical compounds to reduce the gaseous detonation, or "knock," in automobile engines, Thomas Midgley of the General Motors Research Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, last evening received the Nichols Medal of the New York Section of the American Chemical Society at a meeting of the section in Rumford Hall, 50 East Forty-first Street, Charles A. Browne presiding.

Mr. Midgley, who is 32 years old, is the youngest recipient of the medal established by William H. Nichols in 1903 and since awarded to fifteen men for achievements in various branches of chemistry. Professor Wilder D. Bancroft, Professor of Physical Chemistry in Cornell University, where Mr. Midgley was graduated in 1911, spoke in praise of the latter's accomplishment, and Charles H. Herty, President of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, New York City, presented the medal.

ENRIGHTS GO TO FLORIDA.

Police Commissioner and Wife Sail Today on the Comanche.

Police Commissioner Richard P. Enright, accompanied by his wife, will sail today for Florida on the Comanche, to be gone a fortnight. He will visit Palm Beach and other Florida resorts.

Friends of the Commissioner gathered at Police Headquarters yesterday to bid him farewell. During his absence First Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach will act as head of the department.

Judge John C. Knox Improving.

The condition of Judge John C. Knox of the United States District Court, who was operated upon ten days ago, was reported yesterday to be very satisfactory. Judge Knox was taken to St. Luke's Hospital for the operation, which was an exceedingly dangerous one. He has improved to such an extent that his rapid convalescence is looked for.

HEALY ESTATE $1,650,298.

Brooklyn Art Institute Gets $120,000—Residue to Widow and Son.

An appraisal of the estate of A. Augustus Healy, retired leather merchant, Director in the Central Leather Company and patron of art, who died Sept. 28, 1921, at Cold Spring, N. Y., placed the value at $1,650,298. Papers were filed yesterday in Brooklyn. Mr. Healy's realty holdings included his home, appraised at $23,000; property at Long Beach valued at $3,200, and 88-90 Gold Street, Manhattan, appraised at $150,000.

Mr. Healy's stock holdings were valued at $435,811, and his personal property, bonds and mortgages at $794,627. The interest in the co-partnership of A. Healy & Sons, leather merchants, was valued at $44,461, and the amount in banks $2,749.

The principal beneficiaries are the son and widow. The latter received one-third of the residue of the estate. The personal property and the Cold Spring estate were left to the son, in addition to two-thirds of the residue.

Mr. Healy served continuously for twenty-five years as President of the Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, refusing further continuance in that office in 1920. To the Brooklyn Institute Mr. Healy left $120,000, the income to be devoted to the purchase of paintings. In addition, the institute had the choice of twenty paintings from Mr. Healy's collection. Packer Institute got $5,000 as an endowment fund.

DR. SIMEON N. LEO DEAD.

A Founder and First President of Young Men's Hebrew Association.

Dr. Simeon Newton Leo, one of the founders of the Young Men's Hebrew Association in 1874 and its first President, and son of Mrs. Henry Leo, founder of the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, died yesterday of pneumonia at his home, 103 West Fifty-fifth Street. The funeral will be held from the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, at 121 West 105th Street, Sunday at 10 A. M. He was 75 years old.

Although Dr. Leo's name is closely linked with the growth of the Young Men's Hebrew Association from one to 362 branches throughout the country, and particularly with the main building at Lexington Avenue and Ninety-second Street, he was also well known for his long service as physician and surgeon at the home founded by his mother, where he worked since its inception.

He was a member of the medical committee which went to Constantinople years ago to study tuberculosis with Drs. Osler and Janeway. Early in his career as a physician Dr. Leo risked his life in fighting one of the cholera epidemics of the city.

BUYS FRANS HALS AND RUBENS WORKS

New Collector, Max Epstein of Chicago, Pays $200,000 for Two Famous Portraits.

FROM PRIVATE GALLERIES

Names of Sellers, by Agreement With the Purchaser, Withheld From the Public.

Two portraits from the brushes of two of the noted masters of the Dutch school, Frans Hals and Peter Paul Rubens, have just been sold by Henry Reinhardt & Son of 606 Fifth Avenue to Max Epstein, President of the General American Car Company of Chicago, for about $200,000.

The Hals picture is called "Portrait of His Daughter," and was brought to this country from Germany, where it had remained virtually unknown for several years, in a private collection which was dispersed after the war. The subject of the portrait was Hal's daughter, Sara, who was the daughter of his marriage with Lysbeth Reyniers. A portrait of Hals and his wife, by himself, painted in 1624, eight years after their marriage, hangs in the museum at Amsterdam, and the portrait of the daughter belongs to the same period.

The Rubens portrait is that of his second son, Nicholas, and came from a small private collection in England, where it had been held for many years. It shows the son at about the age of 22, and Paul Reinhardt, who negotiated the sale of the pictures, said yesterday that he believed the portrait was one of the finest examples of Rubens in this country.

Mr. Epstein is a new buyer of fine paintings, and this is considered the most important purchase he has made thus far. The two pictures are now in his Chicago home, where, it is expected, they may form the nucleus for a new American collection of Old World masterpieces.

For many years the portraits remained in the ownership of the two families from whom Mr. Reinhardt purchased them, so that they are little known to the public, and one of the conditions of the purchase of the portraits abroad was that the names of the sellers should not be made public in this country.

BANK VAULT VICTIM NOW OUT OF DANGER

WILL NOT LOSE HIS MIND

Paterson Citizens Flock to Hospital to Express Sympathy—Friend Who Locked Him In Is Prostrated.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., March 9.—Charles di Giacoma, the bank clerk who was locked for four hours last evening in the vault of the People's Park Bank and taken out unconscious after hours of furious effort in which the vault's walls were pierced, was believed to be on the way to complete recovery today in the Paterson General Hospital. It was feared at first that he would be deaf and that his mind would be affected, but doctors said tonight that he was regaining his hearing and that they believed his mind would recover from the shock of his terrible experience.

He was incoherent and delirous for hours after reaching the hospital, and it was found that the constant batter of the drills, the sound accentuated to a nerve-breaking roar in the confinement of the vault, had made him incapable of hearing. But as the day wore on he quieted and his ears began again to receive messages of normal impact. Late yesterday Dr. G. E. Tuers took charge of Giacoma and the following bulletin was issued:

"The condition of the boy is much better than it was. He is now able to talk and his hearing is improving. The boy is able to talk coherently."

These bulletins were posted all day long in the hospital, for it seemed that a good part of the population of the city went there during the day to inquire about the boy and express their sympathy and hope for his recovery. In the streets and offices and homes it was the topic of discussion during the day. His narrow escape, when he was practically lifted from the gates of death, and the thrilling struggle to reach him, had affected every one by their dramatic intensity.

The plight of William Templeton, his fellow-employe, whose careless jest had closed the door and locked Giacoma in, was little better than that of his friend yesterday. Templeton had collapsed after Giacoma was released, and was helped to his home. Yesterday morning he went to the hospital in an almost hysterical condition, and when informed that his prank would not cost his friend's life, had returned home again still almost prostrated by the agony of remorse he had suffered. He was attended by a physician, and his family would not permit any one to see him.

Dr. Irving Newman, house physician of the hospital, who was the first to reach Giacoma after he was taken from the vault, stood between him and the outside world yesterday.

"I cannot permit the patient to be disturbed," he said. "He is conscious, and he is now able to swallow. Last night he could not swallow and could not eat, but he is improving rapidly, and there is no doubt that he will entirely recover from his terrible experience."

Di Giacoma was formerly a crack athlete at the Paterson High School. He had been in the bank for only a few months.

BUS LINE IN ASTORIA PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

Injunction Against Grand Avenue Line Made Permanent Despite City's Protests.

Despite objection from the city, expressed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert J. Culhane, Justice James C. Cropsey, in Supreme Court, Queens, yesterday made permanent the temporary injunction granted last August restraining the operation under the supervision of the Department of Plant and Structures of the municipal bus line on Grand Avenue, Astoria, from Second to Eighteenth Avenue.

James J. Morgan, Superintendent of transportation of the Steinway lines, testified that during the operation of the buses traffic on the Steinway and Flushing Avenue lines of the company showed a material decrease, and that traffic became normal again after the buses were stopped by the temporary injunction. Half a dozen residents of Astoria testified that they used the buses, when running, because of the five-cent fare, but that when the buses were not in operation they walked to an elevated railroad station to avoid paying two fares on the surface lines.

The buses on Grand Avenue were started on May 27 last. The receivers of the Steinway lines first sought an injunction from Justice Lewis L. Fawcett, who refused to grant it, on the ground that the buses were necessary. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reversed this decision and sent the matter back to the Supreme Court.

Loyless to Be Editor of Tolerance.

The selection of Tom Loyless, a Georgia newspaper man, to be editor of Tolerance, the magazine of the American Unity League, was announced yesterday by Colonel Thomas B. Felder, its New York Chairman. Mr. Loyless, who was formerly editor and part owner of The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and The Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun, will direct the League's campaign against the Ku Klux Klan.

CRITICISES HARDING IN TOLBERT CASE

Senator Dial Hints Party Pressure Swayed President Against His Judgment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A strong hint was given today by Senator Dial of South Carolina that although President Harding was acquainted with many damaging facts in the case of Joseph W. Tolbert, who recently received a second recess appointment as Federal Marshal for the Western District of that State, pressure from members of the Republican National Committee forced the nomination over.

Tolbert, whose appointment has produced sharp political antagonism, is a member of the committee and also State Chairman of his party in South Carolina. Senator Dial charges that he was not only convicted of embezzling Post Office funds, but that he has sold Federal patronage right and left.

"Tolbert has never gone beyond making a general denial of the charges that he trafficked in Federal offices in his capacity as referee," Senator Dial said. "He, of course, could not deny his conviction for embezzling Post Office funds, because that was a matter of court record.

"I do not wish to make any harsh criticism of the President, but I have every reason to believe that the Administration knows all the facts in the case.

"It is certainly a most remarkable fact that a man who has been convicted for violating a Federal law and therefore is ineligible to take an oath, and who is charged with the most reprehensible practice of trafficking in offices, should be made the chief officer of a Federal court to serve its official papers and execute its decrees.

"If this kind of procedure is to continue and the President can keep on appointing men to office after the Senate has twice withheld confirmation, then the constitutional provision that appointments shall be made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate will be nullified."

REFORM BUREAU HEAD ASSAILS WILL HAYS

Dr. Watson Tells Him 'No One Is Satisfied' With His Work for the Film Industry.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Dr. Robert Watson, President of the International Reform Bureau, in a letter sent today to Will H. Hays declared no one he knew "is satisfied with the work you have done in connection with the Motion Picture Association except perhaps the men who control you and pay your salary."

"How you are able to reconcile your conscience with your present position I cannot see," Dr. Watson said, adding that "at present I have no hopes of any betterment of motion pictures coming through them (Mr. Hays's employers) or you or by any organization or persons willing to be connected with them or you."

The letter was in reply to one from Mr. Hays, in which it was suggested that the purposes of the latter and his associates appeared to be misunderstood by Dr. Watson. Much of his work "parallels, and none runs counter to, the purposes" of the International Reform Bureau, Mr. Hays said, requesting an opportunity to acquaint Dr. Watson "with what actually is going on."

Parisian Tests It With Hot Iron—Hotel Heating System Wrecked.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 9.—After being used fifty years as tamp and maul, an obus of the war of 1870 exploded today in a cellar of the Hotel Raynaud, Rue d'Antin, dangerously wounding a workman and tearing to pieces the building's heating system. The application of a red-hot iron to the interior of the obus was responsible for the accident.

According to the manager of the hotel the mortar shell, which weighed ten pounds and was of the obsolete winged type, had been used since his arrival as a tamp in the cellar to break coal. This morning, under extra heavy usage, the handle broke. The fireman was unable to remove a portion of the handle remaining in the shell, and some one suggested that he burn it with a red-hot iron and take it out piece by piece. The suggestion was followed, but, immediately the iron was forced through the wood there followed a terrific explosion, heard throughout the quarter. Fragments of the shell were driven into the legs and hips of the fireman, wounding him dangerously, and the heating pipes of the hotel were torn to pieces, flooding the cellar.

CRAIG SUED BY PAINTER.

Controller Says He Will Fight Carmel Contractor's Claim.

Special to The New York Times.

CARMEL, N. Y., March 9.—Controller Charles L. Craig of New York City is the defendant in an action in the Supreme Court here brought by Ralph Pringle, a local painter, to recover for work, labor and materials.

Controller Craig has a country home about a mile from this village, which he purchased some months ago. He has made extensive alterations and improvements in the building, where Pringle was employed as a contracting painter.

The court session will open here March 19. Mr. Craig appears as attorney in person in his case on the calendar.

"I will see the thing through," said Controller Craig when informed last night at his home of the action brought by Ralph Pringle. "He did some work for me and I paid him a couple of thousand dollars. It's simply an attempt to gouge."

ROW OVER DELCASSE BURIAL

French Radicals Noisily Oppose State Payment for Funeral.

PARIS, March 9 (Associated Press).—The proposed appropriation of 40,000 francs to cover the cost of the state funeral last month for Theophile Delcasse, the eminent French statesman and former Minister of Foreign Affairs, brought on a lively scene in the Chamber of Deputies today owing to the noisy opposition of the extreme left.

M. Herrick, as leader of the radicals, however, spoke in favor of the appropriation as marking approval of M. Delcasse's policy. The appropriation was voted 484 to 73.

The Communist Deputy Lafont applied such abusive terms to M. Delcasse as "a sinister individual," "a most criminal Minister" and "Edward VII's tool."

M. Herriot, speaking from close personal intimacy with M. Delcasse, declared he never wished war, although he believed war was possible; hence he prepared alliances to enable France to meet it successfully. It was M. Delcasse's personal intervention, M. Herriot said, that ended the war between the United States and Spain.

KILLS HIMSELF, SAD FOR KIN IN GERMANY

Insurance Agent Uses Revolver He Brought Back From Visit to Parents.

POEM "ABSENCE" IN POCKET

Honor Man in Policy Writing Is Found in Chair in Office by His Stenographer.

Rudolph J. Worth, an agent for the Guardian Life Insurance Company, 50 Union Square, at Seventeenth Street and Fourth Avenue, shot and killed himself with a revolver yesterday morning on the twelfth floor of the building, after sending his stenographer, Miss Frieda Mahler, to another floor with a bundle of papers. No one heard the shot, but the girl noticed the odor of powder smoke when she returned. She went to a door in a partition which separated Worth's private office and saw him crumpled in a chair in front of his desk. The weapon was on the floor.

A search of his office and clothing failed to reveal a written word in explanation of his motive for self-destruction. In a pocket the police found eight lines of a marked poem, which had been clipped from a newspaper. It was headed "Absence," and read as follows:

The meaning of music in my heart;
I knew the days were lit with loveliness,
But dreamed no lover's part.

But now my thoughts roam wildly on and on,
Like little winds not knowing where to go;
The wistful days cry childlike, he is gone,
And now I know—I know.

Worth's business with the company was extensive. On an honor roll posted in the insurance building his name was second on the list of all agents. He was credited with having written policies this month to the amount of $120,000. Friends said that he and his wife, Mrs. Meta Worth, were devoted to each other. For seven years they had lived at 881 East 163d Street, the Bronx. Last Summer Worth, who suffered from a nervous disorder, went to Hamburg, Germany, for his health and to visit his parents. He returned in September, apparently recovered, but recently he had complained to neighbors in the apartment house of the return of his old illness. It was said he had worried about the safety of his relatives in Germany because of conditions there, and had mentioned letters he had received.

Worth was 38 years old. The weapon he had used, which sent a bullet through his head and against the ceiling of his office, was a large army revolver he had brought from Germany as a souvenir.

COST OF FOOD FALLS IN TWENTY-TWO CITIES

Maximum Decrease 3 Per Cent. —Some Show Increases in the Last Year.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Retail food costs in all of twenty-two representative cities decreased between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15, according to figures compiled by the Labor Department. Compared with the average prices in 1913 the range was 21 to 50 per cent. higher.

Decreases were: Salt Lake City, 3 per cent.; Denver, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Scranton, 2 per cent.; Baltimore, Boston, Butte, Little Rock, Manchester, N. H., Memphis, Milwaukee, Norfolk, Omaha, Pittsburgh, Portland, Me., Providence, St. Louis, St. Paul and Washington, D. C., 1 per cent.; Dallas and Kansas City less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

From Feb. 15, 1922, to the same date in 1923 these increases were reported: Pittsburgh, 4 per cent.; Denver, Little Rock and Portland, Me., 3 per cent.; Boston, Kansas City and Providence, 2 per cent.; Baltimore, Butte, Dallas, Milwaukee, St. Louis and St. Paul 1 per cent.; Philadelphia less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

Eight cities showed a decrease as follows: Omaha, Salt Lake City and Scranton, 2 per cent.; Memphis and Washington, 1 per cent.; Manchester, Norfolk and San Francisco less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

As compared with the average in the year 1913, the retail cost of food on Feb. 15 was 50 per cent. higher in Providence and Washington, 49 per cent. in Scranton, 48 per cent. in Baltimore, 47 per cent. in Boston, 45 per cent. in Philadelphia, 44 per cent. in Manchester and Pittsburgh, 42 per cent. in Dallas, Milwaukee and St. Louis, 39 per cent. in Kansas City, 37 per cent. in Little Rock, Omaha and San Francisco, 35 per cent. in Memphis, 31 per cent. in Denver and 21 per cent. in Salt Lake City.

Car Jumps Track on Brooklyn Bridge

An hour's delay to trolley traffic over the Brooklyn Bridge was caused when a Bergen Street car on the way to Manhattan jumped the rails about 200 feet west of the Brooklyn tower at 9:40 A. M. yesterday. Patrick Burke and Joseph McKenna, employes of the Department of Plant and Structures, were riding on the front platform and sustained slight injuries.

HOLDS ISADORA DUNCAN LOST HER CITIZENSHIP

Secretary Davis Thinks Also That Her Reported Opinions Would Prevent Her Regaining It.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Isadora Duncan, who says she does not like the United States, is not an American citizen, the Department of Labor has decided. She lost her citizenship the department held in a decision announced today, through her marriage to Serge Essenine, a Russian, on April 1, last year.

Recently on leaving these shores with her husband, the dancer took occasion to deride American institutions and incidentally took a verbal shot at prohibition and what she described as the kind of liquid refreshment one was compelled to drink now, if at all. After reading press reports of her opinions regarding the United States, Secretary Davis of the Labor Department announced that steps would be taken with a view to depriving Isadora of her American citizenship. Today's decision of the department simplifies matters.

Had Isadora Duncan's marriage taken place subsequent to the passage of the Cable Women's Separate Citizenship bill," the department's announcement said, "she would have retained her American citizenship, but since she lost it prior to Sept. 22, 1922, she cannot become an American citizen again without filing a petition in the manner provided for any other alien, and must prove herself to be a person of good moral character attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and that she is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in organized government, et cetera.

"Unless she can measure up to this standard requirement it will be impossible under existing law for her ever to become an American citizen."

Officials explained in connection with the announcement that while Isadora's attitude on prohibition did not affect the question as to her "admissibility to the country, her "declared" attitude on governmental questions would have a decided bearing.

HAWES LOSES WILL CONTEST

Surrogate Dismisses Suit of Lawyer Over Wife's $250,000 Estate.

Surrogate Foley dismissed yesterday the contest by Gilbert Ray Hawes, lawyer, of the will of his wife, Mrs. Gertrude D. Hawes, who died May 8, 1922. The Surrogate ruled that no evidence of undue influence by Agnes G. Dunlop, sister of Mrs. Hawes, had been shown. The Court pointed out that Mrs. Hawes was a woman of middle age, in good health, and was able to go to the office of her attorney to execute the will.

Mrs. Hawes left her estate to her mother and two sisters, with the exception of $2,000 to her husband, with the suggestion that he use the money to have himself cared for in a home for aged persons. The estate was estimated at $250,000.

NEW TRAFFIC RECORD ON PANAMA CANAL

168 Vessels, Including 81 War Craft, Passed Through in Week of Feb. 17.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A new high record for Panama Canal traffic was established during the week ended Feb. 17, when 168 vessels, including eighty-one ships of the Atlantic Fleet, used the canal. The naval craft passed through to join ships of the Pacific fleet for joint manoeuvres in Pacific waters without delay to commercial traffic.

Despite the heavy load, requiring operation of the locks until late at night, the traffic "was handled by the regular organizations without any special arrangements being made," according to the current issue of the Canal Record, "and no merchant vessel failed of prompt transit on account of the passage of the fleet."

The bulk of the traffic was one way, although the commercial business of the canal was heavier than usual for the week, aggregating 414,567 tons, while the naval vessels totaled 314,946 tons.

On Feb. 14, Gatun locks passed through twenty commercial craft, six destroyers, a mine sweeper and two naval auxiliary ships in 16 hours and 17 minutes. On Feb. 21 a total of twenty-one lockages were made, setting a new daily record, in 15 hours and 58 minutes. Fourteen commercial ships, five battleships, thirteen submarines, three mine sweepers, two barges and an auxiliary ship were sent through, making a total of thirty-eight craft, or a new daily record in that respect.

STOLEN DOG CATCHES THIEF

Seeing Master After Weeks of Hunting, He Turns on Abductor.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 9.—A thief who recently stole a valuable police dog was captured this afternoon by his victim and held until taken into custory by the police.

The owner of the dog, Stanislas Poniakow, after the police failed to find the animal, started a lone and systematic hunt through Paris for the dog. Last week he learned that the animal had been seen on the Boulevard des Invalides, held in leash by a man who was apparently a domestic. A week's daily watch on the boulevard was rewarded this afternoon when the thief again appeared with the police dog. When Poniakow called the dog it wrenched itself free and ran to him. The thief, frightened, turned and fled. Poniakow then gave the dog a signal and it overtook the fleeing man, threw him to the ground and held him until Poniakow called the police.

Bids $216,000 for Two Warships.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Cash bids of $112,500 for the obsolete battleship Ohio and $103,500 for the Kentucky were the highest received by the Navy Department when proposals for the scrapping of the two vessels and a number of smaller craft were opened today at the navy yard here. Both bids were submitted by the Dravo Contracting Company of Pittsburgh.

Old King Tut Leaps Into Fame

The man of the hour is undoubtedly that late King of Egypt whose combined residence and tomb was lately opened to newspaper reporters and others. "The most remarkable man in the world to-day is King Tut-ankh-Amen," flatly announces one newspaper editor. "Almost overnight he has obtained a position of eminence surpassing that of the President of the United States, or the Premier of Great Britain, or Charlie Chaplin, or Jack Dempsey. . . . His leap into fame has been even more spectacular than that of Dr. Coue."

By way of corroboration of this very generally held opinion of the popular King, dressmakers are bringing out Tut-ankh-Amen costumes, an enterprising silk manufacturer is advertising, with an interesting variation on the name, "Tu-tank-ha-men" silks (Reg. App. for U. S. Pat. Off.), a whole act of a New York musical comedy has been cut so that a new Tut-ankh-Amen episode can be put in, he is said to be slated for the movies, poems galore have been written about him, Margot Asquith has appeared in London wearing a gown draped, at least in part, after the manner of the popular young King's kilts, while babies, suburbs, restaurants, apartment houses, and parlor cars are being named after him, and it is confidently predicted that there will soon be a King Tut cigar. The simple fact is the King is all the rage, in spite of his age of some three thousand four hundred years.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (March 10th), there are two live news-articles, graphically illustrated, which tell all about this famous King of Egypt and of the splendors in historic treasures which have been unearthed in his tomb. Other news-articles of great interest in this Number are:

VETERAN THREATENS MAYOR AT MEETING

HE IS BELIEVED INSANE

NO DISPUTES AT MEETING

Approval Voted of $25,000 for Expenses of Mrs. W. R. Hearst's Woman's Committee.

While the Board of Estimate was considering the extension of the Queensborough subway route yesterday, a young man who had occupied a rear seat during the meeting suddenly jumped to his feet and shouted:

The man advanced to the front of the room in the direction of the Mayor. Lieutenant Edward Quinn, the Mayor's bodyguard, seized him. He was taken to the Mayor's reception room. He gave his name as Alfred T. Seaquist and his address as 9,103 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn. Asked why he had made the outcry, he replied:

"My conscience told me do so so and also the great Lord above."

They searched him for weapons but found none. Pressed for further information he added:

"All I want to do is to protect the Mayor. I saved his life last night when I put out a fire."

The man was removed to the Oak Street Police Station and later was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

At Bellevue Hospital it was said Seaquist was a machinist. He is an ex-service man. During the war he was in a training camp in the South. At one time it was said he was in a private sanitarium at Amityville, L. I.

The incident caused a mere flurry in the Board of Estimate meeting. An atmosphere of good nature pervaded the entire meeting. In seeking to have the period of assessment limited to one year in the acquisition of a site for a Brooklyn park, Borough President Riegelmann remarked:

"I tried to save this money a week ago for you, but you had to ring the Liberty Bell to get some independence here," chuckled the Controller.

The request of Commissioner Grover A. Whalen of the Department of Plants and Structures for $180,000 for the maintenance of trackless trolley cars to City Island was laid over for two weeks. Controller Craig suggested that an amendment be made to the city's transit bill whereby bridge trolleys would come under the jurisdiction of the new transit body expected to be named if the present Transit Commission is legislated out of office.

Both the Mayor and Commissioner Whalen thought the suggestion a good one. The amendment accordingly will be prepared. The Board approved the action of the Board of Aldermen in appropriating $25,000 for the administration expenses of the Mayor's Committee of Women, of which Mrs. W. R. Hearst is Chairman.

WANTS 'RUM FLEET' SEIZED.

Methodist Would Send Destroyers After Ships Off Jersey Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The presence of "rum fleets" off the New Jersey coast has excited the indignation of dry leaders in Washington. Deets Pickett, Secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said this afternoon in a statement that if international law interferred with the United States preventing the fleets from anchoring off Atlantic Highlands, then international law should be changed.

"International law did not keep us from coming to the assistance of the British and the French when their backs were to the wall," said Mr. Pickett's statement. "International law did not prevent Great Britain from stopping American ships at sea, ransacking their mails, forfeiting their cargoes and condemning the vessels themselves. Great Britain was justified in doing this because she had to do it to protect herself from the attack which was being made upon her life.

"Now the countries which were saved from becoming German provinces by the United States are permitting their subjects and citizens to deal death and ruin to American people under cover of 'international law.'

"The thing to do, and the only thing to do, is to detail United States destroyers to round up these ships, bring them into port, confiscate the ships and their cargoes and jail every man found on them. The foreign nations which may object should be told that if they want the friendship of the United States they can have it by the simple process of seeing that their citizens and subjects treat the United States with ordinary decency."

Charges that Secretary Hughes and Chief Justice Taft had been offered fees of $250,000 to work for the repeal of the dry laws were laughed at this afternoon at the headquarters of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition. The charges were made, according to dispatches reaching Washington, by Representative W. D. Upshaw of Georgia in a speech at Hagerstown, Md., last night. Mr. Upshaw, who is one of the prominent dry leaders in the House, was quoted as stating that at a recent meeting in Chicago wet interests decided to make the offer to Secretary Hughes and did so, but met with a refusal. Later the same offer was made to Mr. Taft. Mr. Upshaw is reported to have said.

CALL STUDENTS AFTER FIRE.

Pennsylvania Authorities Hint That Study Slackers Fired High School.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., March 9.—High school seniors have been summoned before school and police authorities for examination regarding an alleged attempt to burn the local high school building in an effort to delay examinations for which some members of the class were said to be unprepared.

Sulphur candles were discovered yesterday in waste paper baskets in fourteen rooms and in each instance they had started fires. In two rooms the flames had eaten through hardwood floors.

A meeting of the School Board has been called to consider what action should be taken. The building was recently completed at a cost of $250,000.

Betrothed Pair Disagree; Return Marriage License

Ivan Carlson, 29 years old, a chauffeur, and Emma Dahlstrom, 55 years old, a maid, appeared before Deputy City Clerk William Zimmerman in the Queens Marriage License Bureau at Long Island City yesterday and thrust a marriage license at Zimmerman.

"Here," exclaimed Carlson. "I don't want this. My girl and I have decided we couldn't get along, so we want the license cancelled."

They had procured the license last Wednesday. They declined to give details of their sudden disagreement. Both live in a rooming house in Ericsson Street, East Elmhurst, Queens. The license was cancelled.

MRS. BUZZI TELLS OF PROMISED HOME

Says Schneider Planned $35,000 House at Riverdale as Gift to Her.

DENIES SHE WAS JEALOUS

Woman Held as Material Witness in Murder Case Intends to Raise Prize Dogs for Sale.

If two bullets had not ended the life of Frederick Schneider a week ago last Monday, he would have built for Mrs. Anna Buzzi a 14-room, $35,000 house on one of his sixteen lots in Riverdale. This was the statement made yesterday by Mrs. Buzzi in the Grand Concourse apartment where she had lived with Schneider. After ten days in the Bronx County Jail as a material witness she asserted her innocence to interviewers. She is Polish, 32 years old, clear-skinned and blue-eyed with a tousled mass of blond hair, shot with red.

"I am absolutely innocent," she said in emotionless tones. "We never quarrelled," she affirmed in the same manner. "Jealous? Never!" She snapped this back at the questioner quickly and emphatically. She said she was eager to make a test for the authorities. Nicholas Fuelner, farmer, has told District Attorney Glennon he saw a woman, wearing a certain coat, walk away from the machine in which Schneider was shot on Monday. Mrs. Buzzi will don a similar coat and re-enact the movements of the unknown woman. Mr. Glennon said Fuelner and the police would be on hand at Clason Point to witness the test.

Home All Day, She Says.

"I can only repeat the same story that I told to the District Attorney and to the police officers," she said. "I did not leave my home all of that day. The first I knew that Fred was dead was 4 o'clock the next morning when Mr. Glennon informed me in the Simpson Street Police Station. Early in the evening, some time after 7 o'clock two police officers came here and told me that Fred had met with an accident. I naturally thought he had been in an automobile smash-up and wanted to go to him at once. They told me he was in Fordham Hospital on the operating table. They questioned me at length and then later took me to the police station.

"Fred and I quarrelled? He was jealous of me? Those are but a few of the many falsehoods that have been spread about me and Fred since this terrible thing happened. He never gave me cause for suspicion or jealousy. He was home every night in the week but one. That night he went to his club, the Fordham Club. Any man has a right to at least one night a week out, and more if he wants it, but Fred was content always to be with me, and we were exceedingly happy in our little home here. We lived moderately, but anything I wanted Fred got for me.

"This apartment was furnished according to my taste. The lodge at Okara Lake, which Fred built for me last Summer, is the largest lodge in that section, and he constructed it according to my ideas, and did everything possible to please me in the building of it."

Mrs. Buzzi was asked about the reports that she and Schneider had quarreled at the lodge because the contractor had permitted his Secretary, Dorothea Hein, to drive his car.

"That is absolutely untrue also. We had no quarrel. But I did protest to Fred against his permitting Miss Hein to drive the car to the camp, when the car was filled with people, and he knew that she did not drive very well. Fred told me that it was all right, as he had sat on the front seat and that if anything had gone wrong he would have been right on the 'button.'"

When questioned about the reconciliation planned between Schneider and his wife, which Mr. Schneider reported to District Attorney Glennon, she said:

"That is perfectly ridiculous. The best proof of that is this picture of a house that Fred proposed to build for me at Riverdale this Spring. He spent $500 to have these plans prepared, which provide for a fourteen-room house of stucco over hollow tile. The house was to have been started as soon as Fred collected the $120,000 the city owed him. This home was to have been our real home and when finished and paid for he promised me that he would transfer the title to my name.

Talks of Mrs. Schneider.

"In fact, Fred told me on numerous occasions that if everybody in the world were killed but himself and Mrs. Schneider, he would not live with her. He provided for her handsomely and I never had the slightest objection to that. I wouldn't have thought much of him if he had failed to do so. As for myself I was never grasping or grabbing and the best proof of that is that I haven't got a cent in the world, although every cent I had I gave to Fred for his business. I have no definite plans for the future and it seems to me that the only thing that is left for me is to continue to breed chow dogs. I have already taken four blue ribbons with one and three with another."

The next questions asked dealt with the reported violent quarrel between Mrs. Buzzi and the contractor which was said to have taken place in his office on Sunday, Feb. 27, the day before the murder.

"It was our custom," she explained, "to drive every Sunday afternoon to the office to feed the dogs. It made no difference whether we had company, we went anyhow. On that Sunday the car was brought around at the usual time by one of the chauffeurs. Fred took the wheel and the chauffeur got in beside him, while I got into the back seat as was my habit. In the office Fred did a lot of telephoning and I was fooling with the dogs. There is a parrot in the office and this bird kept screeching while Fred was telephoning. Fred raised his voice and shouted several times to the parrot 'shut up.'

"I lifted one of the dogs to the desk. Fred told me that one of the girls in the office had complained that the dogs muddied up the blotters on the desk. He pointed out that the dogs were standing on a memorandum book in which telephone messages were recorded, and he said that the dog would probably tear it, as it was in bad condition. I pulled the book from under the dog and in so doing I tore the tape from the edge of the book. That is the exact manner in which the so-called 'highly prized' memo book was torn."

After denying that she had thrown hot soup at Schneider and that she had ever used bad language, she concluded:

"I have absolutely nothing to fear and will do all in my power to help the District Attorney and the police solve this mystery. I will put myself at the disposal of the District Attorney and the police for a conference at any time they select."

CROWDS STILL RUSH TO PHARAOH'S TOMB

ANOTHER BOX IS OPENED

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUXOR, Egypt, March 9.—There is still the daily influx of visitors from the north, who, one and all, make straight for the royal necropolis. Fortunately the tomb of Seti II., where is installed the laboratory in which the treasures of Tut-ankh-Amen are being restored and which is now the sole centre of activity of Howard Carter and his staff, is situated right at the very top of the valley, off the beaten track of the tombs generally visited by tourists. The experts, consequently, are not subjected to the annoying interruptions and questionings from which they suffered when working at Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb and are able to devote their attention and energies entirely to the enormous amount of work which confronts them.

Yesterday Mr. Carter was busy arranging in an empty caché close at hand a temporary studio where the more fragile articles can be photographed more conveniently and without interrupting the other work.

The photographing of these fragile articles is effected in an ingenious manner of Mr. Carter's own devising. It was by this system that the photographs of the King's gauntlet, scarab, buckle and tippet were taken, giving the extraordinary impression of their being suspended in the air without any visible means of support.

It should be pointed out that only the preliminary work of cleaning and preserving is being effected here. In the first place, time does not permit anything more. Moreover, it will readily be understood that facilities are lacking in the desert for any extensive work, which can be more satisfactorily and conveniently carried out in a permanent laboratory or museum. Nothing more can be done at this end than is necessary to enable each object to be photographed and its important details noted and put in the condition in which it can reasonably be expected to stand transportation to Cairo.

Corselet Temporarily Reconstructed.

Thus in the case of the King's beautiful corselet, with its elaborate mesh of faience pendants, found in the red box containing the King's robes, which had almost entirely gone to pieces owing to the perishing of the threads, no attempt has been made to string the beads together permanently. It was picked out piecemeal from the box by Mr. Mace and the pattern worked out by putting the beads together so that the whole could be photographed. The completed jigsaw puzzle will now be dismantled for packing and transport to Cairo, where the numberless pieces will undergo a final cleaning and their reconstruction and rethreading will be facilitated by the details of the design as recorded by the photographs.

The preliminary work of this nature will be as much as Mr. Carter and his staff will be able to cope with this season.

In addition to the casket already mentioned in previous dispatches work has now been begun on a small oblong gilt box which promises to be interesting. This, to which but brief reference has hitherto been made, is a wooden box measuring approximately two feet by one, covered entirely with gilt on gesso. It is ornamented with the cartouches of the King and uraei [the sacred serpents] on a blue painted background. This box is a most beautiful treasure. It is at present in a very dirty condition, and Lord Carnarvon yesterday was busy helping to clean it. What can be seen even now of the ornamentation shows that it is of the finest of workmanship.

So far as the investigations have gone, its contents appear to be various garments and some jewelry. The former, which are uppermost, are in such a perishable state that work on them must necessarily be very slow.

Among the articles is a piece of clothing made of leopard skin spangled with gold and silver stars. Exactly what its use was is not clear, and its fragile condition, due in part probably to the imperfect method of tanning used in those days, makes it highly doubtful whether it will be possible to reconstruct it.

Another Collar Is Found.

In this box has been found another of the famous type of Tell-el-Amarna collars, with four rows of tassel-shaped and one row of daisy-petal-shaped pendants. The major portion of it was in pieces, there being thousands of beads scattered in the box, but enough of it was intact to enable the collar to be reconstructed. Fortunately the tassel-shaped pendants are colored yellow blue, red and green, each row being of one color and the daisy petals are white. They are attached by little beads, with a number of yellow disk beads between.

This afternoon the Queen of the Belgians, accompanied by the Duke of Brabant, the Comtesse de Caraman Chimay and Dr. Capart, for the third time visited the laboratory to see the more important objects once again.

Yesterday was an unpleasant overcast day. For this region quite a considerable amount of rain fell in the Valley of the Kings, there being a succession of short sharp showers, which, however, made no impression on the dry sand and rocks. Today is again a day of glorious sunshine, the rain having cooled the heated atmosphere of the preceding week.

NIGHT DRY RAIDERS BUSY.

Make Arrests in Saloon and Three Restaurants Under New System.

Federal prohibition officials today expressed satisfaction at the success of the first night of the operation of the new platoon system of enforcing the Volstead act in this city. Although only one squad had reported up to 1 o'clock this morning, the officials unhesitatingly declared that the results were fully up to expectations, for the agents were engaged principally on the first night in visiting suspected places.

The prohibition office remains open now until an early hour in the morning to receive returns from the agents as well as to give them instructions. It was learned last night that preparations are being made for several big raids within the next forty-eight hours.

The squad headed by William J. McCay, including agents Mannix, Kenealley, Mattes and Olsen, raided one saloon and three restaurants and made arrests in each.

The saloon was that of Chas. McKiven, 342 East Forty-ninth Street, and the owner was arrested. The agents allege that they were able to buy drinks in the restaurant of Chas. Ellesi, 331 East Twenty-third Street, where two previous arrests had been made, and the owner was taken along for the third time.

The agents then headed up town and stopped at the restaurant of Mike Gyaranathy and Albert Kerol, 419 East Seventy-sixth Street, where they reported no trouble in obtaining drinks. After placing the owners under arrest, they proceeded to the restaurant at 251 East 125th Street. They said they bought drinks in this place also and then arrested John Marino, the owner, and Peter Frank, a waiter.

Lewistown (Pa.) Boys Fire High School By Burning Sulphur to Delay Examination

LEWISTOWN, Pa., March 9.—Norman Deuel and Nelson Hanawalt, seniors, and Walter Harshbarger, a member of the junior class, confessed today, the school authorities said, to actions which caused damage by fire to the Lewistown High School building. They said they hoped to delay an examination for which they were not prepared.

Lighted sulphur candles were found early yesterday in waste paper baskets in fourteen rooms of the building. In each instance they had started fires, and in two rooms the flames had burned through the hardwood floors. The fires were discovered before serious damage was done.

In a statement today to the Assistant Principal of the school the three boys were quoted as having said that their intention was to create such an odor with the candles that it would be impossible for the school to remain in session yesterday, the day set for examinations. They said they believed the waste baskets to be fireproof, and had no intention of setting fire to the building, the statement said.

The School Board had the matter under consideration today, but reached no decision. It will be taken up again at the regular meeting next Thursday.

Deuel is President of the student council and all three boys have good deportment records.

FORD 'PLAYS SQUARE' AT $4,000,000 COST

Pays That Amount to Lincoln Creditors, Although He Was Not Bound to Do So.

HELPS MOTOR PIONEERS

Enemies as Well as Friends Benefited—Receiver Stone Says the Act Is Unique.

DETROIT, March 9 (Associated Press).—A desire to "play square" with those "who have helped to make the automobile industry what it is," even though some of them have been his business enemies, prompted Henry Ford to pay the balance of the indebtedness of the Lincoln Motor Car Company, it was learned authoritatively today from persons close to the manufacturer.

Announcement that Mr. Ford had voluntarily undertaken to pay approximately $4,000,000 to creditors of the Lincoln company sets a precedent in the business world, according to Ralph Stone, President of the Detroit Trust Company, receiver for the concern. Mr. Stone pointed out that by the terms of his purchase of the Lincoln company Mr. Ford was under no legal obligation to reimburse its creditors.

The Lincoln company, then in the hands of a receiver, was purchased at auction by Mr. Ford last year. He paid $8,000,000 for the property. After preferred claims were paid there was left for distribution among other creditors $3,450,000, which amounted to 47½ cents on the dollar. The $4,000,000 being paid by Mr. Ford makes up the difference between the amounts received by the creditors and the sums due them originally.

In announcing the settlement today, Mr. Stone made known for the first time that Mr. Ford had this action in mind when he decided to bid for the Lincoln property at the receiver's sale.

"The property of the Lincoln Company, Mr. Stone said, ordinarily would have brought only about $5,000,000 under the auctioneer's hammer, due to its depreciation because of receivership proceedings. Mr. Ford, however, bid $8,000,000 at that time. He told United States District Judge Arthur Tuttle, before whom the sale proceedings were conducted, that he would pay all creditors in full, making the cost of the Lincoln company to him approximately $11,000,000.

Mr. Stone said that a further saving to the creditors was effected when the Government agreed to reduce its claims for overpayment on war contracts from $9,500,000 to $1,550,000. This settlement was reached only a few weeks ago.

The alleged overpayment on war contracts to the Lincoln Company brought about some of the charges in the attempt to impeach Attorney General Daugherty which failed in Congress some time ago.

Associated with the Lincoln Company before its sale to Mr. Ford were some of the most prominent men in the automobile world. Chief among these were H. M. Leland and his son, W. C. Leland. The former was one of the first automobile manufacturers in the city and was a warm personal friend of Mr. Ford.

This, it was learned today, was one of the chief reasons not only for Mr. Ford's acquisition of the concern, but for the payment to creditors. Although he had been unfriendly for years with some of the other men connected with the concern, Mr. Ford was represented as feeling that they had done their share in helping to build up the automobile industry and that no distinction should be made.

The creditors, all of whom have now been paid in full, numbered about 900.

Notice to each creditor of Mr. Ford's intention to pay the unsecured debts of the Lincoln Company was contained in a brief and simply worded letter, attached to which was a check for the amount unpaid. It stated merely that he had been Mr. Ford's intention to provide for the payment in full of all proper claims of the concern. The letter stipulated that the check, constituting an assignment of all claims, should be presented for payment before March 20.

Mr. Stone, commenting upon Mr. Ford's action, said that it was unique in his twenty-eight years' experience in banking. He pointed out that the payment of the additional $4,000,000 means a realization by creditors, rendered apparently hopeless by Government claims for taxes and alleged overpayments on war contracts, of a full return of the money due them.

"Mr. Ford is the only one who can make an authoritative statement as to what moved him to do it," Mr. Stone added.

POTTER TO TESTIFY IN ANDERSON CASE

Former Assistant Treasurer of Anti-Saloon League Coming From Texas.

NEW SCRUTINY FOR BOOKS

Pecora Also to Press Inquiry Into Alleged Commission Splitting—Dry Brief Disclosed.

Acting District Attorney Pecora announced yesterday that the Grand Jury's investigation of the manner in which William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, received and spent $24,700 in 1913 and 1914 for which he submitted a bill to the league in 1918 would not be resumed until the appearance of William Milton Potter, formerly Assistant Treasurer of the league under Anderson.

He explained that he had received word from Mr. Potter in McAllen, Tex., that he would come here to testify, but Mr. Pecora was unable to say whether that would be next week. He said he believed Mr. Potter would prove a material witness.

Discussing reports that the investigation would not be productive of the results he had expressed confidence in obtaining, Mr. Pecora said:

"I intend to continue the presentation of evidence to the Grand Jury. I shall present evidence not only with respect to the item of $24,700 but also with respect to the so-called splitting of commissions between O. Bertsall Phillips, formerly financial agent for the league, and Mr. Anderson.

"I propose also to make a complete inquiry into the transfer on the books of accounts of the league of the item of $4,400 from the salary account of O. Bertsall Phillips to his expense account. As I understand it, this was done in order to evade the payment of income tax on that amount. I also understand that it was so transferred upon the expressed direction of Mr. Anderson on March 9, 1921."

Edgar T. Brackett and J. Arthur Love, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League in the proceeding brought several weeks ago in the Supreme Court in Albany by six residents of Troy to have the league declared a political organization, yesterday made public a copy of a brief filed with the court by order of Justice Staley denying the league was a political organization and describing it as "the organ of expression of the churches of the State." The brief quotes Mr. Anderson as authority for the statement that the league was not conducted along political lines.

Dr. David James Burrell, President of the league, and pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, was among the ten officials named with the League as respondents. Referring to the individuals the brief states:

"Dr. Burrell and the other individuals named are not shown to have been in association or confederation in the slightest degree. Individually they do not appear to have done anything. It is shown by the members of the Board of Directors who have been sworn that not one of them ever received a cent or paid out a cent during the campaign of 1922.

"The league is pledged to avoid taking any stand on any issue not directly connected with the beverage liquor traffic. If any of the league does can be called support of any candidate it, at the same time and at the same election, supports Republicans, Democrats and members of all parties."

Mr. Anderson announced yesterday that he had received communications from Methodist Episcopal pastors of the St. Lawrence and the Elmira conferences expressing confidence in his integrity. The communication from the St. Lawrence conference was signed by forty-nine pastors, while fifty-two pastors signed the communication from the Elmira conference.

Bay State Trolleys Get Bus Permit.

BOSTON, March 9.—The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, troubled for several years by motor bus competition, was authorized by the Public Utilities Commission today to operate busses in any city in which it operates street cars. It was said at the company's headquarters here that no decision had been made as to which cities would be chosen for the first bus lines of the company.

SHIP BOARD PLANS BIG VESSEL SALE

Will Sell All Craft Except Those Attached to United States Lines.

ALL ARE NOW LOSING MONEY

Even the United States Lines' Fleet May Be Sold Later When Additions Are Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—J. B. Smull, President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, said today that the Shipping Board was making plans to sell all its passenger vessels without delay with the exception of those belonging to the United States Lines, the operating company of the Fleet Corporation, which carries on a regular service between American and European ports.

Mr. Smull said that the Fleet Corporation would retain the vessels of the United States Lines until it had provided a well-balanced fleet of passenger liners. This meant, he said, the addition to the lines of vessels, comparing well in speed with the Leviathan, which is soon to be put into commission after extensive repairs.

The former German liners Agamemnon and Mount Vernon are to be converted into oil burners and it is believed by members of the Fleet Corporation that with this conversion they will develop 22 to 23 knots. It is expected that the Leviathan will have a regular speed of 23 knots.

The George Washington has a speed of 18 knots. With other vessels than the Leviathan of more than 20 knots speed, the United States Lines would have a balanced fleet, which meant, Mr. Smull explained, that the United States Lines would be able to maintain regular schedules which it cannot do well now.

"Then we would have something to sell," said Mr. Smull.

He added that at the present time the Fleet Corporatiton could not get anything out of the United States Lines as a fleet of liners. It would be possible, he said, to sell the Leviathan when she was ready for service in June, but this would leave the Government with some ill-assorted vessels which would not fit into an orderly scheme of operation. Mr. Smull said that none of the Shipping Board lines would show a profit on present trade routes if figured on a commercial basis, this meaning taking into account of interest, depreciation, repairs, insurance and overhead charges. It was true, he said, that while some voyages would show a greater amount of revenue than the amount expended, no line would show a profit for all voyages. He admitted that all the passenger services are losing money.

The lines he specified were the United States Lines to Europe, the Admiral Line to the Far East, the Los Angeles Steamship Company running to Honolulu, the Munson Line running to South America, the Hoyt & Swayne Line running to the Pacific Coast of South America and the Pacific Mail Line running to the Orient. Mr. Smull mentioned that the Pacific Mail Line running to China, Japan and the Philippines was doing better than any of the others. He attributed this to the prestige of the Pacific Mail.

It was Mr. Smull's opinion that private lines could make money if they took over the vessels if they took them. Private operation, he conceded, was more efficient than Government operation.

It is estimated that the conversion of the Agamemnon and the Mount Vernon into oil burners will cost $7,000,000 to $8,000,000. As these vessels are about twenty years old, the wisdom of the decision of the Shipping Board to recondition them at heavy expense has been doubted. The Board takes the stand, however, that it is necessary to present a well-balanced fleet before making an offer to sell the United States lines and that the increase in speed of the two former German steamships will increase the sale value of the entire fleet.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 9.—Sale of nine steel ships constructed for the Government by the Charles W. Morse interests at the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation's yards here was ordered today by Judge Waddill in the Federal District Court.

The decree is an outgrowth of litigation between the Shipping Board and the corporation over the vessels which the Government had seized, claiming that Morse and his associates had failed to make good on a contract to take over the ships. The corporation filed suit to recover $6,000,000 as a result of the seizures the Government countering with a claim for $24,000,000. Judge Waddill recently decided that the Shipping Board was within its rights in making the seizures.

The shipbuilding corporation asked for a rehearing of the suit, counsel for the Government, on the other hand, requesting that immediate sale of the vessels be ordered and that an accounting between the Shipping Board and the corporation could be made.

The contract price for the ships was approximately $21,000,000.

Mrs. Pearl Young is Held at Atlantic City for Grand Jury.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 9.—When arraigned here tonight before Magistrate Joseph Paxson on a charge of extortion, Mrs. Pearl Young, general Federal Prohibition Agent, and Russell Smith, 835 Westminster Road, Brooklyn, waived examination and were held for the Grand Jury at the May term of court at Mays Landing. Mrs. Young was represented by Walter D. Van Riper, Assistant United States District Attorney of Newark.

The case has attracted great interest here because of the statements of the then Zone Chief John D. Appleby, who objected strenuously to the treatment of Mrs. Young.

The complainant is Mrs. J. V. Henning, proprietor of the White Star Café. She alleges that the prohibition agent and her companion made a purchase in her place and then demanded $100 from her. She said she communicated with Assistant Prosecutor Joseph Corio, who told her to compromise on $50. Mrs. Henning claims that she gave Mrs. Young this amount in marked money. Mrs. Young's version was that the money was thrust into her hand and while she was inquiring what it meant detectives arrested her.

TROOPERS RAID JOHNSTOWN

Seek to 'Dry Up' City Whose Mayor Favors Beer Sales.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 9.—The City of Johnstown was much drier today than for many months, as a result of wholesale raids, conducted here yesterday by State troopers from the Greensburg barracks. Ignoring district prohibition officers and the Johnstown police, the troopers, working under Governor Pinchot's orders to "dry up the State," swooped down on the city, raided saloons and hotels and arrested thirty-five persons.

Much attention was attracted to the Johnstown prohibition situation last August, when Mayor Joseph Caulfield informed brewers and saloon keepers that he would have no objection to the sale of "real beer," but stipulated that the beer must be free from poison and ether, such as the bootleggers have been dispensing here." He criticised enforcement agents, saying they were not trying to enforce the law. The Mayor declared his real beer ruling was prompted in an effort to put bootleggers out of business and to provide a substitute for the city's water supply, which, he said, "is full of bugs."

Scholar's Wife Robbed of $250 While He Pored Over Gemara

Kalman Fischlein, seventy-two years old, Talmudic scholar and teacher of Hebrew, of 528 East 136th Street, knows more about the Mishna and Gemara than about modern swindling methods. For which reason his wife lost $250 of her savings.

Fischlein was studying an ancient classic when two dapper men entered and said they were health inspectors. They said influenza was prevalent and that it was their duty to single out infected individuals. Fischlein submitted to an examination of his heart, throat and lungs and was pronounced all right. While his wife was being looked over, Fischlein bent over his book. The examiners reported favorably on Mrs. Fischlein, but after they had gone she discovered that $250 which she had in a skirt pocket had disappeared. The police of the Alexander Avenue Station were notified.

$519,000 BANK LOAN ON STOLEN PERMITS

TRIED TO VALIDATE ORDERS

Asked Government to Recall Notices of Theft and Permit Liquor to Be Withdrawn.

James E. Jones, Assistant Federal Prohibition Commissioner, of Washington was the principal witness yesterday in the trial before Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow and a jury of ex-Judge Harold L. Hart, formerly Federal Prohibition Director for this State, William A. Orr, once secretary to former Governor Charles S. Whitman, and thirteen others, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government and to violate the Volstead act.

Mr. Jones's testimony related to conversations he had with Orr in an anteroom of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes's office in Washington on Nov. 1, 1921, and subsequently, regarding the disappearance of 300 blank liquor withdrawal permits from the local prohibition office and the subsequent withdrawal of large quantities of liquors by drug firms on these permits. Counsel for the defendants objected to testimony regarding these conversations, on the ground that Orr had not been warned of his rights. The jury was excluded and argument of counsel continued for an hour. Judge Winslow ruled that Mr. Jones might testify concerning conversations with Orr, the testimony to be accepted as binding only upon Orr. However, Judge Winslow said he might later amplify the ruling to include other defendants.

Questioned Orr on Permits.

The Assistant Commissioner testified, after the jury had returned, that the conversation with Orr in the anteroom of Commissioner Haynes concerned the 300 permits of the 247,000 series which had been reported by Director Hart as having been stolen from his office. It was contended by Orr, according to Jones, that the 300 permits had been regularly issued by the New York Prohibition office, and that drug houses had paid distilleries for the liquor. Orr named among these firms, according to the witness, the S. & B. Drug Specialty Company, the Alps Drug Company, the Central Drug Company and others.

Orr requested that the Commissioner recall telegrams and letters sent to prohibition directors, distillers and permit holders notifying them that the permits had been stolen and forbidding withdrawals on them, the witness further testified.

The Government placed on record a copy of a telegram sent on Aug. 23 by Director Hart to the Washington office notifying the Commissioner that the 300 permits had been stolen. A letter which Commissioner Haynes wrote to Mr. Hart demanding an explanation for the "most deplorable" occurrences and the delay in reporting the loss, as well as Mr. Hart's letter of explanation in which he said that inventory of the permits was taken only once each month, but that steps had been taken to prevent further thefts, were also put in evidence. These telegrams and letters were identified by the Assistant Commissioner as being those referred to by Orr in the conversation on Nov. 1.

At the request of Mr. Rubin the jury was instructed that the letters and telegrams in themselves were no evidence that there had been a theft.

Said Banks Were Involved.

The Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company of Louisville, Ky., was mentioned by Orr in the conversation on Nov. 1, the witness said, as being involved in the disappearance of the 300 permits. A Brooklyn bank was involved to the extent of $150,000, Orr is alleged to have told Commissioner Jones. This was through money loaned to drug companies holding the permits which had been paid to the distilleries. The witness said that in a subsequent conversation on Nov. 5 Orr amplified this and said that several banks in the greater city were involved and that the total amount was $519,000. None of the banks were ever mentioned by name, the witness said.

Orr suggested that telegrams and letters suspending the permits could be called in on the ground that an error had been made in reporting them stolen, according to the testimony of the witness. This was to be done so that the liquor could be withdrawn and the drug companies and banks could realize on the withdrawals.

Orr, in reply to a question, had told the witness that he did not know what had become of the liquor already withdrawn by the drug companies on some of these permits.

In a subsequent conversation Orr told the witness, the latter testified, that 73 of the permits had never been issued, so that only 227 were actually turned over to drug companies.

Withdrew 29,065 Cases of Liquor.

The witness said that at the Nov. 1 interview he asked Orr to get more complete information, together with an explanation of how the permits came to be reported stolen, and the information as to the banks involved. Orr left, saying he would return to New York, the Commissioner said. He next saw Orr on Nov. 3, he said. Then Orr told him how much liquor had been withdrawn during certain periods by the several drug companies, and said that the 247,000 missing series should be allowed to be filled, as they worked a hardship on the drug concerns. Orr told him, the Commissioner said, that between May 15, 1921, and Aug. 1, 1921, 29,092 cases had been withdrawn by certain companies.

The trial will be continued Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

PLAN TO REORGANIZE NEW YORK RAILWAYS

Work Already Started on a Scheme to Put the Company on a Paying Basis.

WOULD END RECEIVERSHIP

Aims to Trim Down the High Rents Paid to Several Subsidiary Companies.

EARNINGS ARE GROWING

Assets of $7,500,000 in Sight as Soon as the Receiver's Control Ceases.

Tentative steps have been taken toward the reorganization of the New York Railways Company, it was learned yesterday, and arrangements are underway to work out the details of a scheme to put the company on a paying basis and release it from a receivership, which was instituted on March 20, 1919. The Chase Securities Company and two large insurance companies were said to be primarily interested in the scheme.

The problems of the reorganization were said to be as complex as those of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and more so than those of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which recently effected an internal reorganization. Charles P. Howland, counsel for the 5 per cent. bondholders' committee, said, that, although the officers of that committee and the 4 per cent. bondholders' committee knew in a general way what was going on, no formal proposals were yet before either committee.

The proposed reorganization plan would continue the consolidation of the lines now controlled by the receiver, Job E. Hedges, but would leave out of consideration the three lines which have since been restored to independent operation, namely the Eighth Avenue Company, the Ninth Avenue Company and the Fourth and Madison Avenue line. One of the burdens carried by the New York Railways Company has been in the form of rent to its subsidiary companies, the rental of the Broadway-Seventh Avenue line, for example, having amounted to $500,000 annually. Under the proposed plan, this rent would be trimmed down to a workable basis and the lines would be placed in such condition that they could operate at a profit without heavy fixed charges.

Owing to the impossibility of judging in advance the final figure to be set for payment of damage claims, and other charges in cases against the company now pending in the courts, no estimate can be given as to the total indebtedness of the corporation. The company has, however, been showing steady gains in earnings since the readjustment period and economies in operation have been effected. The company has assets which it can convert into cash once a reorganization is effected. Under the receivership, the United States District Court has been unable by law to sell some of these assets for anything except cash, whereas the proposed new company could legally accept payment in part cash and the rest in notes.

Among these properties which have been lying idle are a car barn on Thirty-second Street, between Fourth and Lexington Avenues, and a car barn on One Hundred and Ninety-sixth Street, which together are appraised at $5,500,000. Through the sale of its Houston Street railway property the company recently received $2,000,000 in cash which, by order of the Special Master but which item would also be released for use in case the reorganization plan goes through. Thus, with $7,500

GOWNS FAVORED BY THE PARISIENNE

Selections That Are Made by Customers for the Height of the Social Season.

MODELS BASED ON THEM

Period Frocks of 1830 Style Chosen for Dancing—Many Designs In Sport Models.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Activity in the Paris couture does not in any degree abate with the exodus of American buyers about the middle of February. Not a day has passed during February and early March but that Lanvin's five salons have been completely filled with private customers. Many of them have returned from the south of Europe, only to enter vivaciously into the interesting process of selecting their wardrobes for the height of the Paris social season which, as in London, is in May. The selection made by these private customers is particularly important, for they will not merely influence but will actually constitute the modes which will be so much discussed at the races at Auteuil and Longchamps in May.

The couturiers themselves are far more interested as to which modes and styles will be selected by certain smart Parisiennes than they are in the American selections. In fact, they declare that the majority of American buyers select exactly the same models from their collections, and, not understanding our manufacturing processes, they are puzzled over this phenomenon. But the selections of their most influential private customers, they know, will outline the modes of the Paris social season in May, and they base their future models largely upon these early selections.

That the private French customers are actually selecting the true-to-type period frocks of 1830 style for dancing is a fact which will interest many Americans who passed by these modes with only mild interest at the early February openings. The Parisienne realises that a five-yard skirt distended at the hips and sweeping the floor is not a practical style for out-of-door wear, but for indoor wear she is adopting the full skirted frock and is reveling in its quaintness and feminine charm. The coiffure must be transformed to harmonise with this quaint mode, and the result is that the hair is being parted in the centre, sleeked down and arranged in a rolled-up puff close to the neck. Jewelry fans and scarfs of the 1830 period have likewise been revived. Cheruit, for instance, revives the five-yard scarf to match the evening frock, fashioning it of chiffon, a third of it lined perhaps with metal cloth, while the opposite third is banded on the upper side with the material of the gown.

Even afternoon frocks are completed with these scarfs, which are worn swathed about the neck for day wear. The evening scarfs, however, are worn in quaint off-shoulder effect, crossing in front, the ends trailing on the floor at each side in train effect. They suggest the smart Summer hotel veranda or the country club dance, and will take the place of a wrap for many occasions in midsummer. They are especially smart with the sleeveless restaurant frock.

One of Cheruit's most effective of the evening scarfs is of white chiffon, half lined with silver cloth. To the upper surface of the scarf are applied small white feathers curled about and attached to form floral motifs. These white feathers are set on with gold brads. Equally smart is a scarf of taupe chiffon lined with six-inch silver ribbon at the edge worn nearest the face. Over the entire surface are applied motifs of rose taffeta outlined with gold. On the other hand, the scarfs for afternoon wear are often trimmed in an all-over design with motifs of fur, nutria on dark brown silk or a tawny yellow fur on black silk crêpe. Black monkey fringe, applied in a scroll design, trims other scarfs.

Cheruit's interpretation of the three-piece suit is at once smart and individual. The tailored, long-line coat very closely resembles a trotteur frock, or simple tailored dress, suitable for morning or afternoon wear on the street with smart fur neckpiece, and distinctive hat and accessories. The lines of these coats are semi-fitting and sheathlike, with not a sign of a belt or break at the waistline. They overlap deeply to the left side of the front, the neck finished with long shawl revers. Occasionally two-inch bands of fine pin tucks are applied as a first trimming at the back of the bodice in a deep square outline and down the sides of the skirt. The sleeves are full length and wide, and full circular skirt joined by a six-inch band of the material cut out in motifs which reveal the foundation band of slate gray taffata. The cut work is outlined with silver thread. This band is not fitted to the figure, but preserves the straightline silhouette. The sleeves are full length and wide.

One of the Cheruit costumes partakes of the nature of both a suit and a dress, and is listed as a gown. It is of beige rep. The front edges open in one with the smart standing collar. The back and front panels of this frock are cut in one unbroken piece, though the sides are fashioned with a hip-length, flaring basket movement. Fullness is let into each side of the skirt by means of three circular godets, of inverted V shape, the points at the hips. In a season of coat dresses and costume coats, this suit frock is interesting and capable of development.

Lanvin's collection emphasizes the smartness of the white sports costume, though a touch of color is permissible in the blouse, which often corresponds with the hat trimming. The jacket of the Lanvin sports suit is straight and unfitted in back. It invariably has the standing three-inch or two-inch collar that opens gracefully in line with the front edges of the coat, the latter this season always open to the low front closing. This open front type of jacket reveals the smartness of the suit blouse. A sports suit of white worsted, at Lanvin's, is trimmed only with a half-inch band, formed of narrow red, black and gold braid. This band is set on at the lower edge of the jacket across the side hips, a similar band finishing the horizontal opening of the pockets of each hip. A bit of the braid also finishes the standing collar. The skirt is of the narrow, tailored style fitted to the hips by graduated tucks which extend well below the jacket on the sides.

A Lanvin sports suit of wisteria kasha cloth has the same type of jacket embroidered, in this instance, in taupe thread in an all-over design. The blouse is of plain wisteria silk crêpe, embroidered in a single motif in front. A child's sports suit seen at Lanvin's has a pleated skirt of striped gray and white worsted, the stripes being about an inch and a half in width. The jacket is of aquamarine blue and is trimmed with a band of the striped material about the lower edge, the stripes extending horizontally. The cuffs are also of the striped material. This jacket, like those designed for older folks, is straight of line to the hips and has the same standing collar and open front. Another sports suit, this time for grown-ups, is of white kasha cloth, the entire jacket stencilled in an all-over Egyptian pattern in two shades of beige. This jacket is of the same type as all of the Lanvin sports suits, and is caught close about the hips by the single button, low closing.

Separate sports coats seen at Lanvin's are of two types, one a three-quarter length coat of unbroken lines and stitched in contrasting color in an all-over design resembling quilting. It has a tendency to flare, and only the flounce, cuff and belt remain undecorated with stitching. The material is white silk crêpe. The other sports coat is shorter and may be worn as a jacket over any sports frock. It is of the same general type as the jackets of the sports suits. It is hip length, is straight of line in back and closely caught in about the hips. It, too, is worn with the open front and has the standing collar. It is decorated with stitching in a contrasting shade in two contrasting shades. Red and black stitching, for instance, appears upon a coat of white silk crêpe.

Very characteristic of the house of Lanvin is a smart three-piece suit, the gown fashioned of the printed Indian shawl with a white ground and design in Lanvin green, red, black, &c. The straightline, hip-length jacket is of Lanvin green silk crêpe.

Two materials are combined in an equally original way in another Lanvin frock, the straightline, hip-length bodice is of navy blue reps. The skirt is fashioned of eight full-gathered flounces of Persian figured silk crêpe. The flounces about the hips are the fullest, so that the widest part of the silhouette is there, the line gradually narrowing toward the hem. This is the type of frock often presented in the Lanvin collection, especially in frocks designed for young women and girls.

A novel sleeve trims another Lanvin frock of plain beige silk crêpe. A drop shoulder round yoke and deep border on the skirt are of the same silk stencilled in black in an effective design. The sleeves have a puff from just above the elbow to the wrist, where they are caught into a tight cuff. The bodice is of the low bloused type.

DRY GOODS BOOM STILL ON.

Store Sales and Road Orders Keep Lead Over Those of a Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"The wholesale distribution of dry goods during the last week was greater than that of last week and a year ago.

"Orders from salesmen on the road were well in excess of the same week in 1922.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Orange Manufacturing Corporation, now located at 320 Fifth Avenue, with branch office in Place Vendome, Paris, has leased new larger quarters in the South Building of the Garment Center Capitol, 498 Seventh Avenue. During the week of March 26 it will show there an extensive collection of Summer frocks and gowns from the most recent creations of its Paris workrooms.

The Croton Knitting Mills, manufacturers of knitted outerwear, are now located in their new quarters at 1,178 Broadway. They were formerly at 121 East Twenty-fourth Street.

SPURN TUNIS DECISION AS WORLD COURT BAR

Administration Officials Say It Can Set No Immigration Precedent Here.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The recent decision of the Permanent Court of Justice in the Tunis case is viewed by Administration leaders here as having no bearing on the question of American adherence to the court protocol as urged by President Harding. It was pointed out today by an authorized spokesman that the question before the court involved a decision as to a matter arising under the covenant of the League of Nations, and that such a decision could affect only nations signatory to the covenant.

Aside from that, it was added, the Tunis case concerned the status of certain residents of Tunis, which is by treaty a French protectorate. France claimed the right to extend her domestic laws determining nationality to residents of the protectorate. The effect would have been to make French citizens of the children of British residents of the protectorate, and the British opposed such a course.

The League covenant, it was pointed out, sought to limit the authority of the council to matters purely within the realm of international law as distinct from domestic law. Asked for an advisory opinion as to whether the Tunis case was an international or domestic law matter, the court held that as Tunis was a protectorate created by treaty it was necessarily an international law matter to be settled under the treaties that created the protectorate.

At no point in the proceedings, it was stated as the Administration viewpoint, would the United States or its policies have been involved or affected by act or precedent had the Washington Government adhered to the court protocol. In the first place, it was added, no question involving the United States could be taken to the court except on its own volition; second, the United States could not have been affected by the decision as to an interpretation of the League Covenant. As to any possibility that the country's action, if the United States became a member, might arise later as a precedent for intervention by any Power or group of Powers in such questions as American immigration policies, it was pointed out that, although the United States had always contended for a settlement of international disputes by arbitration, at no time had it been willing to submit any question of purely domestic administration, such as immigration or the tariff, and it was said emphatically that it never would do so.

DOESN'T BELIE HER NAME.

Young Mrs. De Spirit Orders Judge Not to Smile at Her.

"Don't smile at me," said seventeen-year-old Mrs. Joseph De Spirit of 158 Crescent Place, Yonkers, yesterday, when City Judge Charles W. Boote and Yonkers court attendants showed amusement at her stubbornness.

She had just withdrawn a charge of assault against her husband, who had slapped her because he thought she was too independent and too obstinate. The husband's attorney asked if Mrs. De Spirit would let De Spirit see their child during a trial separation.

"No, I will not," she rejoined.

Judge Boote allowed himself to smile as he said: "Oh, yes, you will," and brought down the wrath of the young wife on his head.

Banton Makes Six Promotions.

Six promotions in the office of District Attorney Banton were announced yesterday. Owen W. Bohan, was promoted to the title of full Assistant District Attorney with a salary of $10,000, to succeed James M. Donohue, who died a week ago. Theodore H. Ward was elevated to Mr. Bohan's place; James J. Wilson was promoted to succeed Mr. Ward and Peter L. F. Sabbatino was named to Mr. Wilson's old post. Alexander Lehman, son of Mr. Sabbatino's place and William P. Ryan was selected for Mr. Lehman's place. All of the promotions carried increased salaries.

Harry M. Daugherty Much Better.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—The condition of Harry M. Daugherty, United States attorney general, was reported very much improved today, the fourth day of his vacation here, after a severe illness. The attorney general came south with President Harding and Mrs. Harding, leaving the party at Daytona. He was accompanied here by Dr. J. T. Boone and a nurse.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—5 per cent. for the best names. Thursday—5 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Buyers' Market in Burlap.

Trading in the local market for burlaps has been quiet all the week, and the situation has become such that sellers do not conceal the fact of its being a buyers' market. Not the least important factor in the situation is the selling activity of second-hands at Calcutta, where they are offering March-April shipments at 30 points less than the mills are asking for the same deliveries. Specifically, they are quoting 7.05 cents for 8-ounce, 40-inch cloths, against 7.35 cents for the same goods from the mills. The respective prices on 10½-ounce cloths are 8.85 cents and 9.15 cents. In the local market light-weight burlaps were held yesterday at 7.50 cents for spots and 10 points less for afloats. Both spot and afloat heavy goods were quoted at 8.90 cents.

Coal Market Is Stronger.

The return of Winter this week has temporarily bolstered up the market for high-priced independent anthracite, Seward's Journal will say today, just as it was beginning to get wabbly. Producers of that part of the output had received some cancellations, and were gradually coming down on their quotations. Another heavy snowfall, however, brought in a lot of new orders and checked the downward trend of prices. As a matter of fact, many in the trade believe that independent coal will command two or three dollars above circular for several months more, due to the widespread shortage and the desire of dealers and consumers to begin accumulating stocks for next season. In this bituminous trade it is found difficult to reconcile the inactivity of the market and the downward drift of prices with the glowing reports of prosperity in other lines.

Will Not Give Long Datings.

From present indications, the request of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association, that the question of giving seasonal datings on ginghams be given further consideration by the selling agencies will not be acceded to. With the exception of a leading company, the usual terms of 2-10-60 extra were used in selling Fall deliveries of these goods, and it was asserted yesterday that there is no disposition on the part of the other sellers to reverse their action. Among the reasons advanced for not giving seasonal datings is that they would make all of the jobbers' gingham obligations due and payable at the same time. This, it was asserted, would put a burden on them that would be difficult to meet. Further than this, the contention was advanced that the jobbers themselves were not unanimous in the desire to receive seasonal datings.

Immediate Delivery Is Called For.

Resident buyers here report they are receiving many telegraph and mail orders requesting immediate delivery of ready-to-wear and other merchandise for sale during the next three weeks. The buyers believe their volume of wire and mail business will show an increase during the next ten days. This will cover the period when all of the out-of-town stores, excepting those in the immediate vicinity of this city will have to have their merchandise for their pre-Easter business. The variety of stocks retailers have bought for their ready-to-wear sections particularly is looked upon to be a marked influence in increasing their sales. It would be a pronounced setback if weather conditions prove unsatisfactory during the period immediately ahead.

For Fall Hat Season.

While some of their requirements of hatter's fur have been purchased by men's hat manufacturers for the Fall season, there is little tendency to buy any more than to cover the initial volume of business expected. The price of the fur is so high now that makers prefer to buy as they book the orders, although necessity requires some of the raw materials be bought ahead. Prices already paid for the fur, manufacturers say, will cause an advance in price ranging from 15 per cent. up for the Fall lines. One of the features of the Fall merchandise, it is said, will be a larger percentage of rough or shaggy soft felt hats, in keeping with the continuance of the vogue of the fleecy overcoat. There is also a tendency toward brower bands. Dimensions of the soft hat will be about the same as for the Spring season. No marked increase in the demand for beavers or velours is looked for. Tuns and grays are expected to continue their popularity.

Sports Garments Sell Briskly.

Women's sports garments are meeting with all of the popularity that was anticipated for them earlier in the season. Retailers have bought actively, and reorders are now being received by wholesalers here. New models have been made up by manufacturers in many instances and these have met with very favorable response on the part of retailers. The remainder of the season is expected to be most brisk from a sales standpoint, owing to the remarkable spread of the sports idea throughout the country. One of the notable things about the buying is that it covers a very wide range of fabrics. There is no special cloth that can be singled out for sports this season, as was true of tweeds only very recently. Silks, camel's hair, tweeds, polaires, artificial silk, and silk and wool all go into the making of sports garments now. The distinction lies in the cut of the garments more than anything else.

Petticoat Sales Better.

Style tendencies, as far as petticoats are concerned, are much more favorable for the Spring season, and wholesalers here say sales have increased accordingly. The vogue of the severely plain petticoat has apparently passed, and manufacturers are now bringing out many novelties. Pleats and flouncings are very noticeable in models for day wear, while those for evening wear have decorations of many descriptions. The Egyptian trend has not passed by these garments, and the newer styles are based on these patterns as well as on the Paisley effects. On some of the more elaborate ones considerable embroidery is being used. Jerseys and radiums are the fabrics most wanted in the popular priced merchandise.

Gray Goods Prices Firm.

Prices continued firm in the local gray goods market yesterday, despite the more or less general lack of activity on the part of buyers. Second hands again sold spots of 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 11⅝ cents, but first hands would not trade below 11½ cents. Sellers were for the most part firm for 12⅝ cents for spot 39-inch 68-72s, but it was said that second hands might trade at that figure a little for a good buyer. Southern 38½-inch 60-48s were held at 9⅞ cents, with Eastern makes of the same construction quoted at 10 to 10¼ cents. Quick delivaries of 39-inch 72-76s were sold at 12¼ cents. In the sheetings, spots of 37-inch 48-squares were sold at 12⅜ cents, with contracts disposed of in a small way at 12¾. Pajama checks were firm on the basis of 19¼ cents for 72-80s. In the sateens, sales of 39-inch 4.20s were reported at 19 cents, with 18¾ cents paid for 4.37s.

Must Cut Down Gingham Orders.

Whatever may have been the position of the wholesale trade toward ginghams only a few months ago, the fact remains that there is no dearth of demand for these goods at the present time. Not only have many lines been sold up and withdrawn, but in several instances it has been found necessary to scale buyers' orders down substantially. An example of this is supplied by Red Rose of Lancaster ginghams, which are sold through Amory, Browne & Co. Only 60 per cent. of the orders placed on these goods for Fall delivery can be shipped. It was asserted by an executive of the firm yesterday, however, that the remaining 40 per cent. could remain on order for September-October delivery, if desired, on an "at value" basis.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Higher Levels Shown for Metals and Building Materials.

Not only did Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices show more fluctuations this week than for some time, but there were so many advances that they almost tripled the number of declines shown. The actual division of the 94 revisions indicated shows 70 advances and but 24 declines, compared with 53 and 34, respectively, in last week's list. Many more changes than usual are seen in the lumber and building materials lists. A number of the metals also were higher. In the foodstuffs a feature was the declines seen in the dairy products.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

Middle Western lard was higher here this week, while bacon declined. None of the other items in the local provisions list showed change either way. At Chicago the only rise was in short ribs, while live hogs supplied the only decline. Live beef, live sheep and mess pork did not change. Tallow was higher.

In the local list for dairy products declines in butter were recorded that ranged from one to two cents a pound. There was no change in the price of cheese and the best quality eggs remained unchanged. Fresh-gathered "firsts" showed a fractional decline.

The entire list, however, continues well above last year's comparative levels.

Neither the listed fresh nor dried fruits showed change either way this week, but in the vegetables several grades of beans were higher. There was also a rise of 25 cents a barrel in potatoes, making an advance of 75 cents in two weeks and putting the current price above that of last year.

No. 7 Rio coffee was higher in the bevertage list, but the advance was offset by a drop in No. 4 Santos. Teas continued to show no change, and the only revisions in the spices were a rise in black Singapore pepper and a decline in Mombasa red. The price of refined granulated sugar advanced still further, but this time there was a slight drop in 96-test raw sugar.

In the grains list a rise in wheat contrasted with declines in corn, rye and oats. The other items in this list were unchanged. Hemp was higher. A drop in No. 1 extremes was the only change in the hide prices during the week, with leathers again quotably unchanged.

Save for declines in Tonawanda white pine and 4 by 4 chestnut, all of the changes in the lumber list, which totaled eleven, were upward. Eastern spruce lath and clear red cedar shingles were also higher.

Sixteen changes were seen in the metals list this week, and all of them were upward. All of the listed pig irons but Bessemer advanced, as did Bessemer and forging billets. Steel bars, tank plates and beams were all higher, as were coverings. In the minor metals the advances were shown by aluminum, antimony, copper, spelter, lead and tin.

The advances in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils showed nearly three advances to every decline. The few features included higher prices for both domestic and Newfoundland cod oil. Changes in the naval stores consisted of rises in rosin and tar and a decline in turpentine. Several items in the paint list advanced in sympathy with the rising market for lead. In the paper list, straw boards were cheaper. Eastern crude rubber was lower this week, but there was no change in the Brazilian stock.

Both Chinese and Japanese raw silks declined. Generally higher prices were seen in the textiles, more especially in the cotton goods and burlaps.

Has Added Sixteen Stores.

Since the first of the year sixteen additional department stores have become affiliated with the resident buying organization of Alfred Fanti. The total number of stores now represented by Mr. Fanti is 144, situated in as many different cities of the country. The new stores include leading retail enterprises in every section of the country, including chain stores as well as those having no branches outside of their respective cities. In the former class are the six stores of Parke-Snow, Inc., operating in Athol, Cambridge, Fitchburg, Peabody, Somerville and Waltham, Mass. Another is Mandre, Inc., comprising two stores, one in New Haven, Conn., and the other in Washington, D. C. Several new stores of the Belk Brothers chain, the Belk-Matthews store in Cramerton, N. C., and the Belk-Stevens store in Reidsville, N. C., have also been added. Other stores comprise Maas Brothers, Tampa, Fla.; Ben Ton Store, Louisville, Ky.; E. E. Harrison Company, Barnesville, Ohio; Loken Brothers, Madison, Wis.; H. C. Prange Company, Sheboygan, Wis., and Radin & Kamp, Inc., Fresno, Cal.

EIGHT LEGATEES DEAD.

Unless a New Heir Turns Up State Will Get $1,000 Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, March 9.—The filing of the will of Mary Ingersoll of Ossining in Surrogate George Slater's court in Westchester County has just disclosed that all eight beneficiaries of the will are dead.

As a result of the discovery court attaches will try to establish if the testatrix had any near relative living. If any are found they will be cited to appear and make claims for the estate, which amounts to about $1,000. If no relatives turn up the State of New York will have first claim upon the estate.

COLUMBIA BEATS AMHERST.

Wins in Debate on Question of Tax-Exempt Bonds.

Amherst upheld the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that the Constitution of the United States should be amended to permit the taxing by Federal Government of the income derived from State and municipal bonds."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A disturbance of considerable intensity was central north of Lake Superior Friday night and moving eastward, and another disturbance was over the southern Rocky Mountain and southern plateau regions, while a third was over Alberta. High pressure prevailed over the Atlantic and East Gulf States and from the North Pacific Coast southeastward to Nebraska. This pressure distribution has been attended by local rains within the last twenty-four hours in portions of the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys and along the North Pacific Coast, local rains and snows in the upper lake region and local snows in portions of Colorado and Wyoming. In other parts of the country fair weather has prevailed. The temperature was higher Friday east of the Mississippi River, except in portions of the Atlantic States, while colder weather overspread most of the Plains States, the central Rocky Mountain region and Nevada.

There will be considerable cloudiness Saturday and Sunday over the States east of the Mississippi River, and precipitation, mostly in the form of rain, is probable over the greater portion of this area. However, the weather will remain fair in the Atlantic States south of Maryland until Saturday night.

The temperature will rise in the Atlantic States Saturday, while it will fall in the lower lake region and the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys Saturday night and Sunday, and in the Atlantic and East Gulf States except the Florida Peninsula Sunday.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

No change from the lately prevalent condition occurred on yesterday's stock market. Prices were again pushed by professional speculators, first in one direction and then in the other. Stocks which had been advancing rapidly in one hour would be falling with equal rapidity in the next; at times, one set of stocks would be rising while another set was declining. Such a market can hardly be discussed with much seriousness, except in so far as it proves that the professional contingent now has the field to itself, the investing public looking on with more of sporting interest than of broad financial concern. The market closed with irregular net changes; most of them were declines.

In the foreign exchange market a further advance of sterling was the point of interest; it reached $4.70¾, the highest in a fortnight. Thus far, since the high point of $4.72½ was reached on Feb. 21, sterling has acted much as it did after the preceding advance was checked at $4.69 in December. It had fallen to $4.69⅝ and risen to last week's $4.71⅝. After touching $4.69 on Dec. 13, it fell to $4.62¼, and did not recover the December high point again until Feb. 17. Francs made no recovery in the exchange market either of New York or London, but the French Republic 8s went yesterday to the highest price reached since the Paris conference in January—87¼, as against a low point of 83¼ in the subsequent break and a high point of 98¼ for the year.

The compilation of railway gross and net earnings for January, as now completed and published, is remarkable in itself but will probably be studied with more interest for its bearing on the future. A net operating revenue amounting to 5.54 per cent. of property valuation is not itself a "high record" under the Transportation act of 1920. Last March the percentage reached 5.83 and it got to 5.40 even in October of 1921. But last year's March record was not sustained; April earned less than 4 per cent. and the next few months ranged only between 4 and 4¾. After the high point of October, 1921, the next two months earned less than 4. It is a point of importance, however, that the high percentages of 1922 and 1921 were earned, not by a great increase of gross revenue but by drastic cut in working expenses. The January returns show operating expenses greater by 21 per cent. than the year before; yet the month's increase in gross receipts was so great as to leave a net revenue 105 per cent. larger than in 1921.

Railway results in the rest of 1923 will naturally depend in the main on the course of general trade. Indications to date are entirely encouraging in this regard. The number of cars loaded in February was almost exactly as large as it was in January. There has been some question as to whether the "loading returns" were a sure measure of traffic, since they could not show the distance the freight was to be carried and therefore the revenue from it. The Commerce Commission's resume of the January earnings answers this criticism by showing that the tonnage multiplied by the distance carried gave the largest total ever achieved in that month. Meantime, whatever is to be the trade situation next Summer or Autumn, the important fact remains that the railways are being rapidly re-equipped with rolling stock and motive power. Eventually, the "maintenance" item under operating expenditure will be brought down to more reasonable relation with total earnings.

In the end-of-the-week mercantile trade reviews, no change in the movement of expansion is reported. The present policy of buyers is described, indeed, as "one of securing protection against distant requirements"; a condition which has not existed since 1919. Yesterday's compilations of the whole country's bank exchanges in February showed very much the largest total on record for that month except in 1920.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money started and renewed at 4½ per cent., but fairly good demand put rate up later to 5, and then 5½, where it ruled until close. Time money is 5¼ per cent. bid and offered, both classes, all dates, the individual trades at lenders' quotation continued nominal. Commercial paper discounted firmly at 5 per cent. Market was active at this level; 5¼ per cent. covered less choice names.

Money in London ¼ higher at 2¼ per cent.; short bills ⅛ higher at 2⅛@2⅛ per cent.; three months' bills ⅛ up at 2⅛@2⅛ per cent.

Gold bullion 1d lower at 85s 3d. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 103⅝ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106, on Jan. 30. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149⅝, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102⅝, on Feb. 21, 1923.

Clearing House Exchanges.

Exchange of checks at New York Clearing House, $781,000,000; balances, $65,900,000; Federal Reserve credit balance, $54,000,000; exchanges this day a year ago, $575,500,000.

COPPER COMPANIES REPORT

The Ray Consolidated Copper Company and the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company have issued their statements of earnings covering operations for the last quarter of 1922. The statement issued by the Ray Consolidated shows total income of $201,903 after all expenses and reserves for depreciation. This was equal to 12 cents a share earned on the $18,771,790 capital stock of $10 a share outstanding. In the three months ended Sept. 30, 1922, the company reported total income of $97,800, equal to 4 cents a share on the outstanding capital stock.

The Nevada Consolidated Copper Company, for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1922, reports total income of $417,092 after expenses and depreciation, equal to 20 cents a share on the $9,997,285 capital stock of $5 a share par value outstanding. In the September quarter this company reported a deficit of $124,378 after crediting other income. In the December quarter there was an actual loss of $164,764 in operations, but a total of $581,062 from other income resulted in the company reporting $417,082 available for the capital stock.

MORE GOLD FOR INDIA.

Three Banks Make Withdrawals Aggregating $611,000.

Gold shipments to India have been resumed with three withdrawals for transportation to that country. They include $250,000 for the National City Bank, $211,000 for the International Banking Corporation and $150,000 for the International Acceptance Bank.

Bankers express the opinion that these shipments do not constitute a general resumption of the gold movement to India, which attracted a great deal of attention a month ago, but it is believed they are to complete payments for obligations due merchants in that country for jute, burlap and other commodities received here recently in large volume.

The Directors have this day declared a regular quarterly dividend of 4% on the capital stock of this bank, payable April 2nd, 1923, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 22nd, 1923. The transfer books will not be closed.

JOHN KNEISEL,

MacARTHUR CONCRETE PILE & FOUNDATION CO.

A dividend of 4% ($1.00) per share on the Preferred Stock for the six months ending December 31st, 1922, has been declared by the Board of Directors, payable April 1st, 1923, to Stockholders of record March 15th, 1923. F. DICKSON, Treasurer.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $31,510,000

Aggregate Compares With $79,444,000 Last Week and $63,659,000 Two Weeks Ago.

BIG DROP IN INDUSTRIALS

Only $3,300,000 Offered — Public Utilities Are $10,825,000 and Farm Loan Issues $10,500,000.

Offerings of new State and municipal, public utility, industrial and railway bonds this week totaled only $31,510,000 as compared with $79,444,000 a week ago and $63,659,000 two weeks ago. In only one field of new financing, that of farm loan bonds, did the amount of new offerings exceed that of a week ago.

The greatest percentage decrease from a week ago was shown in the new industrial financing, which with three individual issues amounted to only $3,300,000 this week as compared with $21,100,000 last week. The new industrial issues were $2,000,000 7 per cent. Mason Tire and Rubber Company mortgage gold bonds; $800,000 7 per cent. Richmond Hosiery Mills mortgage gold bonds and $500,000 7 per cent. Superior Anthracite Coal Company mortgage gold bonds.

New State and municipal issues showed an unusual drop in both the number of individual issues and total amount. There were six new issues this week, of which only one exceeded a million dollars, while the total amount was $4,885,000 as compared with $10,919,000 last week, when there were twenty individual issues. Two weeks ago there were sixteen individual State and municipal issues, which amounted to $16,247,000.

In the public utility group there were three new offerings, totaling $10,825,000 and consisting of $5,000,000 American Power and Light Company 6 per cent. gold debenture bonds; $5,000,000 Public Service Company of Northern Illinois 5½ per cent. refunding mortgage gold bonds and $825,000 mortgage and refunding gold bonds bearing 5 per cent of the Wisconsin Railway Light and Power Company. A week ago new public utility financing amounted to $33,255,000.

The total offerings for the week were divided into the following groups:

| State and municipal | $4,885,000 |
| Public utility | 10,825,000 |
| Industrial | 3,300,000 |
| Railroad | 2,000,000 |

Announcements of new financing this week were overshadowed by the statement of the new Government financing, amounting to $400,000,000 of 4¼ per cent. and 4½ per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness, to be dated March 15 and due in six and twelve months respectively. Because the rate of interest which these certificates bear is closely in line with the general money market at the present, bankers look for a large oversubscription. Officials of the Federal Reserve Bank have explained that the specific amounts of 4¼ per cent. and 4½ per cent. certificates cannot be determined until the relative amount of applications has been noted.

TO SELL STREET RAILWAY.

New York Bankers Will Make Deal With San Francisco for Trolley Lines

New York banking representatives of the Market Street Railway Company of San Francisco will leave for California next week to take up negotiations for the sale of the property to the City of San Francisco. It was learned yesterday that the company had set a tentative figure of $48,000,000 for the property.

The company may have to make a considerable concession from this price, but it is expected by bankers in touch with its affairs here that the amount realized will be sufficient to pay off all securities ahead of the common at par, and leave a large equity for the common. The properties are controlled by the United Railways Investment Company through ownership of the California Railway and Power Company. The negotiations for the sale of this property to the City of San Francisco have been under way for some time.

WOOL MARKET STEADIER.

Decline Checked at Week's London Auction.

BOSTON, March 9.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The wool markets of the world have steadied after a brief period of easing prices. Many had expected a further decline at the opening of the London colonial auctions on Tuesday, but the tone of the market was surprisingly firm, and the tone since then had improved.

"The foreign primary markets also are steadier on the lower basis of values now ruling, although offerings for the most part are getting noticeably poorer as the season wanes."

RAILROAD TO OFFER $30,000,000 ISSUE

WILL YIELD ABOUT 5%

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Other Banking Firms Handle Bond Deal—Largest of Kind This Year.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, through its bankers, is expected to make a public offering of $30,000,000 equipment trust certificates next Monday. This financing will be the largest single railroad bond issue underwritten by a banking group since the offering of $60,000,000 refunding and improvement bonds made by the New York Central Railroad Company in April of last year. According to the reports circulated in banking circles yesterday, the Pennsylvania financing will consist of equipment trust certificates maturing serially in from one to fifteen years. Complete details of the new financing were not obtainable yesterday. From what could be gathered yesterday the offering will be made to investors at a price to yield between 5 and 5.10 per cent. for a certificate yielding 5 per cent. interest annually.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is the firm which has underwritten the issue. Associated with it in the public offering are other bankers who co-operate with the firm in the distribution of securities of the Pennsylvania to the investing public.

In addition to that of the Pennsylvania there is another piece of railroad financing hanging fire in the local market. This is expected too amount to between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000, probably nearer the larger figure, and will be for the account of the Canadian National Railways. This financing has been talked of in local banking circles for several weeks, but in view of the fact that the details in connection with this offering have not as yet been completely arranged, no immediate offering of the securities is expected.

Numerous other new bond offerings for the accounts of domestic railroads have been underwritten by local bankers since the first of the current year, but the largest of these amounted to $13,875,000 for the account of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Others included an issue of $13,447,000 for the Illinois Central, $10,000,000 for the Northern Pacific, $12,960,000 for the New York Central and $13,461,000 for the International and Great Northern.

$57,000,000 IN EQUIPMENT.

The Pennsylvania Railroad System yesterday announced that orders for new equipment to be placed in service this year call for the expenditure of more than $57,000,000. Large additions are being made to the car and locomotive capacity in anticipation of heavy traffic, the railroad normally handling 11 per cent. of the nation's freight and 17 per cent. of its passenger traffic. By the time the peak of the traffic is in sight, ordinarily in the first weeks of October, the Pennsylvania expects to have delivered to it the greater portion of 500 steam locomotives ordered since Jan. 1.

The company reported that deliveries have been completed on 100 heavy freight engines ordered last August. Final deliveries are now being made on 250 passenger cars ordered last year and fifteen passenger locomotives which are being completed in the company's Altoona works. Three new improved electric locomotives and 100 cabin cars also are under construction.

A summary by the company shows that orders for 188 locomotives had been placed with the Baldwin Locomotive Works and 140 with the Pennsylvania's Altoona works.

FEBRUARY EXCHANGES ONLY ONCE EXCEEDED

Bank Checks Drawn in This Country Exceeded Only by February, 1920.

Although total exchange of checks at the principal Clearing Houses of the country for the month of February, compared with the previous month, as compiled by the Financial Chronicle, shows a loss of $5,893,919,000, or approximately 17 per cent., the aggregate for last month of $30,408,860,129, was 14.7 per cent. greater than for the same month last year. Some explanation, at least, of the shrinkage in the turnover is attributable to the fact that February is a short month, and likewise carries two holidays within its calendar period.

The clearings in New York City, totaling $16,783,978,443, were larger by 9.4 per cent. than February a year ago, but 15 per cent. less than January, 1923. Outside of New York City, the trend of larger clearings in February this year over the same month in 1922, with a slight drop from the average for January, 1923, was discernible.

February clearings for the entire United States compare as follows with those of previous months and years:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Feb., '23 | $30,408,860,129 | Feb., '22 | $26,521,020,968 |
| Jan., '23 | 36,302,779,545 | Feb., '21 | 25,693,319,504 |

By Federal Reserve districts, the turnover of checks for February this year exceeded those for same month in 1922, but losses were reported in these regions from the totals reported in January, 1923.

The comparison for last month, by Federal Reserve districts, with the same month a year ago, follows:

| | Feb., 1923. | Feb., 1922. | Ch'ge. |

But Cleveland Chamber of Commerce Sees No Alternative.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 9.—"Pittsburgh plus," the phantom freight bill that costs Cleveland steel consumers $1,500,000 a year, is wrong in principle, but there seems to be nothing that can be done about it, the Chamber of Commerce reported today, after investigations extending over three years.

The Chamber's report says that even if the practice could be abolished there is no certainty that Cleveland would benefit in an industrial way. The "Pittsburgh plus" system is that under which steel producers charge consumers the prices which prevail in Pittsburgh, plus the freight charges from Pittsburgh to wherever the producing mill happens to be.

At least $1,500,000 fictitious freight charges are involved annually to Cleveland concerns when "Pittsburgh plus" is in effect. Much of this amount is passed on to other concerns.

During the recent depression the Pittsburgh basis broke down and competitive prices were freely quoted F. O. B. mill at Chicago, Philadelphia, Buffalo and other cities.

Whether or not abolition of the Pittsburgh base would be a commercial advantage to Cleveland is open to question. Abolition of the Pittsburgh base would tend to encourage the purchase of steel for Cleveland consumption.

Maxwell Output Gaining.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Maxwell Motor Company that January shipments were 3,500 cars, and February shipments were 4,000 cars. The March production schedule calls for 5,250 cars. The figures are ahead of the original schedule, it is said.

CHANDLER MOTOR DECLARES DIVIDEND

PLAN FOR 120 CARS A DAY

Fairbanks-Morse & Co., United Light and Washington Power Vote Payments.

Directors of the Chandler Motor Car Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the capital stock payable April 2, to stock of record March 20. An official statement issued by the management says that current orders are far in excess of capacity and shipments have reached a total of 100 cars a day, which is practically capacity. It is further said that officers are endeavoring to make arrangements with subsidiary companies manufacturing parts to speed up shipments so that 120 cars can be manufactured daily. This output is expected to be reached some time in April.

Directors of Fairbanks-Morse & Co., yesterday declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock payable March 31, to stock of record March 16. Three months ago the directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share in addition to an extra dividend of the same amount.

The United Light & Railways Company of Illinois declared a stock dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock and an extra cash dividend of ½ of 1 per cent. on the common in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. They also declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. on the 7 per cent. participating preferred, payable in four quarterly instalments.

Directors of the Washington Water Power Company at a meeting in Spokane declared a dividend of $2 on the capital stock, which in effect increased the rate from 7 per cent. to 8 per cent. Three months ago an extra dividend of $1 was declared by the same company.

INCREASED FREIGHT TRAFFIC

New York Central Lines Report February a Record Month.

Freight traffic over the New York Central lines last February set a new record for that month, according to reports made public yesterday by the company, and combined traffic results for the first two months of the year showed an increase of 28.8 per cent. over the same two months of 1922. During February of this year 719,188 cars were hauled, against 609,772 in February of 1922. Coal hauls reached a new high figure, with an average of 3,296 cars daily, and automobile loadings an average of 728 cars—the third time in twelve months that the monthly record for automobile shipments has been bettered.

Car receipts and loadings for the two months totaled 1,515,407, or 340,059 more than in the same period of 1922.

TO SOLICIT FOR MEMBERS

Movement Is Launched to Aid the Work of the Better Business Bureau, Inc.

The Library Committee of the New York Stock Exchange and other officials of that institution gave a luncheon yesterday to organize a committee to raise $100,000 to aid the Better Business Bureau, Inc., to carry on its work of investigating the sales of worthless securities. Jason W. Westerfield, Secretary of the Library Committee; E. H. H. Simmons, Vice President of the Stock Exchange, and L. M. Richmond of Moore & Schley addressed the gathering. Mr. Westerfield reviewed the record of the Better Business Bureau since it started its work in 1918 on a small scale. He pointed out that in order to continue the work accomplished within recent years additional funds were necessary, and that the time had come to organize a committee to get members of the New York Stock Exchange and the leading investment houses in the Street to lend their aid to the bureau.

The New York Stock Exchange, banks, investment houses and prominent industrial and public utility corporations are associated with the Better Business Bureau, Inc., in its work of educating the investing public in the purchase of securities and in its campaign of publicity to guard the public against the many fraudulent offerings of brokers and so-called investment bankers. It is now hoped that the members of the Stock Exchange as individuals will give their support to the organization.

Curb Market Association Asks Members to Report Transactions.

The New York Curb Market Association, following suspension of trading in the capital stock of the Fay Taxicabs, Inc., yesterday requested all of its members to make a report of all transactions in the stock. The following statement was issued to members:

"All members are notified to file with the Secretary's office, on or before noon Saturday, March 10, a record of all transactions made on this exchange in the shares of Fay Taxicabs, Inc., when, as and if issued, showing in detail the number of transactions, both purchases and sales, including the names of principals and the net position resulting therefrom."

AIDS OHIO COAL SHIPMENTS.

Order to N. Y. C. Results From Complaints of Diversion of Fuel.

The New York Central Railroad Company has been ordered to connect with the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company at Hopedale, Ohio, as a means of insuring coal shipments to certain sections of Ohio which had complained that shipments were being diverted to other States and into Canada, according to announcement yesterday.

The order was filed by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission on complaint of coal operators who said they were being ruined financially because of the inability of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia alone to distribute coal.

Preferred Stock Is Offered.

Jackson & Curtis are offering an issue of $500,000 7 per cent. cumulative sinking fund preferred stock of the Waterlook Textile Corporation at 98½ and accrued dividend, to yield 7.10 per cent. The bankers say that the net assets, including the proceeds of the present financing, are in excess of $407 and that the net quick assets are equal to more than $216 per share of this preferred stock. The company has no mortgage or funded debt.

Metropolitan Stores Sales Gain.

Sales of the Metropolitan 5 to 50 cent Stores, Inc., totaled $414,176 during February, according to announcement yesterday by Verme M. Bovie, President. This was an increase of $71,712 over sales of February, 1922, which were $342,464. For the first two months of 1923 sales totaled $840,937, against $666,191 a year ago, or an increase of $174,746.

Electric Company Income Report.

The Eastern Wisconsin Electric Company, for the year ended last Dec. 31, earned a gross net income of $544,707, and after interest and amortization charges and payment of dividends had a balance of $64,958 left, according to the annual report announced yesterday. During 1922 the company acquired the outstanding capital stock of the Oakfield Light and Power Company.

DURANT CO. ASKS WHY STOCK IS SOLD

CURB PRICE UP AFTER BREAK

Drop of 14½ Points Thursday Is Followed by Another Decline, Then Recovery to 57.

The shares of the Durant Motors, Inc., which broke 14½ points on the New York Curb Market on Thursday, suffered another sharp reaction in the early dealings on the Curb yesterday, but recovered from an early low of 50¼ to 56¼ and closed at 57. The closing price Thursday was 54½.

Durant Motors, Inc., when it was organized floated a small block of stock in the financial district, but the greater part of the shares was sold by the corporation on the part-payment plan to small investors throughout the country. At present, according to a statement by an official of the company, there are 250,000 shareholders on the books of the company. The selling of this stock started about two years ago, the stock being held in escrow for two years until fully paid for. During the last few months payments have been made in full from time to time and the stock delivered to the purchasers. The transfer books, it is stated, show that a certain number of investors have sold their stock since delivery of the certificates.

As a result of this the Durant Motors, Inc., is sending a questionnaire to those former stockholders to find out what their motive was in selling the shares. The questionnaire, it is stated, asks whether the stock was sold because of lack of faith in the Durant organization or dissatisfaction with the plan of buying stock on the part-payment plan, and similar questions.

Yale & Towne Profits $2,405,664.

The Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company reports net profits of $2,405,664 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1922, after allowing for depreciation and Federal taxes. This is equal to $6.01 a share earned on the $10,000,000 capital stock of $25 per share par value outstanding. In 1921 the company reported net profits of $1,299,038 after the same deductions, which was equal to $25.98 a share on the $4,988,774 capital stock of $100 a share outstanding. The profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1922, was $8,035,148, according to the balance sheet.

BUSINESS RECOVERY SHOWS MARKED GAIN

FEWER FAILURES REPORTED

Activity in Pig Iron, Steel, Automobile Plants and Textile Mills.

The developments in the trade and business world last week furnish further evidence of the decisive character of the domestic business recovery, according to the trade reviews of the leading mercantile agencies. Particular attention is called to the current returns of production in the basic industries. Another factor is the failure returns, which showed a sharp contraction during February. Others include the rising commodity prices which indicate continuance of demand from consumers. The seasonal business in Spring trade shows increase, despite the severe weather experienced in some sections of the country.

"No previous February has shown a pig iron output equal to last month's turnover, while steel works, automobile plants and textile mills, among other enterprises, are running at a high rate," says Dun's Review. "Purchasing merely to cover immediate or near-by needs had long been the prevailing practice, whereas the present policy in many instances is one of securing protection against distant requirements. The general commercial situation is marked by phases which leave no doubt as to their meaning, and it is nearly everywhere recognized now that business, with comparatively few exceptions, is experiencing rapid expansion."

Bradstreet's says: "The trade and industrial pace is quickening and the price situation shows increased strength. The week, despite severe weather along the Atlantic seaboard, has shown slightly more activity in buying, both from jobbers and retailers; marked strength with numerous advances have distinguished the textile markets; practically all classes of iron and steel and building materials, notably lumber, and additional measures of industrial movement coming to hand point to February having witnessed a surge forward in many lines of industry, equal to or in excess of January. Spurred on by further advance in raw cotton above 31 cents, cotton goods have hardened perceptibly. Another rise in Japanese raw silk prices to the highest level since May, 1920, has appeared to quicken an already good buying movement in silk goods."

COTTON IS HEAVY IN NARROW MARKET

Decline in London and Pressure From Southern Sources Brings Reaction of 11 to 28 Points Here.

Cotton lost ground for the second successive day, something that has not happened in three weeks. The advance had been so phenomenal that New York began to emerge above other markets instead of the reverse, as was the case in the middle of February. Not only did May come closer to Liverpool than for many years, but a complete change in relations with Atlantic spot markets has taken place. Reports of more cotton offered in the South as well as only a moderate demand had a disturbing effect in some quarters, producing enough liquidation to close prices at the bottom. Sales at the principal markets aggregated only 5,000 bales, smallest figures in some time. Trading continued heavy, with final quotations 11 to 28 points lower than Thursday.

Owing to the quantity of cotton for sale in final trading Thursday, large overnight selling orders were not unexpected. A sharp decline in Liverpool during which May there broke three-quarters of a cent at one time, brought pressure on New York, and May opened at 30¾c under heavy liquidation. This carried July to 29.85, several large orders being executed in the progress of the call. But below 30c for July demand became quite general. Immediately following the opening commission house and trade orders absorbed so much cotton that prices recovered 30 points or more sharply. Despite this demand for old crops late months came under heavy selling pressure as long as Liverpool remained in session. A quantity of late months was sold, not only for foreign but for domestic account. This had a depressing effect on prices, particularly in January. Though January had declined nearly ¾c in two days, there seemed to be little demand for that position during the recovery in near months. It became difficult to obtain contracts, but there was not the same aggressive buying by larger interests that occurred on previous days this week. It was not until July sold back above 30.20 that liquidation became a factor once more.

Though frequent upward rushes occurred during the afternoon, it was evident that it became more difficult to hold recoveries. Many commission houses had selling orders to execute on every upturn so that prices worked lower in late trading. Reports of considerable cotton being offered in the interior at discounts, under May, compared with premiums asked a few weeks ago, unsettled sentiment. The New York market has advanced closer to Liverpool than at any time since 1914. As weight of contracts increased in late trading, quotations below the opening were recorded with all months closing at low figures of the day.

Spinners took 205,000 bales, against 184,000 last year, making 912,000 for the season, against 4,483,000 last year. The visible supply lost 91,000 bales, compared with 46,000 last year, leaving the supply of American 2,651,000, against 3,907,000 a year ago.

ALL CHICAGO GRAINS IN STRONG UPTURN

Sellers of Corn Turn to Buying Wheat and the Shorts Are Rushed to Cover.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Houses with Eastern connections were free sellers of corn early, but turned heavy buyers of wheat when the latter grain broke in sympathy, absorbing the surplus in the pit, and forced shorts to cover, making a strong upturn in all grains from the break, with the finish within a fraction of the top and net gains of ¾@¾c cent on wheat, ½@¾c cent on corn and ½@¾c cent on rye, while oats were unchanged to ¼ higher.

The Government report on farm reserves of wheat was variously construed. But there was a more friendly feeling toward the buying side near the close. It is pointed out that all the wheat hedged here, domestic and Canadian, is apparently in strong hands and that any effort to remove local operators and commission houses or displace hedges will result in a rather tight situation.

May has responded to any good buying very quickly of late. Houses with Southwestern connections were good buyers of July early. Crop reports from the central and eastern portions of the three States on the whole are favorable. Janies A. Patten, in an interview after the close, expressed the belief that prices would have to advance to a basis with other commodities.

Messages from the seaboard continue to claim a limited export demand, though Minneapolis reports 500,000 to 750,000 bushels of durum sold for export so far this week. It is understood that practically all of the Canadian wheat afloat at one of the smaller Eastern ports is owned by American mills which have it already sold in the shape of flour. No. 1 Manitoba was said to have been offered for opening of navigation shipment at equal to 3½ cents under Chicago May, c.i.f. Erie.

Many local and outside traders, who were long on corn over the Government report on expectations of a bulge permitting a profit, sold out early today, and, with the Eastern selling, carried prices of ¾ cent for the May at one time, but the buying on resting orders was persistent.

Later the market recovered on account of a bullish view of the situation taken by L. S. Gates of Lamson Bros. & Co., who figure on the basis of the movement of past years that there are only about 150,000,000 bushels of corn to come forward during the balance of the crop year for commercial purposes, compared with 250,000,000 bushels last year.

The July and September held well throughout the day. Cash corn gained ¾ cent as compared with May today, with No. 2 grades selling at ½ cent under for mixed to ½ cent over for the yellow.

It is figured by a local house that total available stocks of oats on March 1 were 58,000 bushels less than the average of recent years. Trade in rye was light.

Primary receipts of wheat today were 967,000 bushels; week ago, 856,000; last year, 803,000. Shipments were 590,000 bushels; week ago, 510,000; last year, 313,000.

Corn receipts were 1,125,000 bushels; week ago, 1,108,000; last year, 1,883,000. and shipments, 619,000 bushels; week ago, 701,000; last year, 962,000.

AMERICAN COIN SET SOLD FOR $100,000

CONTAINS 2,000 SPECIMENS

One Rare Item Is the Doubloon Struck in New York in 1787 by Ephraim Brasher.

Wayte Raymond, dealer in coins, of 489 Park Avenue, has bought from M. Knoedler & Co. the collection of early American and United States coins recently sold to the Knoedler Syndicate by James W. Ellsworth. Mr. Raymond paid about $100,000 for the coins, said to be the largest amount ever given for a numismatic collection in this country.

The collection has been known for years as the finest in the United States, and Mr. Ellsworth, who has disposed of all his art works and other rare collections, with the exception of his Innes paintings and a Rembrandt, counted it as one of the most interesting and valuable of his possessions.

Among the valuable coins is the unique set of Nova Constellation patterns for a decimal system struck in 1783, in denominations of 100, 500 and 1,000 mills. This set was from the celebrated Parmalee collection sold in New York in 1890.

There is also the doubloon struck in New York in 1787 by Ephraim Brasher, of which there are only four specimens. There are only four pieces of the Colinial period and early trial pieces used before the regular adopted coinage at the United States mint in 1793, and a remarkable series of the gold, silver and copper coins of the United States from the beginning of the coinage in 1793 up to the present time, including two 1804 dollars and the finest known speciments of many other rare dates.

An interesting part of the collection is a series of the early private gold coins struck in California, Colorado, Utah, Oregon, North Carolina and Georgia. There are about 2,000 coins in the collection, making it the most important coin set ever sold here.

LABOR MEN PRESS $150,000 DEMAND

State Federation Assails Assembly for Not Granting Emergency Appropriation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 8.—A statement issued today by John M. O'Hanlon, legislative representative of the State Federation of Labor, set forth that the "officers of the State Federation of Labor regret very much the action of the Assembly in refusing to pass the Emergency Appropriation bill for the State Labor Department this week."

The statement said that while the "Assembly delays injured workers and their dependents suffer privation and the health and safety factory codes are violated and ignored for lack of enforcement."

The measure, calling for an immediate appropriation of $150,000, was passed in the Senate on Wednesday under an emergency message from Governor Smith, but was blocked in the Assembly by Speaker Machold and Majority Leader Adler. On motion of Mr. Adler it was referred to the Ways and Means Committee. This means that the measure cannot be passed before the middle of next week.

"The officers of the New York State Federation of Labor regret very much the action of the Assembly in refusing to pass the emergency appropriation for the State Department of Labor this week. The bill to appropriate the $150,000 asked for by Industrial Commissioner Shientag and stated by Governor Smith in a special message to the Legislature last week to be imperatively needed to perform the work of the department, was introduced in the Senate on Wednesday by Senator Walker and immediately passed by that body under an emergency message from the Governor. It was then sent to the Assembly for concurrent action the same day, where it was deliberately refused consideration and referred to a committee in the face of the known immediate need and still remains in such committee, as the Legislature adjourns until next week.

"This prevents the adjudication of injured workers' claims for compensation which have piled up for lack of a sufficient staff of employees under the very inadequate appropriation made by the Legislature of 1922 and halting the enforcement of the labor laws because of the lack of inspectors and enforcing agencies. While the Assembly delays injured workers and their dependents suffer privation and health and safety factory codes are violated and ignored for lack of enforcement."

It is expected the Assembly will concur next week with the Senate and approve the appropriation.

BORAH WARNS LEADERS.

Voters Getting Ahead of Them, He Tells Brooklyn Republicans.

United States Senator William E. Borah warned the Republican leaders of Kings County last night that in the breakdown of party lines the voters were way ahead of their leaders. It behoved the leaders, he said, to consider this fact in view of the coming election.

"The real vice of the situation," he added, "is that the leaders doubt the capacity, the sincerity and the courage of the voters to do great things, and they were never more mistaken in their lives."

Senator Borah was the guest of ex-Senator William M. Calder at a dinner in the Montauk Club, at which were gathered the members of the Kings County Republican Committee and other leaders. Later he went to the Kismet Temple, where the regular meeting of the committee was held.

WANTS A HYLAN PARKWAY.

Civic League Urges Change in Name of Southfield Boulevard.

The Staten Island Civic League, at a meeting last evening in Richmond Borough Hall, St. George, unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon the Board of Aldermen to change the name of Southfield Boulevard to Hylan Parkway, in honor of the Mayor. The matter will be taken up by Borough President Lynch of Richmond and the three Aldermen from the borough.

The League appointed a committee of twenty-five to arrange for a dinner to the Mayor and other city officials on the day ground is broken for the Staten Island end of the Richmond-King tunnel.

Realty Notes.

The Board of Management of the Citizens' Savings and Loan Association, 217 West 125th Street, will give a dinner to Edward M. Cutler on Monday night, March 12, at the Republican Club, 105 West Fortieth Street. Mr. Cutler has been a member of the board for thirty-two years.

Professor William H. L. Wells of San Francisco, Cal., was the buyer of the tenement property at 420 East Seventy-second Street. Cyril A. Carroll, Inc., and John Newton Porter were the brokers in the transaction.

Childs & Humphries placed for the Territt Investing Corporation, Leo Ritter, President, a first mortgage of $50,000 for five years on 10 West Thirtieth Street; $24,000 for Domenico Peloso on 22 and 24 Leroy Street, and $13,000 for Henriette I. McBrearty on 104 West Seventy-ninth Street.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Trading Indicates Demand for Small Dwelling Properties.

The estate of Katherine Fress sold 1,148 Park Avenue, a three-story private dwelling, having a frontage of 18 feet on the avenue. After extensive alterations, Dr. Edward Paymer will occupy the house for his own use. The property was held at $50,000. George S. Runk was the broker.

John J. Hoeckh, Inc., has sold for Dr. J. Kessler the three-story private brownstone house at 247 West Forty-sixth Street.

John and Marion McAleer sold premises 172 and 174 East 128th Street, two three-story private dwellings on plot in size 38 by 99.11. Eugene A. Walsh was the broker.

Dunlap & Lloyd, Inc., sold for Williams-Dexter Co., Inc., the brick dwelling, 269 West Eleventh Street to Alfred P. Hesse. The new owner will remodel.

$300,000 Brooklyn Sale.

Meister Builders, Inc., have purchased from the Gomil Realty Company Nos. 1,502 Forty-second Street and 4,208, 4,209, 4,215 and 4,219 Fifteenth Avenue and 1,501 Forty-third Street, Brooklyn; the whole block front Fifteenth Avenue taking in corners of Forty-second and Forty-third Streets. On this plot of 200 by 100 there are six four-story brick houses accommodating sixty-four families with a rent list of over $40,000 and held at $300,000. Feinberg & Pachtman were the brokers.

Hotel Essex Buyers.

Klein & Jackson have bought the twelve-story Hotel Essex on a plot 75 by 75.5 at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street. It was held at $800,000. Cushman & Wakefield, Inc., were the brokers in the transaction. The hotel was owned by the Francis S. Kinney estate for many years, and in 1916 it sold the property to G. Maurice Hecksher and associates. The following year it was leased by the new owners to M. L. Mayo for twelve years.

Trading in Brooklyn.

The twenty-family brick apartment house, 424 Senator Street, known as the Court James apartment, on plot 50 by 120, was sold by V. Lamberti to an investor. This property was held at $75,000. Moriarty & Hollahan were the brokers.

EIGHTH AV. PROJECT TO COST $4,000,000

TO BE 16 STORIES HIGH

Benjamin Winter Buys Plot on Broadway Adjoining Strand Theatre for $1,250,000.

As a site for a sixteen-story commercial loft building representing an investment of $4,000,000, the entire block front on the east side of Eighth Avenue between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Streets was sold by William S. Sussman, Inc., for Daniel H. Jackson, operator. The property has a frontage on Eighth Avenue of 200 feet by 100 feet in depth on Thirty-seventh Street and 133 feet on Thirty-eighth Street, and has been purchased by the Criterion Realty Corporation, Alexander, Pfeiffer, President, representing a firm of builders who will erect the loft with stores. The larger part of the structure has already been leased to merchants for a term of years.

Mr. Jackson bought this plot only last month at a reported price of $900,000 and is said to have netted a handsome profit in its resale to the present buyers.

This operation, involving the outlay and investment of over $4,000,000, is the second of its magnitude recently negotiated by the same brokers, who three weeks ago sold the site of the Marlborough Hotel, on the corner of Thirty-sixth Street and Broadway, to Abraham E. Lefcourt, prominent builder, operating in this section, for immediate improvement with a twenty-story structure.

$1,250,000 Broadway Deal.

The southwest corner of Broadway and Forty-eighth Street, known as 1,585 and 1,587 Broadway, adjoining the Strand Theatre, has been sold by the Bagmont Realty Company, A. L. Tanzer, President, to Benjamin Winter for $1,250,000. The plot is 51 by 125 by 140, improved with a five-story building. William S. Sussman, Inc., negotiated the sale.

Plans Sixteen-Story Building.

H. Brinckerhoff MacCully assembled for the Kaufman Dress Company (Samuel Kaufman, President) property at 241-243-245 West Thirty-fifth Street, a plot 69 by 98.9, to be improved with a sixteen-story mercantile building.

Berley & Co. was associated in the sale of 241 West Thirty-fifth Street. William P. Jones & Co. was associated in the sale of 243 West Thirty-fifth Street.

Operator Buys and Sells.

Joseph G. Abramson, the operator, purchased from Horace A. Saks of Saks & Co., 326 West Fifty-eighth Street, off Columbus Circle, size 20 by 100, four story and basement building, rented with a sixty-day cancellation clause. This property has been purchased for all cash and has been in the family for over a century. There are negotiations pending for the resale of this property.

Pease & Elliman have sold for Miss Lillian Drey 180 and 182 West 135th Street, off Seventh Avenue, size 25 by 100 each, making a plot 50 by 100, two five-story and basement apartment buildings. This property has been purchased for all cash and has been held in the family for a long term of years. There are negotiations pending for the resale of this property, Joseph G. Abramson, the operator, is the purchaser of this property.

Dyckman Section Investment.

Volz & Maas sold to an investor for the Emm W. Gee Realty Co. the two-story taxpayer on the southeast corner of Dyckman Street and Sherman Avenue. The building contains thirteen stores and eight class rooms which are occupied by the George Washington High School.

The building shows an annual rental of $19,000 and was held at $125,000.

West Side Garage Sold.

The three-story garage, on a lot 18.2 by 100.5, at 320 West Seventieth Street, was sold by L. J. Phillips & Co. for the E. & M. Realty Company, William B. Thom, President, to a buyer for occupancy.

APARTMENTS IN DEMAND,

New Owners Acquire Properties Valued at Millions.

Ards Building Corporation, Charles Brogan, President, sold to Seer Holding Corporation, Tom Rees, President, Ards Apartment at 2 to 16 Fort Washington Place, the northeast corner of 181st Street, a six-story, newly completed tax-exempt apartment house having a frontage of 208 feet 6 inches and an average depth of 75 feet, accommodating sixty-one families, renting for $66,000 and held at $425,000.

The property is one block from Broadway; it overlooks the grounds of the Fort Washington Collegiate Church and stands on high ground so that all the apartments have permanent light. Nehring Bros. were the brokers.

Max N. Natanson sold to Mandelbaum & Lewine, 501 West 143d Street, at the northwest corner of Hamilton Place, known as Chilmark Hall, and being a six-story elevator apartment house containing eight stores on plot fronting 90 feet on 143d Street, and 108 feet on Hamilton Place. The property rents for $44,800, and was held at $326,000. Mr. Natanson acquired it a few weeks ago from M. S. & G. Realty Corporation, Clarence J. Lawson, President.

Mr. Natanson has purchased from an investor, 102 West 119th Street, a six-story elevator apartment house on plot 50 by 100, commencing 75 feet west of Lenox Avenue. The property rents for $17,000 and was held at $100,000.

William S. Baker & Co. were the brokers in the two transactions.

Max N. Natanson sold to an investor 674-676 Tenth Avenue, two cold water tenements, each on plot 25 by 100, between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets. The houses were held at $32,000 each and were sold for cash. The broker was Herman Arne Company. This completes the sale of the twenty houses purchased by Mr. Natanson a short time ago from the William Waldorf Astor Estate.

N. A. Berwin & Co. sold for the Mandel-Ehrich Corporation, the nine-story apartment house at 104 to 110 East Fortieth Street, in the Murray Hill zone, on a plot 95 by 100, adjoining the southeast corner of Park Avenue. It was held at $675,000 and returns an annual rental of about $100,000. The new owners are investors.

William S. Baker resold for Charles Kimmelman and George Zauderer, Mardel Court, a six-story elevator apartment occupying the block front on Riverside Drive between 162d and 163d Streets, and held at $675,000. It has a frontage of 204 feet on the drive and 100 feet on each street, with accommodations for fifty families and an annual rental of $108,000. The buyer is the 3,157 Broadway Corporation.

Elgar & Feinberg, as brokers, report the closing of the sale for the Coast Construction Company, Samuel G. Reiss President, of 302-310 West Eighty-seventh Street, a nine-story fireproof apartment house, consisting of two apartments on a floor of eight rooms and three baths. The property rents for about $70,000 and was held at $450,000. It was purchased by the R. E. L. Holding Corporation. This is the first sale of the property, the sellers being the builders.

Bronx Garages Leased.

The Silverman's Exchange leased the garage building located at 1,262 Westchester Avenue from the Perlbinder Construction Company to Rabinovitch & Kalmonovitz. The lease was made for a period of fifteen years at an aggregate rental of $274,750. The building aggregates 31,000 square feet and is one story high.

The same broker also leased the garage located at 1,006 East 173d Street, near Boone Avenue, from Jawits Realty Corp. to Freed Brothers for a period of fifteen years at an aggregate rental of $145,000.

To Enlarge Telephone Exchange.

Plans have been filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings for enlarging the four-story telephone exchange at 121 to 129 West Seventy-third Street by adding eight stories, making it a twelve-story structure at an estimated cost of $800,000. The New York Telephone Company is the owner of record. McKenzie, Voorhees & Gmelin are the architects.

Commercial Leases.

Thomas A. Weatherley leased to the Walrich Realty Company, Inc., the twelve-story modern loft building, size 48 by 100, at 16-18 West Thirty-ninth Street, on a long term net lease. Homer L. Pace was the broker.

The same broker negotiated leases in this property with Lord & Taylor, Marlborough Hat Company, I. D. Wolfson, Inc., and Jas. M. Shoemaker Company.

Sequoia Apartments Resold.

Frederick Brown resold the ten-story Sequoia apartments, at the southeast corner of Broadway and 165th Street, for the second large profit he has made on this property in three years. Arthur Greenstein signed the contract as representing the real buyer, a client of H. D. Baker and Rollerson. The Sequoia fronts 100.5 feet on Broadway and 110.11 feet on 165th Street. In 1919 Mr. Brown purchased the property, and a few days later sold it to the Washington Deeds Corporation at an advance. The house, which now pays $65,631 a year in rent, was purchased from the Washington Deeds Corporation last week by Mr. Brown, who gave the seller a handsome profit. There are seven stores on the Broadway front and four apartments of six, seven and eight rooms on each of the upper floors.

The Bronx Market.

Charles W. Wynne and Louis H. Low, operators, have purchased the northeast corner of Franklin Avenue and 166th Street, near McKinley Square, a five-story apartment house, on a plot 36 by 100, containing two stores and eighteen four-room-and-bath apartments.

The property brings in a rental of $9,000 and was held at $60,000 by the seller, Kutloff estate. Heil & Stern were the brokers who negotiated the transaction.

Cahn & Cahn, operators, resold to Kirchoff Piano Company 2,777 Third Avenue, a three-story business building, on a lot 18 by 65. George Janss was the broker in the transaction.

The Silverman's Exchange sold the garage under course of construction on Whitlock and Longfellow Avenues from I. Langner Construction Company to Cohin Brothers. The building will be 108 feet front, 115 feet deep and one story. It was held for $75,000.

Richard D. Pirner sold for Seymour Ladzin premises at 850 Fairmont Place, a corner four-story eight-family flat house, held at $40,000, to Max Freidman for investment.

Suburban Buyers.

John B. and Mary H. Mitchie sold one of five new houses in course of construction, situated at the corner of Mamaroneck Road and Bryant Avenue, White Plains. The purchaser, Emerson Ives, will occupy the same upon completion. The property was held at $23,000. Chauncey B. Griffen was the broker.

The Malba Estates Corporation, through Champ & Dasey, sales directors, announce the sale at Malba-on-the-Sound, Long Island, to Henry James, owner of Virginia Manor, of a large plot adjoining his residence on the Boulevard; also a building site to Roger B. Quincy, adjoining his residence. Walter Darby, owner of Bon Crest, has increased his holdings by purchasing a strip of the adjoining property on North Drive, from George Chase, and also the property in the rear, extending to Center Drive, from the Malba Estates Corporation.

Ladd & Nichols and George Howe sold the Gustav Schwab estate on Lake Avenue and Clapboard Ridge, Greenwich, Conn., to Z. G. Simmons. The property was held at $250,000. Mrs. Simmons will remodel the residence and will build two others on the property for his two sons, each to cost $100,000. The estate comprises sixty-eight acres. The house is a new colonial structure with eight master bedrooms, three baths, six servants' rooms with one bath, a garage, gardener's cottage and artesian well.

Henry A. Rogers of the Wheatley Hills Real Estate Corporation sold for the Alexander Campbell Realty Company a tract of sixty-three acres, at Roslyn, Long Island, situated on the northeast corner of the Mineola-Roslyn highway and the highway leading from Little Neck to Westbury. On this property is an old Colonial farmhouse, about 150 years old, and various outbuildings. The purchaser will improve the property for his own occupancy.

Doctor Buys Sumner Gerard House.

Sumner Gerard sold to a client of Brown, Wheelock-Harris, Vought & Company the four-story residence at 26 East Fifty-third Street on lot 18 by 100.5. The buyer, Dr. Emil J. Pallisi, will occupy.

WITHDRAWS SUITS ON GAS CUT-OFFS

THE CASE IS DISMISSED

Counsel Says Court Action Is Superfluous Because New State Law Will Be Enacted.

Actions brought by Frederick Wingenbach, as a taxpayer, to compel the Consolidated Gas Company to install gas cut-offs in four apartment houses he owns in West 119th Street and to restrain Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan from enforcing the gas cut-off ordinance recently passed by the Board of Aldermen, were withdrawn yesterday when the cases were called before Justice Mitchell L. Erlanger in Supreme Court. The new ordinance places the cost of installation of cut-offs upon property owners, and the aggregate expense has been estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

When the first case was called William L. Ransom of counsel for the gas company, said he was ready and a representative of Bernard S. Deutsch, attorney for Mr. Wingenbach, entered a request for a withdrawal and took the same action in the case against Commissioner Drennan.

"Of course, if the plaintiff withdraws his application," said Judge Ransom, "I can do nothing in the matter, although I am ready to argue on the motion, even if there is no merit in the application."

Justice Erlanger then dismissed the case.

Mr. Deutsch said later that there were several reasons for the withdrawal, one of them being that Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, recently filed an application for an injunction to restrain Mayor Hylan and Fire Commissioner Drennan from enforcing the provisions of the ordinance, which, Mr. Deutsch said, makes continuance of the Wingenbach action unnecessary. He added that the bill introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman George N. Jesse to place the expense of installing gas cut-offs on the gas companies furnished the relief desired and was expected to pass.

"Then, too," Mr. Deutsch continued, "we feel that there was some merit in the contention of the gas company that the gas cut-offs would add to the fire hazard rather than lessen it. We believe that Fire Commissioner Drennan and other city officials were wrong when they testified at the hearing before Mayor Hylan that the cut-offs would add to safety."

OUTLINES FARM BLOC PLANS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The first measure the passage of which the farm bloc will urge in the next session of Congress will be the Truth in Fabrics bill. When that is out of the way the bloc will call up the railroad question, with a view to passing legislation to compel the transportation companies to reduce freight rates, according to a statement made today by Senator Capper, head of the bloc.

Mr. Capper declared that the railroad problem would be the big issue in the Sixty-eighth Congress. The bloc, he said, among other things would insist on the repeal of the rate-making clause in the Esch-Cummins law.

"The Sixty-seventh Congress," said Senator Capper, "started agriculture on its way toward a better, and, I believe, a lasting prosperity by legislation that will help the nation's basic industry to help itself. And not one of the constructive acts may be classed as sectional or class legislation.

"In letting the proposed ship subsidy die Congress again did its duty in the largest sense. It saved the people an estimated expenditure of between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 a year for the next fifteen years."

NAMES BRIGADIER GENERALS

War Department Recognizes National Guard and Reserve Corps Officers.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The War Department announced today that on recommendation of a Board of Officers the following had been recognized as brigadier generals of the National Guard.

Edward Martin, Pennsylvania, assigned to 55th Infantry Brigade, 28th Division; William G. Everson, Indiana, 76th Brigade, 38th Division; Quincy Adams Gillmore, New Jersey, 87th Brigade, 44th Division; James J. Borree, California, 79th Brigade, 40th Division.

Similar recognition as brigadier generals of the Officers Reserve Corps was extended to the following:

Samuel G. Waller, formerly Virginia National Guard, Front Royal, Va.; Robert R. Stewart, Lansing, Mich.; Frank E. Bamford, Summit Point, W. Va.; Robert B. Wood, Highland Park, Ill.; George R. Dyer, New York City; Harold M. Bush, Grove City, Ohio; Mortimer D. Bryant, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Jay J. Morrow, now Governor of the Panama Canal Zone.

No assignments of the Reserve Corps brigadiers are made in the announcement. All of the officers, both of the National Guard and the Reserve, have had long military experience in the National Guard or the regular army, and virtually all of them exercised important commands during the World War.

HUGHES ON CITIZENSHIP.

He Holds Performance of Duties Unavailing Without Character.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Obligations of citizenship as viewed by Secretary Hughes were outlined today in a telegram made public by the State Department and addressed to Roy C. Haines of the Aurora, Ill., Chamber of Commerce. In congratulating Mr. Haines and the citizens of Aurora on their efforts to emphasize the importance of citizenship through the adoption of a civic week, Secretary Hughes said:

"These obligations do not rest solely or chiefly in the exercise of the privileges of citizens in voting, or in conducting campaigns or in holding office. Important as are all these duties, their performance will amount to nothing unless our citizens are imbued with the spirit of our institutions, which means respect for a government of law, a sincere desire to better in every practicable way the condition of human life, loyalty in all the relations of life, and the disposition to be kindly and fair in all dealings with one's fellow men."

HICCOUGHS KILL MAN OF 73.

Aged Fireman Succumbs After Attack Lasting 48 Hours.

NEWTON, N. J., March 9.—Hiccoughs, from which he had suffered for nearly forty-eight hours, proved fatal this afternoon to Edward Lecker, 73, a fireman, at his home on Mill Street, this place. Dr. Lamar Voorhees, attending physician, declared tonight that everything possible had been done to relieve the aged man but that he did not respond to any treatment.

Dr. Voorhees said Decker had been ill for a week, but that the hiccoughs did not develop until Wednesday afternoon, a short time before the aged man became unconscious.

SHOWS THE BIG DEBT FRANCE IS CARRYING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 9.—A financial circular issued by a group of German-controlled banks at Bezie, Switzerland, attacks French credit in an effort to drive down the franc. The German bankers arrive at the conclusion that France is doomed because she owes 400,000,000,000 francs, which is more than 36,000,000 people can pay.

The Germans divide the French state debt into the interior debt, exterior debt and reparation and pension expenditures and arrive at the total indicated, and naturally enough the Germans neglect to mention what is due France from Russia, Turkey and other nations, but worst of all they entirely omit any calculation of what Germany owes France and present this part of the situation in the simple light that now France having gone ahead and spent billions on reparation of the ruins the Germans wrought she has brought herself only that much nearer ultimate ruin.

The conclusion intended to be drawn from the German argument calls for several comments. The French interior debt, including the 90,000,000,000 francs borrowed for reparations and pensions, totals around 350,000,000,000 francs, while France's foreign debt to America and England is about 37,000,000,000. German figures of 400,000,000,000 are not par. Therefore, on the face of it, the German figures of 400,000,000,000 are not far wrong.

But of this total only the foreign debt is owed in gold. The rest is in current money, which at this time is worth one-third of full value, and from that way of figuring, the French State debt is less than 160,000,000,000 francs gold.

It might be remarked in passing that if France followed the German example of a limitless paper money issue, she could do what the German State has done and reduce her interior debt to about nothing. If the French franc, like the German mark, were worth one-thousandth of its value, the French interior debt would be some 120,000,000 gold francs.

It goes without saying that if Germany had shouldered the reparations instead of France, the German bankers could at once reduce the French debt by 100,000,000,000 francs which France has spent on reparation and pensions.

There exists a true enough basis for the German argument, namely: French finances are in a bad way. But that Germans should seek financial profit by distributing a bankers' circular showing that the German failure to pay reparations has brought the French State nearer to ruin should give nationals of other countries a better means of understanding the French attitude toward their neighbors across the Rhine.

DE VALERA EXPRESSES HOPE TO END STRIFE

Captured Letter Says Opportunity May Yet Come to Act Effectively.

DUBLIN, March 9.—The Government Publicity Department publishes a captured letter, said to have been written by Eamon de Valera to an Englishwoman, in which de Valera says:

"Ireland was placed in a cruel dilemma from which it could only be rescued by gentleness, skill and patience. But instead we find ourselves in an atmosphere of tempest. Every word of reason is suppressed or distorted.

"I have been condemned to view the tragedy of the last year as through a glass wall, powerless to intervene effectively, but I still hope the opportunity will come my way."

In the Dail Eireann today, President Cosgrave moved the supplementary budget estimates, including an item of £16,000 for the erection of huts as suitable places along the Ulster frontier in connection with the customs barriers. The estimates also included an item of £267,000 for war stores and vessels. Mr. Cosgrave said this latter amount was required immediately to equip twelve armed trawlers for coast guard service and the prevention of gun-running.

The original budget estimates call for £7,500,000.

WOMEN KIDNAP BRIDEGROOM

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 9.—A wedding ceremony which was to have taken place this morning at Monastier was abruptly and indefinitely postponed when two strange women appeared and kidnapped the bridegroom.

The prospective bride, weeping and puzzled and still awaiting the return of her fiancé, met the young man in question at Cette. After they became engaged she returned to her Monastier home and family to prepare for the wedding. The bridegroom followed, and all arrangements for the civil and religious ceremonies were completed. This morning, an hour before the wedding was to have taken place, two veiled women arrived at Monastier from Cette and inquired the way to the home of the bride. Appearing there, they forced the bridegroom under threats of violence to accompany them, and boarded a train leaving for Cette.

CLAIMS GAIN ON RECOUNT.

Martin C. Ansorge Says Weller's Lead Is Cut to 183.

According to Martin C. Ansorge, defeated Republican candidate for Congress in the twenty-first Congressional District, a recount of forty-five ballot boxes shows that he has gained 157 votes over his opponent, Representative Royal Weller. Of the votes gained Mr. Ansorge said fifty-eight were credited to him yesterday from eleven ballot boxes. According to Mr. Ansorge, Representative Weller is now only 183 votes ahead of him instead of 360, the official plurality.

Mr. Weller served notice yesterday on the Board of Elections that he opposes the further production and opening of the ballot boxes on the ground that the board has no authority or power to open any box or package containing the ballots, as the time for Mr. Ansorge to take testimony has passed.

DANCER DEFENDS HERSELF.

Vera Swift Says She Bought Stolen Car in Good Faith.

Miss Vera Swift, a dancer, who formerly appeared on the Century Roof and at the Winter Garden, testified in her own defense yesterday at her trial in General Sessions on a charge of conspiring in the theft of an automobile on Nov. 1, 1921. She and Robert A. Pisutti, a chauffeur, were indicted for the theft of the car, owned by Paul Gallo of 367 Broome Street, when it was standing in front of 427 West Twenty-eighth Street.

She was arrested at her home in Evansville, Ind., several weeks after the theft. The detective found the car and another, which was alleged to have been stolen in this city, in the garage in the rear of her home.

She testified that she purchased both cars from a man who told her he was Peter Garietti, when she was living at 533 West End Avenue, this city, and produced a bill of sale. The trial will be continued this morning.

BANTON ATTACKS CROMWELL FIGURES

MOTIVE IN LICENSE BILL

To Drive Out Thieves and Bucketeers and Protect Reputable Brokers, Prosecutor Asserts.

District Attorney Banton, who had been ill at his home for more than a month, issued a statement yesterday in which he declared that the assertion of Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the New York Stock Exchange, the day before that the liabilities of stock exchange firms which failed in 1921 and 1922 were only $3,000,000, was "92 per cent. incorrect." Mr. Cromwell's statement was made at a luncheon of the Merchants' Association.

Replying to Mr. Cromwell's criticism of his statement some time ago that the public had been defrauded out of $5,000,000,000 in stock transactions, Mr. Banton explained that he did not state that as a fact, but quoted from a circular issued by the Better Business Bureau about three months ago. He said his statement at that time that the public had been defrauded out of $750,000,000 in spurious securities since the war was based on reports from Washington.

"Mr. Cromwell refers to the general business failures throughout the country which involve $817,000,000. But he does not call attention to the fact that that was a general condition," he continued. "In New York alone, 154 brokers have failed in the last fifteen months involving liabilities of more than $100,000,000. In the whole country outside of New York, only three brokers have failed so far as the records show.

"Suppose in New York 154 merchants, or 154 bankers or banks, or 154 insurance companies had failed, while throughout the entire country outside of New York only three of these classes of business had failed—what would the people of the country think? Would anybody trust a New York merchant, deposit in a New York bank, or insure in a New York insurance company? I think not. But in New York, as far as brokers are concerned, that great difference appears. New York exercises no control over the brokerage business at present; many other States do.

"Mr. Cromwell's statement about the liabilities of the members of the New York Stock Exchange, being approximately $3,000,000, is approximately 92 per cent. incorrect and approximately 8 per cent. correct, and the rest of the statement approximates about the same percentage of accuracy and inaccuracy."

Answering Mr. Cromwell's question regarding the motive behind the bill of Senator Sheridan, now before the Legislature, to license brokers, Mr. Banton declared the motive was "to make New York safe for the investor; to drive out thieves and bucketeers; to prosecute successfully any who might try to do an illegal business after the law goes into effect, and to protect reputable brokers now doing business in New York." Mr. Banton also stated that a few weeks ago he received a letter from a woman which said, in part: "My bucket shop has failed. Can you recommend a good bucket shop?" Commenting on this letter Mr. Banton said:

"The public mind makes no distinction between brokerage offices and bucket shops. It is my desire, through legislation, for the benefit of reputable brokers of New York, to make that distinction and to classify brokers with banks and insurance companies and take them away from the classification now prevalent in the public mind with bucketeers and thieves. Senator Sheridan's bill will do this for the reputable brokers in New York."

PROPOSES TO BROADEN COMPENSATION ACT

Bills at Albany Would Extend Workmen's Act to Concerns Employing Two Persons.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 9.—Two bills calling for drastic amendments in the State Workmen's Compensation law were introduced today by Senator Straus and Assemblyman Rosenman of New York. They would put all establishments where two or more persons are employed under the provisions of the compensation law. Doctors, lawyers and other professional men who employ more than two stenographers or office assistants would have to take out workmen's compensation for them.

The legislation has been endorsed by the American Association for Labor Legislation and the New York State Federation of Labor.

"Serious hardship and grave injustice often result from an injury sustained by an ordinary worker in a small office not included under the Workmen's Compensation law," declared Senator Straus. "There is no reason why all employes should not be assured of the protection now accorded under the Workmen's Compensation law to a favored few.

"Under the construction placed upon the Workmen's Compensation law by the courts, any clerk or stenographer who happens to work in an office in which there are four or more manual laborers is protected under the terms of the present law. On the other hand, the clerk or stenographer next door who is employed in a smaller establishment where there are not four or more workmen is not protected. The law in this respect is obviously unjust.

"At present the small employer of labor, the young doctor with a stenographer and nurse or the young lawyer with a telephone operator and stenographer may be seriously crippled financially if one of his employes is so unfortunate as to break a leg or suffer an injury resulting in an infected finger. In many such cases the courts have awarded enormous damages."

Senator Straus declared that if the bills were enacted the employer would be able to buy workmen's compensation insurance for about $10 a year for each employe, and "would then have the satisfaction of knowing that in case of an accident both his employe and himself would be adequately and justly protected."

For this reason, the introducers of the bills claim that they are in the interest of both wage earners and employers.

Many other measures have been introduced at the present session providing for amendments to the Workmen's Compensation law, but it is generally admitted that the Straus-Rosenman bills are by far the most drastic.

It is not believed that the bills will pass.

2 WOMEN HELD AS THIEVES.

One Faints at Police Station and Other Tries to Escape.

Charged with grand larceny in the alleged theft of a fur coat valued at $600 and household linen and silverware worth several hundred dollars from the home of Jacob Reich, a cloak manufacturer of 600 West End Avenue, Gussie Ancha, 32, and Barbara Schelyer, 21, were arrested last night by Detectives Donelly and Harris in their home, 844 Dawson Street, the Bronx. Valuable silverware and linen, not the property of Mr. Reich, is alleged by the police to have been found in the rooms the women occupied.

UNEXPECTED FORTUNE SMILES ON BRIDEGROOM

Detroit Physician Hears He Will Receive $60,000 From New York Widow, Former Patient.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., March 9.—Those vexatious honeymoon expenses which force a bridegroom to count costs when he wants to show the only woman in the world a good time, free from worry, were cleared away for one expectant Detroit husband today.

He is Dr. R. J. Hardstaff, 1405 Stroh Building, and he was awakened today to learn that he had been made heir to $60,000 by Mrs. Alice M. Wheeler, a New York widow, whose will was probated on Thursday.

Dr. Hardstaff is to be married next month to Miss Mabel Hansen of Highland Park.

"Pleasant? Yes, I should say," said Dr. Hardstaff in his office later. "But where's the story, if the widow of an old friend wishes to remember you in her will?"

"Why, dear, I wouldn't have kept it from you. I merely didn't know of it when I saw you."

"She's read it in the paper," said the doctor. "Yes, it will make a little difference. We're to be married next month."

Mrs. Wheeler was the widow of Alvin H. Wheeler, Wall Street operator. Dr. Hardstaff, in addition to being a friend of the family, was Mr. Wheeler's physician during a lingering illness. It is understood that Mrs. Wheeler bequeathed a fortune of nearly a million dollars, largely to persons not relatives, but who had been of some service to herself or her husband.

Dr. Hardstaff is a native of Tasmania. He left home as a boy and has wandered over most of the globe, including the South Sea Islands. He was a representative of the Australian Government in the Far East, and later spent five years as a surgeon in the British Army.

SEE DISASTER IN BUS TRIP.

Albany Legislators Wager That Hylan's Cars Cannot Get Through.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 9.—Announcement that two New York City buses are coming to Albany next week to "show the legislators what kind of surface transportation the people of New York City want," was received with a general shrugging of shoulders here today, and in some instances wagers that the buses would never be able to make the journey.

At the headquarters of the Albany Automobile Club, Leslie H. Belknap, Assistant Secretary, said "these buses may get as far as Hudson, but unless a tractor and a snow plow goes ahead of them they will not get through."

It is the intention to have the buses from New York meet a delegation of New York residents who will appear in favor of the Walker-Donahue Transit bill, scheduled for a hearing next Wednesday, and take them from the railroad station to the Capitol. It is also said that the buses may be sent through to Buffalo.

"Going from Albany to Buffalo will not be a joy ride," declared Mr. Belknap. "The road is open, but it is full of hardships for motorists. One driver got through the other day, but it required the best part of three days to make the journey from Utica. If those New York buses are going through to Buffalo, the longer they delay the journey the better it will be for those who are to put them through."

AUTOS KILL TWO; ONE DRIVER FLEES

License Number Leads to Arrest —Both the Victims Are Children.

Two children were killed by automobiles in this city yesterday. The driver of one of the cars, said to belong to the Department of Street Cleaning, sped away after running a boy down. He was charged with homicide after he had been traced through the license number.

Theodore Landsman, 12, of 1,440 Park Avenue, was crossing Lexington Avenue at 107th Street when he was struck by the car. Persons who saw the accident obtained the number and reported it to Patrolman Edward Cusick of the East 104th Street Station. The patrolman called an ambulance and rushed the boy to Beth-David Hospital, but he was dead when the ambulance arrived.

Detectives of the East 104th Street Station traced the license number, and as a result of their investigation Paul Zashi, 30, of 417 East 122d Street, who they say was the driver, was locked up.

Cyril Shear, 4 years old, of 2,126 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, ran in front of a truck while playing in front of his home. The wheels passed over the boy, killing him instantly. Nicholas Smith, the driver, of 980 Tenth Avenue, was arrested on a charge of homicide.

John Sexton, 44, of 377 East 152d Street, driver of a Fifth Avenue Bus Company snow plow, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday as a result of the death of Mrs. Bessie Liebowitz of 1,203 St. Nicholas Avenue on Wednesday. She was struck by the plow at St. Nicholas Avenue and 176th Street.

Facts surrounding the death of Eleanor White, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William White of 328 Shippen Street, Weehawken, and the serious injury of Mrs. White by a driverless automobile truck, last week will be submitted to the Grand Jury.

City Judge Charles W. Boote of Yonkers issued a warning yesterday, in rebuking Moe Triner, 24, of 155 Stanley Avenue, Yonkers, that the next automobilist who leaves a car unoccupied with the engine running would receive a jail sentence. Triner had left his car on New Main Street, Yonkers, while he went into a store. The car started, but was stopped by a policeman.

CANCELS CITIZEN PAPERS.

Judge Decides Sea Captain Had Not Been Continuously in Country.

Judge Marcus B. Campbell, in the United States District Court, in Brooklyn, yesterday canceled the citizenship papers of Andrew A. Habbick, a sea Captain and a native of Scotland, on the ground that Habbick had not been in this country for five years continuously prior to obtaining his final papers a year ago last month.

During the trial it was shown that within the five years before the papers were granted Captain Habbick returned to his native city of Glasgow, enlisted in the English mercantile marine and later joined the British Army and served in Mesopotamia. It was also stated that Habbick sought to be a citizen in order to retain his license as a master in the American merchant marine, since none but citizens may be placed in charge of American vessels. The Court granted Habbick permission to renew his application later.

Connecticut Auto Fatalities Drop.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 9.—Constant efforts to keep down the rate of fatal automobile accidents in Connecticut have resulted in a sharp decrease in deaths for the first two months of this year, according to an announcement of the Department of Motor Vehicles tonight. The number of fatal accidents for January and February dropped from nineteen in 1919 to nine this year.

Twixt The Cup And The Chin

THE only trouble with those old-fashioned, yet still widely-used, gaudy colored shaving mugs is, that microbes are unable to read your name on them! We have eleven shops without one mug between them, because there is privacy where there are no mugs, and absolutely no privacy where they are. A sterilized sanitary shaving brush each time is better than one shaving mug all the time!

Garden Apartments with Sunlight on Four Sides
